"This is one of the reasons why Minnesota legislators are now being asked to pass a law requiring a periodic inspection of all motor vehicles," Hall said. "It is impractical to depend on owners to voluntarily make periodic check-ups of vehicles. For example, in Voluntary Vehicle Safety Checks of last year, only about 40,000 of the almost 2 million registered behicles in the state were driven through check lanes.

"Even our young Minnesota drivers disregard vehicle maintenance. Many of the youths boast of keeping their vehicles in better condition than do their elders, but a study last year disclosed that vehicle defects were involved in a greater percentage of the teen-age mishaps than in accidents involving only adults.

"The 'sick vehicle' is a factor in the overall traffic problem of the state as well as the nation. Only 18 states and the District of Columbia carry out official periodic motor vehicle inspections, indicating that about two-thirds of the 76 million registered vehicles of the country go without official periodic safety checks. The safety of millions has to depend or 'gamble' on the owners keeping the vehicles in safe operating condition."

"We cannot allow this situation to remain as it is if we intend to make any progress in the field of traffic safety. The unsafe vehicle is a lethal weapon in the hands of either the good or bad driver," he said.

Hall said there has been an encouraging indication of an increasing public awareness of the need for mandatory vehicle checks. Seventy-four per cent of the driving public interviewed in a recent national poll was in favor of annual car inspections, and more and more proposals are being drafted for action by state legislatures throughout the nation.

Social Security Payments Require Earnings Reports

Department Points out Regulations Affecting Self-employed Persons

Correct reporting of net earnings from self-employment at the end of each year is all-important for social security purposes, said Walter Kistler, district manager of the Grand Forks, N. Dak. social security office.

Mr. Kistler joins with George Lethert, district director of Internal revenue, in reminding people who work for themselves — alone or in a partnership — that Federal income tax returns (Form 1040) for 1962 must be filed on or before April 15, 1963. A tax return must be filed, and the self-employment tax paid, if net earnings for the year were at least $400, even if no income tax is payable.

The Social Security Administration, Mr. Kistler said, wants to remind self-employed persons that any old-age, survivors, and disability insurance benefits to them and their families will be based on credits derived from their earnings. If those earnings are not reported or are incorrectly reported, benefit amounts will be reduced—in some cases lost entirely—when the worker retires, becomes disabled, or dies.

Marshall Team 3rd in Potato Judging at Winter Shows

The Climax F. F. A. team won the youth potato judging contest at the Red River Valley Winter Shows. The winning team topped a field of 33 boys and girls in eleven teams to receive a plaque from the Red River Valley Development association.

Second place went to the Lake of the Woods county 4-H team No. 1 coached by Otto Lee, county agent. The Marshall county Happy Corners 4-H club took third place honors. Their coach was Harlem Sandberg.

Top individual scoring honors went to Peter Smith, a Marshall county 4-H member.

BILLBOARDS throughout the state will proclaim the advantages of 4-H club membership during National 4-H Club Week March 2-9. Space is provided as a public service by members of the outdoor advertising industry in Minnesota. More than 53,000 4-H club members in Minnesota are joining 2,285,600 youth throughout the nation in special observances during the week. Among the goals are to focus on the citizenship-in-action program, emphasize the importance of career exploration and invite more young people to join or form 4-H clubs.

Reservations Due at School Patrol Camp

The American Legion school safety patrol training center at Legionville, near Brainerd, will open June 9 for 11 consecutive weekly sessions, according to the Minnesota highway department.

Registrations are now being accepted for the 26th annual session which will be limited to 156 trainees a week, with registration being on a "first come, first serve" basis. Sponsors can apply for reservations at the American Legion office, Veterans' building, St. Paul.

Legionville, located on North Long Lake near Brainerd, provided training for school and bus patrol members with classroom instruction in safety methods being conducted by Minnesota Highway Patrol officers and other state government representatives.

Each training session will open on Sunday, with the first eight weeks to be reserved for boys and the last three weeks for girls. The third week, June 23-29 is reserved for boys of St. Paul, and the ninth week, August 4-10, is set aside for girls of St. Paul. A registration fee of $20 must accompany each application, although it is not necessary to submit the names of potential trainees with the reservation.

Camp officials request that sponsors send only school safety patrol members who will be active during the following school terms, and only those who have not attended previous training sessions. They also are asked to send only patrol members 14 years of age or under.

Although Legionville is operated by the American Legion and co-sponsored by the Minnesota Highway Patrol, it is not necessary that school patrol officers be sponsored locally by only Legion posts or auxiliary units.

Chippewa Leader Chides News Media

Roger Jourdain Speaks Monday at Minnesota 'U'

Indians who get into trouble with the law are treated unfairly by news media, a Chippewa leader charged at the University of Minnesota Monday.

Roger Jourdain, chairman of the Red Lake Band of the Minnesota Chippewa tribe, said the Red Lake Indians are always identified as such by newspapers and other media in the Bemidji area whenever they are arrested.

Other races are not identified in this way, Jourdain said.

Jourdain, speaker at a Brotherhood Week program, suggested that such treatment is not in the spirit of brotherhood.

The program, in Coffman Memorial Union, was the first of six sessions on Indian problems, held in connection with Brotherhood Week.

Pennington 4-H Judging Team 2nd At Winter Shows

First place in the event went to the Norman county team comprised of Loyal and Dale Sip and Curtis Jacobson of Ada and coached by Harold Rosendahl, Norman county agent. Loyal Sip was named top general livestock judge and top beef and hog judge.

"To lead a people in revolution wisely and successfully, without ambition and without crime, demands indeed lofty genius and unbending virtue. But to build their State amid the angry conflict of passion and prejudice, to peacefully inaugurate a complete and satisfactory government—this is the very greatest service that a man can render to mankind. But this also is the glory of Washington."

Unusual Problems

Reports indicate that the legislature is making satisfactory progress, although progress is never notable during the first weeks of a session.

It is becoming increasingly clear that regardless of how the contest for the governorship is decided, this legislature is going to have to lean heavily on its own leadership. It is fortunate therefore that both houses are controlled by conservative majorities which should mean greater harmony and less partisan sniping than we have had in recent years. The final results therefore will be the responsibility of that majority and the leadership in both bodies.

It is unfortunate that there will be no restraint on spending from the governor's office. Governor Andersen's budget calls for large increases, along with some meaningless assurances that an enormous increase in spending can be authorized without tax increases. The conservative legislature should, and no doubt does, understand that as we spend we must also pay.

In several ways the present session will be especially interesting because of its unusual problems. May good judgement and common sense prevail.

More Confusion

Harold Wilson, Britain's new Labor party leader, wants his country to get rid of nuclear arms and abandon the Polaris missile agreement with the United States. In a television interview following his election to the party leadership he said nuclear arms should be confined to the United States and the Soviet Union.

There no doubt would be some advantages in reducing the number of nations having nuclear weapons to two. As the number having them is limited, the liklihood of their being used carelessly probably would be diminished. But we don't like the idea of shifting the sole responsibility for the defense of the free world to our country. All nations of the free world should share in that responsibility, and cost, to whatever extent they are able.

And now President de Gaulle has added to the overall confusion by insisting that France will develop its own nuclear weapons and maintain its own defense organization. He is accused of trying to set himself up as the balance of power between Russia and the United States and thus be in position to decide the issues.

The chances are that President de Gaulle is not going to be with us long enough to make all of the important decisions for the Western Alliance. A younger group of leaders will soon have to assume the responsibilities. While we have no assurance that from a younger group we will get better leadership, there is the possibility that, with the change, some of the bitterness of the old prejudices and hatreds may be overcome.

Maybe, when the emergency seems most hopeless, the power that directs such things will produce more Lincolns and Washingtons to restore peace and maintain order.

Cotton Headache

Not all of the farm problems are in our part of the country. There are plenty of them in the South too, where most of the protected crops are grown. Tobacco, which has had smooth sailing for some time, is now running into difficulties. Acreage yields are up and quality is down, resulting in growing surpluses. And cotton is a real headache.

At the present time cotton growers are guaranteed 32.5 cents a pound, which is 8.5 cents higher than the world price. In order to sell U. S. cotton abroad the government must subsidize sales to the extent of this difference. Which creates annother problem as the Wall Street Journal points out. Says the Journal:

> "Now American cotton mills have long been unhappy about this discrepancy, especially since foreign interests, buying our subsidized cotton, have been sending it back in the form of finished goods at prices U. S. mills can't match. The Administration long ago promised domestic mills it would fix things so they wouldn't have to pay more than foreigners do.
> "Instead of realistically facing the facts of the market, the Administration proposes to compound the cotton program's economic ills. It would extend the 8.5-cent subsidy to cotton sold in the U. S., so domestic mills at last could buy the staple at the world price. And it would allow producers to grow still more cotton which the Government would guarantee to buy."

Such absurdities are resulting in some more realistic thinking about the problem among growers themselves and some farm organizations, according to the Journal. The right answer, of course, is a gradual return of the production and marketing problems to the cotton growers themselves. Some other segments of agriculture are doing a fair job of managing their own affairs and there is no justification for our present program of government controls and subsidies continuing forever.

The transferring of responsibility back to the industry itself should of course be a gradual procedure, but such a program should be started at once.

Lausche Rebels

When President Kennedy presented his record-breaking budget to the people he explained that he had felt obliged to "limit severely" his spending proposals for programs other than defense and space. He made it clear that once again we would be called upon to accept limited federal participation in some activities in order to meet our more essential obligations in defense and space.

But since he wiped away his tears after that thrilling call to arms, scarcely a day passes that does not bring an announcement of some new program that Mr. Kennedy tells us must have immediate attention, along with the necessary appropriations. This, of course, has us bewildered, and that is understandable. But we do get some comfort out of the fact that it also is bewildering to some of the leaders of President Kennedy's party in Congress.

Our confidence in the government, for instance, is greatly strengthened by the reactions of such man as Senator Frank Lausche, an Ohio Democrat. He is appalled by the idea of cutting taxes and increasing spending, and expresses himself forthrightly as to why he cannot go along with the leader of his party. He says:

> "To support a tax cut at this time might bring national calamity.
> "There cannot, in my judgment, in the interest of the country, be a tax cut at this time without a corresponding reduction in expenses.
> "There are millions of Americans who have bought government bonds, are receiving annuities and pensions, have placed monies into humble bank accounts. You can rob them and rob them rapidly by setting into motion a course of inflation that will have no stoppage. And, therefore, I unhesitatingly say that acting with the best of conscience I cannot give support to the president's recommendation on this very, very vital subject."

Are We Meddlesome?

Whaley Eaton, in his letter on current events, suggests that maybe it would be helpful to the cause of harmony if our country were a little less eager to solve all of the problems of this hectic world. His following observations are interesting:

> "Europeans are deeply concerned lest the U. S. go too far in its reaction against de Gaulle for shutting Britain out of the Common Market.
> "The time for sounding off, for threats and recriminations has passed; the deed is done and the damage is great. The immediate need is to avoid making the situation worse.
> "Direct American intervention in this European controversy now would, it is widely believed, merely strengthen de Gaulle's hand."

The Value of Gold

President Kennedy has again reaffirmed his intention to continue to maintain the price of gold at its present level of $35 an ounce. That has been the established price since President Roosevelt devalued the dollar 25 years ago. It is nice to know that the President's intentions are good.

Unfortunately what might happen to the price of gold probably will be determined more by what the government does than by what the President promises. If the President's program for tax cutting and increased spending were adopted then we very definitely would be headed for more inflattion and a higher market price for gold, which would mean another devaluation of the dollar.

Inflated costs have practically put an end to gold mining in our country, our 1961 production being valued at only 55 million dollars, only 4.5 per cent of the free world total. A proposal now before Congress would establish a $105-an-ounce price for gold to be used in the domestic market for such items as dental fillings, and keeping the present price for monetary purposes. The proposal is not getting serious consideration now but we do not know what the situation will be a few years from now if we continue to drift.

Interesting Opinions

"In place of a genuine standard we have put nothing except majority opinion, or the beliefs and desires of the average man. We take polls and compile statistics. We equate the "normal" with the "average" and remember just enought of the true meaning of the first of these terms ("that by which a thing is to be judged") to conclude that "the average" is indeed "that by which a thing should be judged." Hence men, institutions, and society are judged, not by what they might or ought to be, but simply by what, on the average they are."

—Joseph Krutch

You and Your Eyes

Don't Compromise on Eye Care

Your eyes deserve the best. They're the only pair you'll ever have. They deserve professional care.

Professional care means the utmost in skill and quality of materials. It means a complete, thorough examination with precision equipment to determine all your visual needs.

Professional eye care means a careful prescription for the finest of precision lenses. Corrective lenses ground especially for your eyes cannot be dispensed like bargain basement shoes; or like bargain basement shoes, they won't fit properly every time.

Professional eye care means discovering the truth about your eyes. That takes a good deal of time, care, and . . . most of all . . . skill.

You may be sure that those highly skilled men who examine your eyes are more than aware of the many demands that are made on your pocketbook. They make every effort to provide the world's finest eye care at lowest possible cost. But they will not cut quality to save you money. They will not take chances with your eyes to save you a few dollars . . . and you wouldn't want them to.

So never compromise on eye care. Demand the best for your eyes. Trust them only to an ethical eye examiner who has earned the confidence of your community . . . the man who provides professional eye care.

ENJOY MINNESOTA FOODS

EGGING ON Minnesota's population to consume more state-produced foods is one of the jobs of Agriculture Commissioner Duane Wilson. To help get it done, his department is undertaking an all-Minnesota breakfast at 8 a.m., Tuesday, Feb. 26, in the new Highway Department Building cafeteria across from the Capitol in St. Paul. Every member of the Minnesota Legislature and scores of other leaders in government, education, agriculture, industry, communications and promotion are being invited. The menu includes tomato juice, scrambled eggs, turkey-and-pork sausage links, muffins with honey-butter, fried potatoes and milk – all foods abundantly produced in Minnesota. Enough foods to serve 300 persons has been donated by state commodity organizations. To encourage attendance, Wilson said he would fry the first pan of eggs personally. He's shown here getting set for a practice session with Princess Kay of the Milky Way, Kathleen Hjelle of Argyle, capping off his chef's costume. Senate Conservative leader Raymond Zwach of Walnut Grove (left) and House Liberal minority leader Fred Cina of Aurora add their bi-partisan blessings and personal wishes of success for the project. Purpose of the breakfast is to dramatize the importance of promotion to Minnesota agriculture.

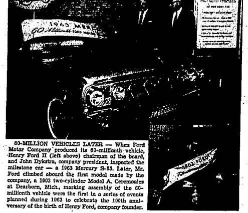
Milestone Car Launches Henry Ford Centennial



60-MILLION VEHICLES LATER — When Ford Motor Company produced its 60-millionth vehicle, Henry Ford II (left above) chairman of the board, and John Dykstra, company president, inspected the milestone car — a 1963 Mercury S-55. Later, Mr. Ford climbed aboard the first model made by the company, a 1903 two-cylinder Model A. Ceremonies at Dearborn, Mich., marking assembly of the 60-millionth vehicle were the first in a series of events planned during 1963 to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the birth of Henry Ford, company founder.

Explain Capital Gains, Losses on Income Tax

(This is the sixth in series of articles on income taxes made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar Association, Public Relations Committee.)

Gain from the sale of a capital asset is given preferential tax treatment on both your Minnesota and federal tax returns. A capital asset can be generally defined as any property held by a taxpayer not in connection with a business and, with reference to the average taxpayer, means stocks, bonds, car, furniture and home.

Normally, when you sell any of the property described, you either sell it at a profit or you sustain a loss, both computations being based upon the difference between the cost you paid for the item sold and the selling price.

Items sold by you at a loss which are held for personal use, while capital assets, do not result in a deductible loss. On the other hand, a gain based upon the difference between your cost and the selling price of the item does result in taxable gross income to you to the extent of the difference. The sale of a personal residence and the computation of income thereon will be discussed in the next article in this series.

The profit on the sale of a capital asset which you have owned for six months or less is includable in gross income in its entirety. Where, however, you have held the asset for more than six months only one-half of the net profit (after adding all of your gains and deducting all of your capital losses) is includable in gross income. Furthermore, where the tax upon this addition to gross income is more than one-fourth of the total long-term gain, the federal tax is reduced to this amount of one-fourth of the total long-term gain received. The rule is similar with regard to the Minnesota return and you are therefore allowed to deduct from gross income one-half of the net long-term gain before computing your tax.

Losses from the sale of capital assets, other than those held for your own benefit, are deductible in the year you sell the capital asset. However, these losses are limited to $1,000 in excess of the capital gains for any one year. Where your capital losses exceed capital gains by more than $1,000, you are allowed to deduct the excess capital losses in the five succeeding years against capital gains realized in those years, subject again, however, to the rule that the net deduction in excess of capital gains cannot exceed $1,000 in any of the following years.

Property used in your business but not held for sale to customers receives a hybrid treatment upon sale. If a profit is made on the sale, it is treated as capital gain. However, if a loss results, the loss is deductible in full in the year of sale. Some of the items in this category are rental property, store buildings and fixtures and farm machinery.

Langen Criticizes UN Giving Cuba Farm Aid

"When are we going to learn that you can't beat communism by aiding the enemy?" asked Congressman Odin Langen (7th Dist., Minn.) today when asked about the United Nations announcement this week that the world organization would give farm aid to Cuba through an 18-nation special fund.

Langen noted that Paul G. Hoffman, American managing director of the Fund; and other U. S. officials have defended the aid to Cuba. "How can they defend it" asked Langen, "when everyone knows that the United States contributes 40 per cent of that fund? What it means is that American money will be spent in direct aid to Cuba."

Langen noted that Hoffman has declared that no American money would be used on the project — that expenses will be met with the currencies of other countries contributing to the scheme. "It's like a man and his wife who both work and put their paychecks in the same bank account," said Langen, "and then when the husband writes a check for a new set of golf clubs he calls the bank and tells them to take the money out of his wife's share of the account because he doesn't believe in spending his own money for such luxuries. How ridiculous can we get?"

"Our government didn't even ask for a vote on the question of aid to Cuba," said the Minnesota Congressman, "supposedly on the assumption that such a vote would have favored Cuba. At least it would have told us just which countries are or are not our friends."

OUR SON

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Robert Edward, Junior — that's his name. But soon it will be Bobby. And after a while he and I will probably be known as Big Bob and Little Bob.

Funny how you start looking ahead. When I came out of the shop today I happened to notice our sign — the big one with my name on it that hangs over the door. And I thought to myself, maybe someday we'll add: & SON . . .

But Marge and I know better than that! You can't plan your son's life for him. He's got to make his own decisions, choose his own road.

One thing we have decided for him, though. That he's going to have all the moral and spiritual training a man needs to make right decisions and follow a straight road.

This God expects of us — of all parents. And our church is ready to do its vital part.

Third Blaze in Five Days

Fire Damages Five Trucks At Wedul Storage Garage

Damaging fires seem to have reached near epidemic proportions in the area as the third major blaze in five days occurred Sunday afternoon. Extensive damage to five semi-tractors and a storage and repair shop owned by Wedul Truck Lines at 620 Davis av. N. was done by a fire which broke out about 3:45 p. m. Sunday.

Maynard Wedul, manager of the truck lines, told the Times this morning that the fire was believed caused by a short in the wiring of one of the damaged trucks since there was no fire in either of the stoves in the building. The tractor most extensively burned was owned by Armond Lian and four others owned by Wedul were also damaged.

Fires previously had destroyed the Plummer liquor store on Wednesday morning and the St. Hilaire liquor store on Thursday morning. Extensive damage was also done in both of these fires.

Wedul estimated the loss to the five truck tractors in excess of $20,000 and also noted that some damage was likely done to part of the equipment used for repair in the shop. One end of the 40x60 wood frame shop was badly burned and the shop contained tires, welders and repair tools valued at about $8,000.

The loss leaves the truck line with only one tractor for its motor service, permitting only the hauling of livestock until the damaged trucks can be repaired. Local firemen pulled the five tractors from the burning building while fighting the fire Sunday afternoon.

BURNED extensively by a Sunday afternoon fire was this International truck tractor owned by Armond Lian and stored in the Wedul shop at 620 Davis av. N. Four other trucks stored in the building were also damaged with the loss estimated at more than $20,000 by Maynard Wedul, manager of the trucking firm.

Friday, March 1, has been designated nationally to be observed as the World Day of Prayer, and the occasion will be noted in Thief River Falls by local women affiliated with seven churches. They will meet Friday afternoon at 1:30 in the Community Methodist church.

Other local churches sharing in the joint observance are Trinity, Zion and Redeemer Lutheran churches; First Baptist and Evangelical Free churches; and the Salvation Army.

"The World Day of Prayer service is not just a program. It is planned as an active experience of prayer, to give us a sense of unity with the world-wide church, and a response to this in informed giving," according to Mrs. Paul Moser, national chairman.

The offering, a dedication of gifts and money to assist the work of those giving time and talent in many fields of service, is a vital part of every observance, necessary to help put into tangible form response to those concerns for which the prayers are offered.

TRF Banks Offer $400 Scholarship

Prospective Farmers Are Eligible for Award

The Union State and Northern State banks are offering a two-year scholarship to a young man who is a high school graduate and interested in farming as a career. The scholarship is in the amount of $400 and should be used to attend the College of Agriculture on the St. Paul Campus of the University of Minnesota.

The scholarship winner must complete four quarters of work at the college and upon completion of the course will be entitled to a technical certificate in agriculture. All courses receive degree credit so that the student can continue on for a degree if he so desires. Applications by agricultural or non-agricultural students can be considered if qualified applicants for the technical certificate program are not found.

The bankers of the county recognize the value of education in modern agriculture and are using this means to encourage young farmers to acquire all the education possible before they begin full time their life's work of running a farm.

Applications are available from any banker in the county as well as the county agent, vo-ag instructors or high school principals.

The program is promoted throughout the state by the Minnesota Bankers Association's Youth Activities Committee on a county basis.

Recount Trial Opens Today in St. Paul Court

Number of Ballots in Dispute Reduced to Less Than 2,000

A trial without precedent in the history of Minnesota opens in the courthouse in St. Paul Monday—a trial which will help determine who was elected governor of Minnesota in November.

The trial will be conducted by three judges appointed by the supreme court. District Judge J. H. Sylvestre of Crookston is presiding. He will be flanked on the bench by District Judges Sidney E. Kaner of Duluth and Leonard Keyes of St. Paul.

The three judges will listen to arguments and pass upon disputed ballots — between 1,500 and 2,000 of them — pulled from 96,000 challenged by inspectors in recount proceedings started by former Lt. Gov. Karl Rolvaag, the DFL candidate.

Rolvaag petitioned for the recount after the state canvassing board declared GOP Gov. Elmer L. Andersen the victor by 142 votes. The recount, pending a decision on disputed ballots, has given Rolvaag a lead of 133.

The recount proceedings is the first statewide recount to reach the trial stage.

The trial opening today will only help decide the issue. Before final decision can be made, the three-judge court also must rule on DFL charges of irregularities in the conduct of the election in four communities and resolve questions about some 200 possibly partially defective ballots. The election irregularities charges affect about 150 ballots.

The court also may be asked, if Rolvaag elects to push this phase and the court will entertain it, to rule on admissibility of about 7,000 absentee envelopes.

C. L. Nelson of New Prague heads the Rolvaag legal staff and Richard Kyle of St. Paul is head of the group of lawyers handling the Andersen case.

The 96,000 challenged ballots were reduced to 22,000 by screening teams made up of lawyers representing both sides, then further cut to 3,865 by top attorneys for both parties.

By trial time this number is to be reduced to between 1,500 and 2,000 in the light of the Minnesota Supreme Court decision in the Fitzgerald - Morlock case. This construction to interpreting the

No Money In Public Pot . . .

ARA Funds Not Available for City Improvement Work

Thief River Falls officials have been notified that two of the four projects submitted for consideration under the Accelerated Public Works Program of the federal government can not be accomplished under the present allocation of funds. Word was received by Robert Wurst, city attorney, from Odin Langen, Seventh District congressman.

Congressman Langen had contacted the Area Redevelopment Administration to check on the project applications at the request of the city. Funds had been requested in the two projects for storm sewer construction and street improvements and for a municipal natural gas system for the city.

The ARA told Congressman Langen that "it is not possible to fit them into the present allocation of funds." The ARA also told the Congressman that "the projects have not been submitted to them by the Community Facilities Administration, but that they had discussed it with them and they stated when additional funds are appropriated these projects would be given serious consideration."

"In talking with ARA they further stated that the Post Office Department had submitted a request for $210,000 under the accelerated public works program for post office facilities at Thief River Falls," Langen's letter stated, "and if additional funds are appropriated they will ask for its approval.

"Legislation has been introduced providing for the appropriation of additional funds that were authorized for the APW program. It is hoped these projects might be considered favorable when additional funds are available. The other two applications for a jail and a public library we will be glad to check on if you will provide the identifying project numbers."

An initial allocation of $400 million had been made available for public works project last year and the city completed plans and application forms for the four projects in the hopes of qualifying for government financial assistance. Included in the projects were plans for improvements which were planned for construction without government aid.

With the possibility that federal money could be forthcoming if another appropriation of funds is made, the council is now faced with the problem of carrying out its original plans or standing still in the expectation that such funds will become available. The initial allocation of $400 million was exhausted before the locally-submitted plans were considered by the various federal agencies involved.

TRF Jobs Inc. Meeting Hears Report on Work

State Sen. Maruska Addresses Dinner Meeting on Friday

Four directors of Thief River Falls Jobs Incorporated were reelected, and Edgar Hetteen was named a new member of the board at the annual dinner meeting Friday evening in the Elks club rooms. Relected were Bill LaFave, president of the agency; J. J. Womack, Dr. O. D. Beich and Lester A. Ihle. About 50 persons attended and heard an address by State Sen. Harvey-dale Maruska of Angus.

President LaFave, who conducted the business meeting, reported briefly on more than 25 local projects on which Jobs Inc. had done work during the past year, calling on committee members for further details.

Among the projects in which assistance was given were the establishment of a city planning commission, relocation of the J. C. Penney store, Valley Seed & Supply Co., Arctic Enterprises, Penn-co Feed Lots pilot plant, Area Redevelopment agency, and highway projects, including the improvement of 13.5 miles on Highway 1 west from Thief River Falls, work on which is expected to start either this fall or in 1964. It also was announced that an industrial survey of the city is being made, so that information will be readily available to prospective new enterprises.

Senator Harveydale Maruska cautioned members to keep a watchful eye on the cost of state government. He noted that the total budget in 1927 was less than 40 million dollars, by 1959, his first year as a state representative, the budget had risen to 493 million dollars; and in 1961 the total budget was 566 million dollars. In the current session the total of all budget requests had risen to 673 million dollars, a gain of 107 million dollars over the preceding biennium. He noted that

Soo Line Seeks Cut in Branch Line Service Fordville to Kenmare

The Soo Line Railroad company has filed an application with the Public Service Commission of North Dakota for approval of a reduction in train service on its branch line between Fordville and Kenmare, according to the Walsh County Record of Grafton.

The Soo Line states that it presently provides mixed train service on its branch line between Fordville and Overly, by means of its trains 211 and 212 operated on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays of each week from Fordville to Overly and on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays each week from Overly to Fordville.

In addition, the railroad provides service between Overly and Kenmare by means of its trains 213 and 214 on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays and from Kenmare to Overly on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays of each week.

The trains, the applicant states, provide freight and passenger service. No mail or express is handled.

Soo Line officials said that prior to the fall of 1962 the principal carload freight traffic handled by trains 212 and 214 consisted of crude oil and grain. In the fall of 1962 all of the crude oil traffic formerly handled was diverted to a pipe line. The remaining freight traffic handled is extremely seasonal, officials stated.

The applicant said that if approval is granted the company will continue to provide such additional freight train service as may be needed in the grain harvest season.

Soo Line officials also said that if the commission grants the authority to reduce the train service the company will operate a mixed train from Fordville to Kenmare on Monday and Thursday of each week and from Kenmare to Fordville on Tuesday and Friday of each week.

The commission announced that all interested parties may file objections with or request a hearing before the Commission on or before March 11, in which event the commission may set the matter for a public hearing. The request will be granted if no objections are raised or hearings asked.

Mrs. Folkedahl and Mrs. Halvorsen will lead the 1963 Crippled Children's Appeal beginning February 28 and ending April 14, Easter Sunday.

In accepting the co-chairmanship for the 1963 Crippled Children's Appeal, Mrs. Folkedahl said that she felt very privileged to lead the appeal for the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults, for 4,875 physically handicapped children and adults received needed services last year.

"The expansion of these services for the growing number of handicapped youngsters and adults is vital," Mrs. Halvorsen added.

Ushers were Kenneth Thompson, cousin of the bridegroom, and Larry Ellingson, Minneapolis, cousin of the bride.

The church was decorated with bouquets on the altar and floor baskets of white gladioli and white pompons. Miss Karen Cheever, organist, accompanied Emmett Newman, soloist, who sang "The Wedding Prayer" and the "Wedding Benediction."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of peau taffeta. The bodice was designed with crescent neckline and long tapered sleves accented with lace applique which also trimmed the waistline and topped the full skirt styled with a bustle. Her veil of sheer illusion was caught to a miniature crown of pearls and braid trim. She carried a Bible with a white orchid and streamers.

The bride's attendants chose identically styled ballerina length gowns of peppermint gren iridescent taffeta. The basque bodices were designed with oval necklines and elbow length sleves. Self-fabric roses trimmed the bell skirts. They wore matching braid crowns with circular vils and carried white muffs with pale yellow carnation corsages.

The mother of the bride wore a pale aqua brocade semi-sheath dress with beige accessories and corsage of pink carnations. Grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Tillie Bratlund, Goodridge, Minn., wore a green print silk jersey dress with matching accessories and corsage of pale pink carnations.

After a honeymoon spent in Minnesota, the couple are residing in Kenosha, Wisconsin.

The bride is a graduate of Superior East High School and has been employed by the Superior Water, Light and Power Company. The bridegroom was graduated from Superior Central High School and is currently employed at American Motors Corp., Kenosha.

The guests who came from this area who attended the wedding were Mrs. Leo Ellingson, Clarence Ellingson and Mrs. Lewis Quam, Goodridge.

The Library Corner

By Virginia Gjernes

Something new has been added! (Besides new books). Temporarily, your library is something of an art gallery. Atop book shelves and in the curio cabinet are articles which junior and senior high school students enrolled in art classes have loaned for display. There are papier mache figures and wood cuts placed strategically about so that borrows may enjoy the art at their leisure. The show is well worth a trip to the library, sometime within the next three or four weeks, even if you do not need a book or two or three.

Speaking of books (as we often do), reference books are expensive books, much more expensive than a novel or a biography. The reasons why they are costly are obvious. The price of these books is one reason why they are not loaned to cardholders. Reference material, covering many different subjects, is constantly being used by students. Assignments given at school necessitate, in most instances, using both the school and the public libraries. Students are in school most of the day, consequently they must use the public library after school and during the evening hours. However, these are usually the very hours when business men and women and housewives want to use the facilities too, understandably.

Your library is small, therefore it is impossible to have a room or rooms for reference material use only and students must use the tables and chairs available to them in the room used by everyone. Your librarians, naturally, try to keep the students as quiet as possible, they try to serve them as quickly and quietly as possible. There is bound to be some disturbance, however, it is usually at a minimum. The librarians have tried to keep the students in the juvenile section of the library, but unfortunately, there just isn't enough study space. There really isn't any good logical way to solve the problem (except to build additional space). The librarians and the board are acutely aware of the problem and do endeavor to serve all the patrons as rapidly, as helpfully and as quietly as possible. Should the hubbub be a bit annoying to you, at times, please remember that the space is limited and the patrons are many.

There are new users daily, the cardholders list grows lengthier, which speaks well of the community, naturally, but while the list grows, the space doesn't — simple arithmetic give you the answer! The librarians, and the board, spend their off-duty hours combing the area for a space-stretcher, but to date, not a one has been located. If any interested member of the community or the surrounding area should hear of such a commodity, please inform the library board immediately, because they'll fetch it to stretch with, and return it to the owner post haste!

The books on the crowded shelves, like the patrons of the library itself, always move over to make room for newcomers. Today, there are three to talk about. The first, a different sort of book, is Edward Sefton Porter's "Conscience of the Court", written especially for those who like the drama of true-life criminal cases. Those in this book come stright from the files of New York City's probation department. It is a "must" for the reader who isn't afraid to take a good look at the seamier side of life.

Thrills, chills and suspense for the mystery story lover, will keep the kilowatts busy with "A Thief in the Night" by Thomas Walsh. The story is a bit far-fetched, but most mystery stories are, and this one has an International-FBI twist to season the concoction. The author won last year's Inner Sanctum Mystery Award with another book, and he hasn't lost a bit of his story-telling ability.

Historical novels never lack for readers and "That Spanish Woman" by F. W. Kenyon is one which is going to be in great demand. Empress Eugenie is the heroine, and the author tells his story of the wife of Louis Napoleon so expertly that, should there be any doubt in the reader's mind before he begins the book, when he completes it he'll agree that the Empress was one of the most fascinating women that ever lived. Read the novel if you're really in doubt.

The library hours are 12 noon until 9:00 p. m. every day except Sunday and remember, children in the sixth grade or below must be accompanied by a parent after 6:00 P. M., including Friday and Saturday evenings.

For the next several weeks, we are delighted to be able to bring you the recipes which were winners in the several categories at the Feed and Seed Show held here recently. In response to our request, some of the winners have sent in their winning recipes so that we could shar them with you. First received was a date bar recipe from Mrs. A. W. Oski, a farm housewife. She says that this is an ideal sweet, a real health bar, and since it contains no nuts, can be eaten by people of all ages. It may be frozen, and is good whether eaten fresh or several days old.

DATE BARS

1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 tablespoon hot water
2 cups dates, finely chopped

Sift flour once; measure. Add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Add sugar gradually to eggs, beating until sugar is dissolved. Add butter. Beat in dates. Add flour mixture, alternately with hot water. Beat well. Spread batter in a greased, 8x13x2 in. pan. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees) for 35 minutes. Cool. Cut into strips 2x1 inch. Remove from pan. Store in air-tight container.

The Oski's farm is located 11 miles east of Thief River Falls. They have spent all of the past years in Clover Leaf township. Mr. Oski engages in carpentry as a hobby, and is at present making a kitchen cupboard for his wife.

They have five daughters, three of whom are married. They live in Minneapolis; Ashland, Wis., and Phoenix, Ariz., respectively. One daughter, Catherine, is a senior at Lincoln high school in this city, and Judy is an eighth-grader. There are 12 grandchildren.

The entire family enjoys reading and following items of national and global interest, and the encyclopedias which they own are in constant use.

Mrs. Oski has been a homemaker for 35 years, and she especially likes to bake. Formerly a teacher in rural schools, she has also been a 4-H leader for 20 years, and is at present a 4-H project leader in foods. She loves to have young people around, she says. It figures.

ASC Cites Benefits to Farmers under '63 Feed Grain Program

Producers who take part in the 1963 feed grain program will receive payments for diverting acreage from the production of corn and barley, Winton Knutson, chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committee, said today. Part of the estimated payment to be earned for such diversion may be paid in advance when the producer signs up to participate. The rest of the diversion payment and all of the price-support payment will be made next summer.

Knutson said that this program provision should be of substantial benefit to growers who can use some extra ready cash during the spring planting season. Signup for the program will continue through March 22.

Besides the payment for diversion of eligible cropland to approved conserving uses, the feed grain program for 1963 offers program participants a price-support payment on the normal production of the acreage planted to feed grains in 1963. They will also qualify for price-support loans or purchase agreements on their entire production from the feed grain acreage.

The minimum diversion for participation is 20 per cent of the farm's 1963 feed grain base. The acreage of corn and barley (1959-60 average acreage, as adjusted) will be combined into one total fed grain base for each farm, and a farmer may divert one or more of the feed grains in the total base. His payment will be made at the per-acre rate for the grain diverted.

Payment on the first 20 per cent of acreage diversion will be made at 20 per cent of the county support rate on the normal production of the diverted acres. On diversion above the minimum amount, payment will be at 50 per cent of the county support rate. The diversion payment plus the price-support payment will give farmers approximately the same payment they received for participating in the 1961 and 1962 programs.

While participation in the 1963 feed grain diversion program is voluntary, the price-support payments and loans — as well as the diversion payments — will be available only to fed grain growers who carry out the program's provisions.

Farmers who are interested in the feed grain program should get in touch with the ASCS county office at their earliest convenience.

February Notes Coldest Reading Thursday at —24

Apparently intent on not giving up its hold on winter without a fight, February gave the area a touch of cold weather during the past several days. Lowest reading of the month was noted Thursday with —24 degrees being recorded by North Central Airlines personnel at the municipal airport.

Snowfall for the month totals 7.4 inches but snow has not been a problem for road travel in the area this year. High and low temperatures for the past several days include 3 and —24 on Thursday, 11 and —8 on Friday, 14 and —17 on Saturday, 12 and —10 on Sunday and a low reading last night of —17 degrees.

Mostly fair skies through tomorrow are expected with not quite so cold temperatures tomorrow. Wind will be light today and diminishing tonight with highs of 5 to 12 today and lows of —5 to —12 tonight.

Small Packaging Seen as Trend in Turkey Retailing

Secretary of Turkey Growers Assn. Speaks at Valley Winter Shows

Turkey retailing is taking on a new look, RRV Winter Shows visitors were told Wednesday in Crookston.

Food shoppers in the near future will find it easier to buy turkey meat in smaller packages — such as boneless rolled roasts and packages of parts.

Within two or three years, an estimated 10 per cent of turkey retail products will be sold as such convenience items, according to Roy Munson, executive secretary of the Minnesota Turkey Growers association. Currently, only a negligible proportion of turkey sales are other than whole birds.

Munson spoke at a "Talking Turkey" program at the Northwest School and Experiment Station.

He said that further processing is one of two main trends of the future in the turkey industry. Two plants are now engaged in such processing in Minnesota, and Munson said he expected another five to expand in this area in the coming year. He said the trend should expand turkey retailing both in the U. S. and in Europe.

The second trend which Munson mentioned is a shift away from the smaller fryer-roaster turkey. He said good breeding will aid in the trend to larger birds.

Munson said turkey promotion is the responsibility of the growers themselves and their efforts have been a major help in moving the industry as far as it has gone. Turkey consumption has increased from three pounds per capita in 1945 to about 8 pounds now.

Minnesota last year produced 14 million turkeys, a drop of 20 per cent from 1961. The state currently is No. 2 national producer of turkeys, behind California.

GLASSES GALORE were contributed to the local Lions club last week by Sgt. Emerson Sell, Army recruiting officer, left, and Dr. O. D. Beich, optometrist and chairman of the Lions sight conservation committee. The spectacles will be sent to India for use by impoverished residents of that country.

Sgt. Sell, who at one time was stationed in Pakistan, saw the need for glasses and made it a self-appointed task to collect them from optometrists and other sources while making his rounds as a recruiter in Pennington, Red Lake, Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties.

Sell turned over 187 sets of glasses, 100 sets of bows and 769 lenses, while Dr. Beich contributed 200 pair of spectacles.

CHAMBER L.I.F.E.

Living-Industry-Farming-Education

By Rolly Larson
Manager Chamber of Commerce

Right about now we know of a good many laborers, farmers, retired people, and business people who are more than merely feeling the burden of taxes. Perhaps there is a community in this country where taxes are not burdensome, we do not know, but we doubt it. There might be various differences in the size of the burden but the differential could not possibly place one area decisively ahead of our own. Federal and state tax regulations are fairly uniform in application to individuals and local situations are not too different either. Perhaps where taxes are cheap locally, they have a "cheap" town too, and we don't mean inexpensive.

We will be the first to agree that tax reform throughout our governments is one must and especially on the federal and state levels. Locally, at least, we know and can see what we are getting and we do get a better return for our tax dollar. The local tax dollar is the one that is undoubtedly the one most efficiently spent for our needs.

So, when the local community has a dire and established need that is immediate and shows no signs of alleviation, it would stand to reason that local taxpayers should solve the problem much as they would a problem in their own home if they have a means of solving it.

Here in Thief River Falls at the present time, the school district has a dire and established need that is immediate and shows no signs of alleviation. The taxpayers, even though burdened already, do have the means of solving the problem. We are confident that if every taxpayer takes the citizenship responsibility of finding out the facts and analyzes them with an open mind, they will see to it that this problem gets solved on March 5th.

The sooner the citizenry of this community wakes up to the fact that our problems must be solved and that nobody else is going to solve them for us and that we are the poor, downtrodden souls that have to grab ourselves by our bootstraps and become men that will stand up and become progressive developers instead of hungry parasites lapping cream off the top of the land, the better off we will all be.

We will all be better off too if we continue to Shop and Trade Where Bargains Are Made — Here in the Heart of Northwest Minnesota, Thief River Falls.

Public Opinion

Editor Times:

Just prior to the last School Bond Election I gave my opnion as to what I thought best.

Now we have another School Bond Election coming up and I still cannot agree with the manner of providing additional class rooms It is true that we need more class rooms. But I am still of the opinion that we can furnish all the class rooms we need by adding to the present school buildings.

As I stated during the last Bond Election we can easily add from 12 to 16 additional class rooms to these buildings without overloading the present heating plants. The Northrup can easily take six to ten additional rooms. The Knox can take another thre or four class rooms. Washington can also take another three or four class rooms. The Lincoln can also take more class rooms.

This can be done for les than half of the amount the present Bond Issue is calling for.

One thing I cannot figure is the 10 Mills as being the only cost of this bond issue.

The Bonding Company stated that the total cost of the Bond Issue which includes principal and interest covering a period of 27 years would be $2,448,793.75. This based on 3.90 interest rate. The average yearly payment according to this would be $90,696.00. It is said that one mill will bring in $4,000.00. Divide the $4,000.00 into the $90,696.00 and you get some over 22 mills.

Maintenance on a new school building would be about $40,000.00 per year. This will mean another 10 mills. There is also a cost increase for more teachers. This could possibly amount to another 10 mills.

Not so long ago some over 15 mills was added to the tax roll for the schools. This will be in your next tax. Now add all of these together and you will have about 57 additional mills. I honestly think that all this should be brought to light and more thinking done.

Think Twice Before Discarding Aluminum Utensils

Food superstitions die hard even when scientific research and long practical experience prove them wrong.

Among such superstitions are misleading statements still being spread in many areas of the state about the dangers of using aluminum utensils.

At intervals, worried homemakers report they have been told that their aluminum cooking utensils are bad for the health of their families — that aluminum dissolved into the food from cooking utensils is poisonous and can cause all sorts of ailments, including cancer. Such propaganda is frequently spread by house-to-house salesmen for competitive cooking utensils who try to make sales through the use of such rumors. Such salesmen attempt to talk homemakers into discarding perfectly good pots and pans for new, expensive sets of other materials.

Nutritionists point out that the propaganda against aluminum cooking ware is without foundation. The National Better Business Bureau has investigated the allegations and is satisfied that they are completely unfounded.

The American Medical Association, the U. S. Public Health Service, the American Cancer Society, Inc., the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Mayo Clinic and the Federal Trade Commission have agreed and have stated that aluminumware is safe for cooking.

We take aluminum into our bodies daily from food and water, regardless of the type of utensil in which the cooking is done, the University nutritionists say.

Aluminum is found in many baking powders and in some vanishing creams and deodorants which are applied to the skin and thus readily absorbed by the body. Many homemakers who make their own pickles use alum to keep them crisp. Aluminum foil is a popular wrap to protect food and preserve its freshness. None of these uses is harmful.

Aluminumware has many advantages in cooking, according to household equipment specialists. Homemakers can be assured that aluminum is also completely safe to use for cooking.

Over 30,000 Visit RRV Winter Shows

New Attendance Record Set for Crookston Event

A new all-time total attendance record at the Red River Valley Winter Shows had been established when the event closed Friday evening.

Total attendance this year was 30,941, compared with the previous all-time record in 1962 of 29,738 — an increase of 1200.

The shows got off to an earlier start this year, opening on Saturday morning with farm youth activities, instead of opening on Sunday afternoon or Monday morning as had been the custom in years past.

The big increase in attendance this year is attributed partly to the new Winter Shows facilities used for the second year, to the extra day, to additional events and to increased attendance at educational meetings.

The dates for next year's show are February 22 through 28, 1964.

Getting The Facts

An organized group of citizens favoring the proposed school bond issue has stated that they are going to get the facts before the voters. That is a commendable undertaking. Informed voters may agree on some phases of the various issues and disagree on others, but certainly it is in the public interest that all of the pertinent facts be presented to the citizens of the community who will be called upon to make the decisions.

And we, of course, will be happy to cooperate toward this end. What we present as facts will be information we have gleaned from the many reports and bulletins that have been issued by the school authorities over a period of many years. Most of them have to do with school records and we assume the records, as reported, have been correct.

The total indebtedness of the school district, going into 1963, was $1,235,000, and this year we will reduce the total by $85,000. The bond issues that paid for the new Washington and the vocational school added up to $1,200,000, so, actually, we now are starting to pay for the new facilities that became available in the school year of 1957-58. Next year the maturities add up to another $85,000. With the interest, the total debt service cost next year will be $124,789.64. From then on the annual maturities drop to $60,000 until the year 1982, twenty years from now.

This is the debt base we must recognize in considering another one and one-half million dollar obligation that the school administration is proposing and for which another special election has been called for March 5. These are the financial facts as we understand them.

And what are the facts about need? Facts about need cannot be stated in the simple terms of arithmetic by which debt service costs are computed. The question of need is always debatable and there is no hard and fast rule that divides the true and the false. In considering need as to school facilities we must be guided by a number of factors; the standards of necessity of the past and the standards of necessity of the present, and the wide variations in standards that we must recognize in choosing between what is ideal and what we can afford.

In considering our school needs in this spirit, it is interesting to note the changed attitude in the thinking of the educators we have hired to give direction to our school operations, in just a few short years.

At the beginning of the 1957-58 school year, when our expanded facilities were first available, the new superintnedent of Schools, Irwin T. Mickelson, extended cheerful greetings to our good people in these words:

> "Congratulations for providing more classroom space. The new elementary building and the Area Vocational School will make it possible to reduce the number of children under the direction of each teacher. The inevitable result will be better instruction for the children. The outlook for continuous progress in education for the children is improved by the facilities you have so generously provided."

This greeting from the new superintendent was quite encouraging until it became apparent that the purpose of the expanded facilities was not only to meet a classroom shortage but also to reduce class sizes, creating the need for more classrooms and more teachers.

In making comparisons as to need, we think it is reasonable to accept the enrollment records back to the school year of 1957-58 as more relevant to our present problems than such years as 1939 or '29 or '19. In our approach to the present problem we think we can forget what happened prior to 1957-58.

In a few short years since that pleasant school year 1957-58 we have discovered that we now are confronted by a deplorable condition. All of a sudden we should become shamefully aware of our neglect of the needs of our children—and our grandchildren.

These, it seems, are the issues with which we are confronted in the coming school election. And that, it would seem, should serve as a good background for a general discussion of the whole problem. But there is more that should be said.

U N Aid to Cuba

Our United Nations organization has undertaken to befriend the Castro regime in Cuba. So, it appears, some of our tax dollars will be used to strengthen the bearded enemy who has provided for the Russians a Communist base within easy shooting distance of our shore.

According to William Frye, reporting to the Winnipeg Tribune from the United Nations in New York, that seems to be the way the ball has bounced. According to Frye the UN had no choice. He wrote: "It did not want to do it. If there had been any conceivable out, on what the UN considered an honorable basis, it would have ducked."

It seems, according to Frye, that the UN had gotten out on a limb with the support of our government, before the Bay of Pigs debacle, and now Castro "insisted on sawing off the limb."

As Frye Reports:

"The idea came up for formal approval in the governing council of the Special Fund in May, 1961, a few weeks after the Bay of Pigs. By then the Kennedy administration, jolted by failure of the invasion and bitter against Castro for his sell-out to Russia, felt it had to fight the plan.

"Always before, aid projects had gone through regardless of politics. It had been agreed from the beginning that UN aid would carry no strings and be subject to no political influence. On this basis, Russia had swallowed an aid plan for National China, and Egypt one for Israel.

"The United State delegate to the council, Philip M. Khtznick, wanted to enter a formal objection for the record, and then keep quiet. But Washington ordered him to go all-out—and the Cuba project became a cause celebre.

"It might have become one anyway, but UN people blame the administration for guaranteeing that it would."

Well, that's that. Greetings friend Castro, and may our dollars be spent wisely.

Leveling-Off

Some labor leaders in our country are beating the drums for a 35-hour work week. As they propose it, the workers would get the same pay that they now get for forty hours, which means that the shorter work week would add substantially to labor costs.

In England at the present time organized labor is asking for a 40-hour week and in a recent issue this situation was discussed by the liberal Manchester Guardian. Said the Guardian:

> "This year's fashion in trade union claims is the demand for a 40-hour week. It can be put with emotional force, drawing on folk-memories of historic battles for the ten-hour day and the eight-hour day, and it would be unwise to underestimate this force. But in reality the demand is rather artificial, and conditions now are not at all comparable with the past.
> The unions' great struggles for a shorter working week were fought at a time when men, women, and children were grievously exploited. Those battles have been won.
> "Few who achieve a forty-hour week nowadays expect to work only forty hours; in spite of many reductions over the past few years to 42 hours, the average time worked in a week in most industries remains between 46 and 48 hours. The reduction has been valued chiefly for increased opportunities of earning overtime rates.
> "The Coal Board has tried to cut a brave new path through this jungle by offering the miners seven more holidays in the year instead of reductions from 15 to 30 minutes in the present working day to give them a 40-hour week (35 hours underground). The railwaymen are the latest recruits to the shorter working week campaign, and have demanded a reduction from 42 to 40 hours — 24 minutes a day. The Railways' Board is likely to resist it: the railways have no money for extra overtime, which is what the demand really means."

Coming as they do, from a liberal publication, these are interesting observations. There was a time when labor costs in other countries were not an important factor in our economy. That economy was basically agricultural, and developed industrially under the protection of high tariff walls. Under that protection our infant industries became great, and we became the most highly industrialized nation in the world. We developed world markets and gradually these world markets became more essential to us. We became strong and rich as the world's most efficient producer of agricultural products and manufactured goods.

But we are living in a changing world, and we no longer have a monopoly on machines and low cost production methods. Once again we have tough competition, and our problem now is how to get along in a world that is rapidly becoming highly industrialized.

High tariff barriers probably are no longer the right answer to our problem. We probably could survive behind high tariff walls, but they would be a Chinese wall that would keep us locked in as it kept the rest of the world locked out. That surely is not the right answer.

Our hope for our own future, and for the future of the rest of the world, must be based on a gradual improvement in the living conditions of all peoples. At the present time there is a tremendous demand for the products of industry and labor thruout the world. Unfortunately most of the people of the world cannot afford to buy the products they would like to have. They have not learned how to earn.

Gradually they will acquire earning power and buying power, and, when they can buy, they will buy from those who give them the best values. Gradually thruout the world, if civilization as we know it survives, there will be a leveling-off of such things as wage scales and working conditions. In the forseeable future that leveling-off process will be very evident among what we now recognize as highly industrialized nations. That process is now under way in Britain.

Financing Highways

In the minds of some people we will be unable to fully match Interstate and ABC trunk highway federal funds unless we increase our gas tax.

There is another alternative. This is to amend the law relative to encumbering state funds when highway contracts are let.

Under the present law — passed in 1939 — he highway department must have cash on hand or receipts in sight during the year a contract is let for the entire state share of each highway contract. This was satisfactory back when most jobs were built in one construction season. Now, when contracts extend from two to five years, we still insist on having all of the state's share on hand the first year — even though it may not be needed for two or more years. Thus, the Highway Department accumulates millions of dollars of "encumbered cash".

My proposal is that we modify the law to still require fully adequate coverage for all anticipated neds in each year, but release some of the excessive cash now tied up. If this is done we can fully match available Federal funds and carry on the program during the next biennium.

The point is often made that our Minnesota gas tax is low compared with other states and it is. No state has a lower gas tax than we do and about 42 have higher. However our car license taxes are far higher than other states. The net result is that vehicle and gas taxes combined put Minnesota about average with other states in total highway user revenue per thousand vehicles.

A very significant fact always with me is that our total per capita taxes for state and local government are significantly above the national average. Our per capita income is below the national average.

I believe we should exert every effort to live within our present income in state government. I believe we can do so. We have made real progress in the past two years in increasing per capita income and we are coming closer to the national average. We should be substantially above it — simply because our people have had more education and training, better public health and social services than the average of the other states.

Coming back to highways, you will be pleased to know that Minnesota has the largest mileage of interstate highway under construction of any state in this area, in fact almost twice that of the state nearest us in mileage under construction. Also 1,079 miles of primary and secondary highways are being built.

And don't let anyone kid you—they're good highways.

before this budget would be accepted the legislature would be forced to trim the requests of many departments.

The State's educational program would take the "lions share" of the increased budget. He estimated this increase at close to 58 million dollars which would put the total budget for education at close to 400 million dollars. Maruska observed that on a per capita basis, Minnesota ranked near the top among all of the states in the amount spent for education.

Due, in part, to the increased numbers of state residents in the over 65 years age group, the state's welfare programs would take another large slice of the increased budget. In referring to the State's population trends, he noted, that while Minnesota showed an increase in population in the past ten years, most of the gain was made in the 0 to 20 and over 65 years age group. The gain in the productive age group from 20 to 65 years was only 1.4 per cent. We are rapidly becoming a state of tax users rather than a state of producers.

Touching briefly on some of the bills that would come before the legislature this session, he said that he had just heard that evening that the Senate agriculture committee had killed the oleomargarine bill. A senate bill providing for the appropriation of monies for the promotion and sale of the state's agriculture products was progressing nicely.

Calling attention to the need for raw products, ample labor supply, and abundant water as necessary to attract new industry, he said that he was working hard on Senate File No. 522. This bill would set aside Northwestern Minnesota for the first geological survey in the state. The survey will determine the location and amount of underground water. It would give communities situated near these reservoirs added incentive to go after industries needing large amounts of water. The survey will take close to five years to complete.

Other actions of the legislature would be to correct inequities that have been found in the Unemployment Compensation benefits. Even with increased rates the fund has been dwindling each year and the reserve is in danger. Lack of proper controls have made this almost a vacation with pay plan instead of helping those who are in dire need because of an inability to secure employment.

Other ballots originally in the disputed group have been counted for one candidate or the other by agreement between attorneys. The rest have been divided in 24 classes.

These will be presented, class by class, and in many cases, ballot by ballot, to the three judges with arguments for and against their inclusion in the final count.

This procedure is expected to take from three days to a week. The judges have indicated they expect to make and announce their decisions as to groups of ballots as the trial proceeds and it is their hope that decisions as to all disputed ballots can be announced finally during the trial starting March 4 on what is called the "Second bill of particulars."

Doctors Advise Care to Avert Flu Attack

Minnesota has so far been fortunate enough to avoid the severe epidemics of Asian influenza that have plagued other parts of the U. S. and Europe. The Minnesota State Medical association warns, however, that if Asian influenza does strike, the methods used by health departments to fight the spread of slower moving diseases are of little help against the swift attack of an influenza epidemic. Because of this, every individual, says the association, should familiarize himself with the following facts about Asian flu:

Symptoms — Influenza strikes suddenly. The symptoms may be some or all of the following: fever, chills, sweating, headache, sore throat, runny nose, bronchitis, soreness and aches in the back and arms and legs.

Cause — The cause of flu is a virus. When a person has flu, or is just coming down with it, the fluids in his mouth and nose contain these viruses. The disease is spread when these secretions get into the noses and mouths of other people. The most common way is through sneezing or coughing virus-laden spray into the air for others to breathe. Infection can also be spread by common use of dishes, towels and other personal objects, or personal contact like kissing.

Precautions — When many people around you are getting sick with flu it is almost impossible to avoid coming in contact with a few coughs and sneezes. However, there are a few sensible precautions which can be taken. Be sure to keep up your resistance to disease by getting plenty of rest and eating regular, well-balanced meals. During an epidemic you will be safer if you stay out of crowds such as you find at movies and dances. Be sure your dishes and eating utensils have been properly washed. Keep a safe distance from persons who do not cover their coughs and sneezes.

Treatment — There is no medicine that will cure influenza. Antibiotics have no effect upon it, although they can be used to fight some of the complications that can arise from flu.

The best advice, says the association, is to go to bed when symptoms start. Even if it turns out to be just a common cold, you will get well more quickly. If you have a fever, call your doctor. He can help protect you against dangerous complications. And, for the safety of your family and those you work with, remember that you have a contagious disease and those around you can be endangered if you are careless

Bar Tells How Income Tax Is Affected by Buying & Selling Home

(This is the seventh in a series of articles on income taxes made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar Association, Public Relations Committee.)

As dicussed in an earlier article, you are required to include in your gross income the profit you made on the sale of your personal residence. This profit is normally the difference betwen the sales prices less agent's commission and the purchase price of the house when you bought it.

However, this additional income can be postponed in the situation where you buy and occupy a new residence within the two-year period commencing one year before the sale and ending one year after the sale. If your new home costs less than the amount you realized from your old house after deducting therefrom the agent's commission, selling expenses and the amount you spent to fix the house up for sale during the ninety-day period before which the house was sold, the gain realized on the sale of your old house will be taxed to the extent of this difference.

For example, if you paid $10,000 for your old house and sold it for $15,000, you made a profit of $5,000 on the sale. However, if you buy a new home within the two-year period for $15,000 or more, you report no profit on the sale of the old house. You must, however, reduce the cost of the new home for later sale purposes by the amount of the profit you received on the old home. Thus, your new house cost would be reduced $5,000 by the profit you realized on the sale of the old residence and it would have a cost of $10,000 for later sale purposes.

If you spent $500 fixing up your old house for sale within ninety days before selling it, and if you bought your new house for $13,000 rather than the $15,000 figure used in the example above, you would deduct the $500 from the $15,000 sales price to obtain the adjusted sales price. Inasmuch as the purchase price of the new house was less than the adjusted sales price of the old home, you would have to include the net difference or $1,500 as a capital gain in your gross income. The basis of your new house for subsequent sale purposes would then be reduced by the difference between the total profit made on the sale of your old residence, $5,000 and the amount you showed as income when you bought the new residence, $1,500 or $3,500.

Note that the $500 fixing-up expense is used to determine the adjusted sales price for determining the amount of gain on which tax is postponed but does not reduce the profit on the sale of your old home for purposes of determining the cost basis of your new home.

Often you sell your old house in one year and don't buy a new one until the subsequent year. Where this occurs, you should show the fact of sale in your tax return for the year of sale and indicate that you intend to buy a new house within the one-year period. When you later purchase a new house and if you have gain to report because the new house costs you less than the sales price of the old house, you should amend your return for the year in which the old house was sold.

If you want to build a new house to replace the old house sold, you are entitled to these tax benefits only if the house is completed within eighteen months after the old house is sold and construction begins either prior to the sale of the old residence or within one year after the date of sale of the old residence.

The rules and computations discussed in this article apply to the reporting of income for both your Minnesota and Federal tax returns.

IT WAS A WONDERFUL SIGHT Wednesday evening to see three deserving community residents receive recognition for their efforts in community and personal achievement. I refer to Jim Muzzy, Roger Tunberg and Bill LaFave and their awards presented at the Jaycee Boss-Employee banquet.

Being a member of the local Jaycee chapter, I suppose it could be said that this writer is a little bit prejudiced in regard to Jaycee activities. This is an organization in which I take pride, and especially was I proud to be a part of it on Wednesday evening.

To the recipients of the awards given they are certainly much more than paper certificates under glass or metal plaques or pins. They are symbols of recognition that their efforts have not gone unnoticed in this American way of life where personal survival is a full-time job. The response to the award selections was also an indication that persons in attendance recognized the winners for jobs well done.

All three men selected have given unselfishly of their time and efforts to build and promote our great community—each in his own way. Bill has worked countless hours on community betterment, attraction and location of industry, business improvement and area promotion. Roger has worked through service clubs, Jaycee projects and athletic or sports events for community attraction. Jim has brought fame to Thief River Falls through his outstanding work in dairying and has set a fine example of hard work and enthusiasm to young farmers in the area.

To each of you I extend my most sincere and hearty congratulations on your selection and express the thanks of a grateful community.

And speaking of the banquet, toastmaster John McGinley told of the lady who was 12 months delinquent in her loan payment at the local bank. She asked the bank to carry her just a little longer. "Look," said the banker, "we've carried you three months longer than your mother did already and we don't even know you!"

AIN'T IT THE TRUTH? The fellow who thinks he knows it all is especially annoying to those of us who do.

It has been said that when a man and woman marry, they become one. Of course, they must decide which one, and that is often where the trouble starts.

The following verse is borrowed from a Rotary club publication and is typical of the modern's look at modern conveniences:

THE LONGEST WAY AROUND

Over the turnpike to Grand mother's house,
Seventy miles away.
With freeways and thruways and cloverleaf bouts,
And cut-offs and shut-offs and alternate routes
We can get there in a day!

All Forms of Nitrogen Called Helpful in RRV

Grain crops in the Red River Valley can make good use of nitrogen fertilizer — regardless of the form in which that nitrogen is applied.

The important thing for the farmer is to use the material properly, a Winter Shows audience was told Thursday morning by a group of University of Minnesota soils men.

J. M. MacGregor, soils researcher, said University trials around the state show that when you use equivalent amounts of available nitrogen, you can generally expect similar results in yield improvement from urea, ammonium nitrate, anhydrous ammonia or liquid nitrogen solutions.

MacGregor noted that some problems have occurred in other states with urea, but only when that compound is applied next to the seed, under the soil surface. In some urea, a compound may be formed in processing which is toxic when placed directly next to seed.

In Minnesota, however, MacGregor said such toxicity with urea is no problem, because here urea is applied on the soil surface, where seed injury won't occur.

He added that urea is known to release some ammonia gas to the air — thereby losing some nitrogen. But other compounds lose nitrogen too, although in different forms. In the long run, MacGregor said, urea is as effective a nitrogen fertilizer as any, if used properly.

Merle Halverson, Extension soils specialist at the University, explained why nitrogen is important for Valley grain. Soils here, he said, are fine-textured, are therefore high in water-holding capacity. As a result, they freeze deep down and warm up slowly in the spring.

This slow soil warmup, Halverson continued, means that nitrogen transformation from soil organic matter occurs slowly, compared to soils that warm up faster. Since grain has a good capacity for vegetative growth at low temperatures, they can make good use of added nitrogen which makes up for what the slow-warming soils aren't releasing.

Years of research have shown a rather striking response to chemical forms of nitrogen on grains in the Valley, Halverson said.

Prowlers Defeat Warren 102 to 53 & Halstad 73-63

Coach Jack Junker's Prowler cagers, adding a pair of victories to their win column, boosted their season's record to 12 wins and 6 losses as they concluded their 1962-1963 schedule by defeating the Warren Ponies, 102 to 53, and the Halstad Pirates, 73 to 63, in games played on the local court Friday and Saturday.

And in the process the Prowlers established a new Lincoln high school single-game scoring record when they rolled up their 102 to 53 win over Warren on Friday night. The previous high single-game score was the 92 to 14 win that the Prowlers of 1933 scored over Oklee in a district tournament game in 1933.

In the record-breaking game of Friday night the Prowlers erupted for eight field goals in the opening 55 seconds of play. On the game-opening tip-off, Tom Lindberg tipped the ball to Bob Olson, who flipped the ball to Rick Jensen, who scored from the lane on a jump shot. The Prowlers' zone press worked effectively, and the locals gained possession of the ball quickly and registered field goals, with John Aune hitting a pair of field goals, and Tom Lindberg notching a field goal. And when Bob Olson scored on a rebound, the Prowlers held a 10 to 0 lead before Warren was able to bring the ball across the time-line.

The Prowlers, with Aune and Lindberg doing the major scoring, racked up a 33 to 13 first period lead, and a 57 to 31 lead at the intermission. The Prowlers held an 80 to 41 lead at the end of the end of the third period, and in the final period, with reserves in the lineup, the locals outpointed Warren, 22 to 12, to mark up the century-plus total.

Lindberg, with 25 points, and Aune, with 24 points, were the Prowlers' high-point men.

Ken Carlson, with 13 points, and Jerry Cook, with 12 points, were the high scorers for coach Irv St. John's Ponies.

On Saturday night, on the local court, coach Jerry Mehlisch's Halstad Pirates, with Ron Carlson scoring 21 points in the first half, held a 24 to 20 first-period lead, and 46 to 38 lead at the intermission.

And it was not until late in the third period, with 1:14 to play, that the Prowlers, on Lindberg's field goal, moved into the lead, gaining a 56 to 55 advantage.

Opening the fourth period, Paul Klungness, Rick Jensen, and Bob Olson rolled in Prowler field goals, and the locals went on to open up a ten-point bulge. In the second half, Halstad, showing the effects of the blistering first half of play, and with the Prowlers playing a strong defensive game, scored but 17 points, having nine points in the third period and eight points in the fourth period.

Carlson, a strong and sturdy forward (he was an eight-man football all-state selection last fall), scored 29 points for the game's high-point honors. The Prowlers had four players in double figures, with Olson scoring 17 points, Aune scoring 16 points, Klungness scoring 15 points, and Lindberg adding 12 points.

Wildlife Week to Open March 17th

Agencies Seek Better Control of Pesticides

The period March 17-23 has been designated as Wildlife Week in Minnesota and throughout the nation. Sponsors of the observance—the National Wildlife Federation and the Minnesota Conservation Federation — hope during this week to bring to the attention of the public the need for better means of controlling insects and particularly the need for better control of the use of chemical pesticides.

Roger E. Preuss, of Minneapolis, State Wildlife Week Chairman, has suggested that support is needed for:

More research to find specific, short-life chemical pesticides and effective non-chemical methods of controlling unwanted animals and plants;

Control of pesticide use through enforcement of strict chemical registration, labeling, and application laws and the establishment of local and state boards of review to pass on applications for mass pesticide programs; and

Public decisions as to whether or not publicly-financed insect control programs should be conducted, through public hearings well in advance of the date proposed for the initiation of the control programs.

Mr. Preuss urged that everyone be careful with bug sprays, weed killers and other chemical poisons around their homes, suggesting that they follow application directions closely to avoid damage to birds and other wildlife as well as pets and children.

The veteran Bemidji Lumberjacks squad, with six wrestlers winning individual titles, won the Region Eight team championship, posting a score of 133 points. The Prowlers gained runner-up honors with 69 points, while the Park Rapids Panters earned third place with 64 points.

The Region Eight division champions were as follows: 95-lb. Allen Schoenack, Warren; 103 lb. Duane Sperry, Bemidji; 112-lb. Roger Wilson, Thief River Falls; 120-lb. Larry Gonshorowski, Greenbush; 127-lb. George Fluey, Bemidji; 133-lb. Marvin Gunderson, Ada; 138-lb. George Himmelright, Bemidji; 145-lb. Joe Taylor, Thief River Falls; 154-lb. Tom Detschman, Bemidji; 165-lb. Rod Leyendecker, Bemidji; 175-lb. Cy Bjerke, Fertile Heavyweight Brian Connolly, Bemidji.

WHEREAS, The various ramifications of the aforementioned problems have been under study by this and seven other neighboring Counties, and it has been found, among other things, that the problem is not unique to these eight counties, but rather, peculiar to a great portion of the State and, in fact, lends itself to a State problem rather than to a local problem.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

Records-Are-Made-to-be Broken.

It was a long time ago, back in February of 1933, that the Lincoln high school single-game basketball scoring mark was last broken. That is, until Friday night.

It was in 1933 that coach Roger Dooley's Prowlers, the defending state high school champions, defeated the Oklee Bobcats, 92 to 14 in a game played here. And that 92-point effort, by the teams of Wendell Kielty, Arnold Stadum, Lawrence Nicholson, Ing. Hendrickson, Jack Ward, Paul Dahl and Eddie Froseth, bettered the 88-point production of the Prowlers of 1916.

But on Friday night, on the local floor and against the Warren Ponies, coach Jack Junker's Prowlers turned in a 102 to 53 win. It was one of those games in which the Prowlers had an "on" night, and it was in no sense a "turn it on" game by the Prowler coaching staff. And the setting of the record was done by the Prowler reserves as the first-stringers were on the bench throughout the final period. It was Mark Steen's field goal that boosted the Prowler total to the 100-point mark, and it was Gary Hagen's shot, on a rebound from under the east basket, that tallied the field goal that brought the Prowler total to 102 points.

And Warren also had reserves in the game in the final period, and these reserves were playing aggressive basketball, giving the Prowlers an opportunity to score. The Ponies could easily have gone into a ball-control style of game, and so kept the Prowlers total below the century mark.

Growing Pains

That the States-Dominion bonspiel, and it concluded its seventh annual curling competition on Sunday evening, is an attraction for the area's curling enthusiasts is indicated by the interest that out-of-town curlers exhibit.

When such "name" rinks as the Dale Dalziel rink of Fargo and the Fran Kleffman squad of Hibbing desire entry in the bonspiel (and their entries had to be regretfully declined because the thirty-two rink field had been completed) it means that the States-Dominion 'spiel is gaining in prestige. Dalziel, last season, was the North Dakota champion, and Kleffman, last season, was the Minnesota champion. It's unfortunate that such famed rinks have to be turned down.

And, while there was fine delegation of Manitoba curlers in attendance, there were a number of other Winnipeg rinks that had requested entry. With a field of thirty-two rinks, and four sheets of ice available, the bonspiel has to be limited.

Many Canadians

There isn't much doubt but that the large contingent of Canadian curlers, with the majority coming from Winnipeg, adds color and prestige to the bonspiel. Much of the success of the States-Dominion bonspiel is due to these Canadian curlers.

And speaking of the name, States-Dominion, it was fitting and a coincidence that in the semi-finals draw at 5:00 p. m. on Saturday, in the Hartz Wholesale event, the premier event, the lineup of matches were as follows: Bob Hirt of Bemidji vs. Charles Woods of Winnipeg; Ardell Liden of the local vs. Dibbs Woods of Winnipeg; Hank Monson of Nash, N. Dak., vs. Jim Doyle of Winnipeg; and Bill Johnson of Grand Forks vs. George Hutchinson of Winnipeg. That's surely a States vs. Dominion competition. It was somewhat odd, though, that the American rinks were winners in all of the matches.

The finals in the Hartz Wholesale event was contested by the Hank Monson rink of Nash, with Orv Gilleshammer of Grafton as skip, and the Bob Hirt rink of Bemidji. The Monson foursome won the event, 8 to 2.

Just to refresh the memory, here's the list of first event winners since the States-Dominion bonspiel was inaugurated in 1957: Hal Haluptzok of Bemidji in 1957; Easson Miller of Winnipeg in 1958; Al Patterson of Winnipeg in 1959; Archie Sloan of Winnipeg in 1960; Steve Larson of Fargo in 1961; Ardell Liden of the local club in 1962; and Hank Monson of Nash, N. Dak. in 1963.

Last Chance Hockey

Local hockey fans will have one last chance to witness their favorite game this season when, on Tuesday night, with the face-off slated for 8:00 p. m., the league champion senior hockey Thieves meet a Northwest Hockey league all-star aggregation on the Arena ice.

The Thieves, defeating the Grand Forks Warriors, 9 to 3, at Grand Forks on Sunday night, clinched the Northwest League title, and as champions earned the right to be host for the all-star game.

To oppose the Thieves on Tuesday, the league's three other teams—Roseau, Crookston, and Grand Forks—will each provide a line and a set of defensemen.

Game time is at 8:00 p. m.

Prowler 'B's Tip Warren, Halstad

Coach Joe Mrkonich's Prowler 'B' cagers concluded their 1963 schedule this past weekend, and, with victories over Warren and Halstad, boosted their season's mark to 12 wins and 5 loses.

On Friday night, the Prowler B's, with three players, Rich Nelson, Mark Steen, and Mike Benke, scoring in double figures, defeated the Warren B's, 62 to 37. And on Saturday night, playing the Halstad B's, the locals B squad scored a 46 to 28 win. Steen, with 11 points, led the Prowler scoring.

Roseau Bantams Take State Title

Coach Stan Ostby's Roseau Bantams, flashing a fine passing attack, and getting near-shutout netminding from goalie Jim Nelson, won the eighth annual V. F. W. Minnesota Bantam hockey title, defeating Grand Rapids, 3 to 1, in the finals of the tournament that was concluded here on Sunday afternoon.

In first-round play, in the championship bracket, the Roseau team defeated Fred Babcock team of Minneapolis, 2 to 0, in a game played Saturday morning. In a semi-finals game played at 7:00 p. m. on Saturday, Roseau defeated a strong International Falls club, 2 to 0. Grand Rapids, in an open-round game on Saturday morning, defeated the Joe Irvin team of St. Paul, 3 to 2. In a semi-finals game played on Saturday night, against the Thief River Falls team, Grand Rapids scored a 2 to 1 win. Coach Morris Efteland's local club, in its first-round game, defeated the Rochester team, 3 to 2.

In the championship finals, after a scoreless first period, the Roseau team chalked up a goal at the 3:05 mark of the second period. A fine bit of team play, with Bruce Falk passing to Mike Pelowski, and Pelowski in turn sending a pass to Jerry Halvorson, who dunked the puck into the north goal from just out in front.

Grand Rapids seconds later, scored the equalizer when Dave Christy, a polished player and a strong skater, whipped a long shot from the east side-boards and just inside the blue-line, and found the net.

The Roseau club scored what proved to be the winning goal at the 6:09 mark of the third period when Pelowski, after taking Falk's centering-out pass, backhanded a shot into the goal.

The Roseau club scored an "insurance" goal with seconds remaining when, after Grand Rapids had taken their goalie out of the net in favor of another forward, Pelowski, from near center-ice, sent a shot into the open net, giving coach Ostby's club a well-earned 3 to 1 win.

In a game to determine third place, coach Efteland's local club dropped a 4 to 3 decision to International Falls in overtime.

In consolation first-round play, the Minneapolis Fred Babcock team edged out the Lucky 'Leven club from Minneapolis, 2 to 0. The Lucky 'Leven sextet was eliminated from the championship bracket when they dropped a 7 to 1 decision to International Falls.

In the other consolation first-round tilt, the Joe Irvin team of St. Paul defeated Rochester, 6 to 5.

Routine Check of License By Policemen Nets Burglars

Routine investigation of an auto license number by Thief River Falls police patrolmen Sunday evening resulted in the solving of Polk and Marshall county burglaries totaling more than $4,000 in losses. Four young men from the Thief River Falls and Goodridge areas were implicated in the multiple thefts.

Being detained by Polk and Marshall county authorities are Gerald Wayne, 22, and Frank Donarski, 22, both of Thief River Falls, and twins Marvin and Merton Hutchinson, 23, both of Goodridge. The license plates which led to the arrests were stolen from a junked car.

When apprehended the men admitted burglaries totaling about $3,000 in Marshall county during October and November. Among places burglarized were Skunes Our Own Hardware in Argyle, Cities Service Oil Company in Alvarado, Our Own Hardware and Valley Market in Oslo. Crookston Farmers Union Oil Company was burglarized in the amount of $978 early this year and $290 in cash was stolen from the Irishman's Shanty in Crookston.

Solution of the burglaries began when Patrolmen Ray Bren and Irving Swanson were patroling city streets in the squad car about 11:15 p. m. Sunday. As the squad car approached Main avenue on First street, a 1950 Ford car passed First street and traveled south on Main avenue.

Routine Check

"Who's that?" Bren remembers asking Swanson. To satisfy the curiosity of those who are trained to be suspicious, the patrolmen followed the car and radioed the station for a routine license check. That check revealed that the license was registered to a 1952 Ford Victoria, and the patrolmen stopped the 1950 model car at the south edge of the city.

Driver of the car was Marvin Hutchinson, who told police that the car was owned by Frank Donarski and that he knew nothing of the wrong license plates being affixed to the car. Hutchinson was alone when apprehended. With the plates and car confiscated, patrolmen Wallace Heaton helped Hutchinson lock the car — a routine also followed when police take a vehicle into their custody. Heaton's suspicion was aroused when the car contained what seemed to be more loose items than the average car owner normally carries.

Authorities Confer

Further investigation led authorities to believe that some of the items in the Donarski car had been stolen from Farmers Union Oil Company in Crookston, and Police Chief Harry Dillabough of that

$617 Is Collected for Heart Fund in T. R. Falls Sunday

Some Areas in City Remain to Be Solicited, Says Mrs. R. J. Looker, Chairman

Thief River Falls opened a generous heart last Sunday to nudge the 1963 Heart Fund drive nearer its goal.

Contributions to the community-wide Heart Sunday collection totaled $617.55, it was announced by Mrs. Robert J. Looker, local chairman.

Due to health and weather conditions, some areas have not been completely canvassed but will be shortly, she said.

In addition, "Not-at-Home" envelopes left by volunteers on many doorsteps, are now being mailed to heart fund headquarters and the Heart Sunday total is growing daily. Mrs. Looker urged those who were not home last weekend to mail in their contributions in the special envelope as soon as possible, and join the fight against heart disease.

"The Heart Sunday committee is grateful for the local response to the drive, and wishes to thank volunteers and contributors alike," said Mrs. Looker.

Dollars collected in T. R. Falls will be forwarded to the state Heart Association headquarters, where they will be invested in 1962-63 programs of heart research, education, and community service sponsored by the Minnesota Heart Association.

Johnson To Open New Cab Service

Fred Johnson, custodian for the local school system for the past six years and operator of the Johnson Rest Home, announced to the Times this week that he plans to start a new taxi service in Thief River Falls about March 15.

The business will be operated under the name of Fred's Cab Service and will operate from offices in the Hartz Supermarket building formerly occupied by Olson's Barber Shop. Two new radio-equipped cabs will be used to initiate the service and two additional cabs will be added later if business warrants the addition, Johnson said.

Thief River Falls Load Limits to Be 7 Tons in Spring

With the advent of spring imminent, the Minnesota highway department has issued a list of municipalities of 1,000 or more population affected by load limitations on trunk highways.

A total of 27 municipalities are affected with highways serving them being limited to five-ton, six-ton or seven-ton axle loads. In addition, 198 unincorporated communities on trunk highways will also be affected by weight restrictions. Thief River Falls will have a trunk highway limitation of seven tons.

At Monday Meeting . . .

Owen Tells Rotary of City Utilities

Review of operations in the utilities department of the Thief River Falls municipal arrangement was presented by Morris Owen, superintendent of utilities, at the noon meeting of the Thief River Falls Rotary club on Monday in the Elks club rooms.

President J. M. Roche noted that make-ups had been received from several members absent at the February 18 meeting to give the local club 100 per cent attendance for that date. Al Bacon also gave a report on the Winnipeg good will meeting held last weekend.

Owen summarized activities of the sewage, water and electric divisions of the department of utilities in his discussion of municipal operations. He praised Ole Ness for his management at the sewage plant during a long period of service and noted that Ness would soon be retiring from city service. Some equipment at the plant is becoming outdated, he added, indicating that the city will likely face a major improvement project in the not too far distant future.

Water Department

The water department furnished city residents with 209,424,000 gallons of water in 1962, Owen commented, a decrease of about 44 million gallons from the previous year. Much of this can be attributed to the wet year experienced in 1962. Net revenues were down from $3,936 in 1961 to $3,646 last year.

Operating at capacity the plant is equipped to handle 1,800,000 gallons of water per day, the utilities superintendent said. Since it is possible to process all the water needed by the city in 16 hours, the 24-hour operation of the plant is being discontinued with a resulting cut in the cost of plant operating. Owen also cited Harold Andersen for his long-term service to the city and his efficient handling of the water plant operation.

It was noted that during 1962 the electric department purchased 19,762,092 KWH of electricity from the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation, produced 2,572,200 KWH on the water turbines and generated 39,800 KWH on the city's engines. Use of electricity in the city increased by 375,000 KWH in 1962 over 1961.

Conversion of the city's transmission lines to 4,160 volts nearly doubled the capacity of the local system last year, the superintendent said, and should place the city in a position to offer reduced rates for all-electric home heating. This is likely to be discussed by the city council in the near future, he added. Last year the electric department billed a total of $599,459 for electric service.

Salvation Army Store To Close

Salvation Army store will be closed after Saturday noon since the building housing the store has been sold, according to Envoy Carl Paulson of the local Salvation Army unit. It is hoped that the store will reopen soon at a new location, Commander Paulson said, but attempts will be made to sell as many items as possible before the store closes on Saturday.

CAB Denies No. Central Bid to Over-fly TRF

Airline Says Action Will Prevent Use of Big Convair Planes

The Civil Aeronautics Board this week denied an application by North Central for permission to overfly certain intermediate cities with Convair airliners on its route between Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minnesota, and Minot, N. D., according to Frank N. Buttomer, airline vice president, traffic and sales.

The CAB order, issued in Washington, said the proposed service with the 44-passenger, twin-engine Convairs would be an additional public service burden on the taxpayers and would result in a reduction of service to the intermediate points Brainerd and Thief River Falls, Minn., and Devils Lake, N. D.

"North Central had asked for exemption authority to serve the route between the Twin Cities and Minot, via Bemidji, Minn. and Grand Forks, N. D., overflying Brainerd, Thief River Falls, and Devils Lake on one dairly round trip because airports at these three cities are not yet adequate for Convair operations," Buttomer explained. "As soon as these airports were brought up to operating standard for the larger aircraft, they would have been served with Convair flights."

"In denying Convair service on the Twin Cities-Minot route," he said, "the Board also make it impossible for us to start Convair service between Minot and Omaha via Bismarck-Mandan, N. D.; Aberdeen, Huron, Sioux Falls, S. D.; and Sioux City, Iowa, because the first segment is an integral part of the overall operation and is essential for proper aircraft rotation on the Omaha route."

Buttomer expressed disappointment over the board's decision which, he stated, would deprive nine Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska cities of the benefits of Convair service.

Mayor Uses Veto To Block Council on Bid

OPERETTA presentation at Lincoln high schol provides much more activity for participants than learning lines and music. In the above photo the stage committee is busy at work preparing background scenery for "The Wizard of Oz" which will be presented March 8 and 9 at the school auditorium. Special costumes for the operetta are also being made with countless hours of preparation being invested by music students in the production which is under the direction of Bryant Ulseth.

Council Accepts Veto with 4-3 Split Decision

Mayor Orin Green used his veto power at an adjourned meeting of the Thief River Falls city council Tuesday evening to void a resolution adopted at the regular meeting of the city governing body last week. The mayor's veto was supported by a 4-3 vote of the council members.

In a letter to the council, Mayor Green noted that the acceptance of a bid from Northern Chevrolet for a new truck for the street department should not be allowed since it did not conform to specifications in the call for bids. The bid had been accepted last Tuesday by a 4-3 vote of the council.

This Tuesday a resolution was presented to accept the bid of the Anderson Motor company of Minneapolis, represented by Jack Forkenbrock, for a Dodge truck. The Anderson bid was the lowest conforming bid received by the council at a total price of $3,179.71. Alderman E. B. Benson, Donald M. Olson, Milton Relerson and Arthur B. Christianson favored the new resolution with Dr. A. E. Jacobson, Roy Lee and Roy Jorgenson opposing.

Bids were also opened on Tuesday for a new truck and equipment for the city's electric department. Contracts were let to Tunberg Motor company for a Ford chassis at $2,568 and Charles Olson and Sons, Inc., Minneapolis, for an aerial boom and insulated bucket at $6,823 and digger at $656.

Air Union Requests

Roy Arneson, representing Local 664 of the Municipal Drivers and Helpers Union, appeared in behalf of the local's request for wage increases. A plan for hospitalization benefits was referred to the insurance committee and some discussion was held on other wage requests. Action was tabled to the March meeting of the council.

Bids for collection of garbage in the city on a lease basis were called for the March 19 regular meeting of the council. Aldermen feel it would be to their advantage to have the collection handled by an independent contractor rather than by city forces.

Several phases of airport operation were reviewed, with considerable attention devoted to the acquiring of land for runway extension and clear zones. Robert Wurst, city attorney, was authorized by the council to notify land owners in the affected areas that condemnation proceedings would

Barzen Heads Park Board 25 Years

DEVOTED service to the Thief River Falls park board for more than 25 years has been given by Roy M. Barzen, a man dedicated to the task of providing this city with a system of adequate parks and recreation. Largely through his efforts the city's park areas have been developed. If he has his way, and he usually does with the passing of time, city residents will be able to look forward to a more beautiful city with supervised playground activities.

By Marvin Lundin
City Editor

There was a time when Roy M. Barzen was not interested in city parks and beautification. That was the period of time from when he was born until he learned to talk. Since that time, however, he has combined talk and action to provide his native Thief River Falls with parks and recreation facilities of which all residents can be justly proud.

A short time ago the perpetual planner with the husky voice was reelected as president of the city park board. It marked the start of his 25th year in that capacity, having been appointed to the board in 1937 to fill a vacancy and elected to the presidency only a few months thereafter.

In 1937 the city had quite a bit of park property—far too much for the meager $600 which was appropriated annually for the city's park program. Total acreage for city parks now is estimated at 50 acres with a city budget for parks and recreation in 1963 totaling $29,839. Many is the city council which has been "sold" on the needs and advantages of parks through the persuasive efforts of one Roy Barzen.

Personal History

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Barzen on March 23, 1900, Roy M. Barzen completed local schools, attended St. John's University at Collegeville for a year, entered World War I at age 18 and returned a year later and obtained a Bachelor of Science degree in commerce from Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wis., in 1921.

Roy's father came to this area in 1896, operated a saloon for several years and then sold the saloon to purchase a mill. Upon graduation from Marquette, Roy worked at the Farmers and Merchants State Bank here for a few months and then joined the Montana-Dakota Grain company office in Minneapolis. In 1934, together with his mother and Mathias Jr., he purchased Math Barzen and Company, Inc., at Minneapolis.

Married to Marie Gross of Minneapolis on June 28, 1930, he made a trip to this area in the fall of 1934 to purchase hay and straw. He found a need for the grain business here and has made Thief River Falls his home since that time.

Underdeveloped Area

When "Barz" became involved in park board work in 1937, the city had the current Elks Park area, part of what is now Tindolph Park which included a ski slide, Block 38 which is located north of St. Bernard's school, Block 28 which is now the east side playground between Tindolph and Crocker avenues north of First street, and the present tourist park which was then sentimentally referred to as "Lover's Lane".

Block 28 had been purchased from Charles Knox in 1904 for about $4,700. About the only park work done was mowing of grass on the Elks park and Block 38 and local garden clubs' work on flower planting. Now the park board has two full-time employees and as many as 10 during the summer months.

Progress on such an intangible thing as park value does not come easy. Take for instance the work involved in developing Tindolph Park into a swimming area and building the bath house. "Barzen's folly, they called it," Barzen said. "It took me 10 years to get that bath house built and it wasn't until two o'clock in the morning before the city council and I finally reached an agreement." During the summer the beach and bath house are used by hundreds of youngsters and adults each day.

Public Opinion

Editor Times;

The American Legion Auxiliary memorial program since 1921 has been symbolized by the Veteran-made Flanders Poppy. On Poppy Day we remind Mr. and Mrs. Citizen to wear one in remembrance. But this is only half the story. The other 364 days of the year, our "Living Memorial" is the story of our hospital service, and we serve in 438 hospitals, which include all of the 172 VA hospitals. It is the story of our help to the veterans and their families. Rehabilitation totaled $2,973,000 last year alone. We have an endless story of children helped, nearly 4,000,000 of them, and that help was more than $7,000,000 in 1962.

Our "Living Memorial" lives even in its creation, for we paid 7,000 veterans $300,000 to manufacture our bright poppies in 1962.

In our local unit we help sponsor the gift shops in St. Cloud and Minneapolis VA hospitals, furnish baskets for the needy at Christmas time, and countless child welfare and rehabilitation needs in our home community.

This is our "Living Memorial".

Legis Lative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

The Health and Welfare committee, of which I am a member, is conducting hearings on a bill to provide medical assistance to the aged — a problem which is bound to receive increasing attention in our state as it has in other sections of the nation.

The measure before our committee would furnish medical aid to persons over 65 who are not on Old Age Assistance but who are in financial need of medical care. It is designed to implement the Kerr-Mills Act in Minnesota and to enable the state to take advantage of the financial assistance available for medical care for our senior citizens.

These hearings, like all those conducted by legislative committees, provide interested people an opportunity to state their views. They enable committee memebrs to become fully informed before they act on a bill which they are considering.

The purpose of the Kerr-Mills Act is to make medical care available to men and women over 65 who lack the financial resources to pay for a very costly illness. Such a catastrophe poses a major problem to elderly persons living on retirement pay, savings and other types of fixed income.

The law also takes into account if a person faced with this situation falls within a certain category he generally is providing for his normal living expenses. Without the financial aid available to him under the Kerr-Mills provisions, he might have to sell his home, his car and his other assets to pay off a very large medical bill. But with this aid available, he could keep these possessions because the law says that to be eligible he doesn't have to be completely indigent.

He would have to pay the first $200 of the medical bill, and the balance would be taken care of under the Kerr-Mills grants-in-aid program.

To qualify, a single person can have up to $150 a month income and a married couple can have $200 a month. He can hold an equity in $15,000 in real estate. His cash assets can total $750, or if married, he and his wife can have $1,000.

These provisions make it obvious that the Act does not require a person to be completely destitute to receive medical care as is the case under the Old Age Assistance program.

The Kerr-Mills Act, by helping to pay the big medical bills, eliminates the necessity of elderly people applying for Old Age Assistance because a very serious illness has exhausted their financial resources. They are able to continue their independence and ability to provide for their usual living expenses.

The program which the bill contemplates in Minnesota would cost $13 million annually. Federal funds would provide $10.5 million of this figure and state-county money would make up the rest. In most counties the state-county share would be on a 50-50 basis.

It is easily apparent why there is so much interest in this subject when we consider that Minnesota has approximately 350,000 citizens over 65, or about 10 per cent of the population. Of this number, some 42,000 are being helped by Old Age Assistance. About 4,000 of these OAA recipients are listed as under OAA "for medical care only." This latter group are "medically indigents" who logically could be cared for by the Kerr-Mills aids program.

I hope that this article has provided you with an understandable explanation of the purpose of this program. It was prepared with this thought in mind.

Roy Barzen To Head Park Board for 25th Year

Another project "that nearly got me run out of town" was the construction work done to provide the amphitheater at the tourist park, he said. This was done to provide a staging area for the historical pageant when Thief River Falls held its centennial observance in 1951. The project cost about $2,000 for cutting trees and bulldozing to shape the area. Much of the work was done with line-of-sight engineering since no funds were available for professional assistance.

Cooperate with State

When the Third street bridge was built, the state highway department developed the Boy Scout park areas which are now cared for by the local park board. Because the city has cared so well for this park, the highway department has given assistance to the city on other projects. About $22,000 in state funds are to be spent for developing the Squaw Point park between the Red Lake River and Eighth street on which work was hampered last year due to adverse weather. The state also planted about 300 trees last year on highway 32 north of Ninth street and on the east and west approaches to the city on highway 59.

Another major park expenditure was the construction of the shelter and rest area at the tourist park at a cost of about $10,000. This park is used by hundreds of campers each year, many of them Canadian visitors who spend several days or a couple weeks here instead of traveling on to other tourist areas. A wading pool at the park will be developed this summer to take some of the pressure off the Tindolph Park swimming area.

Each of these improvements has been looked upon by Barzen as a personal challenge and accomplishment. "Any person who owns property in this city should look upon parks as a means of protecting their investment," Barzen believes. "Park and recreation areas contribute in no small way to providing a community which is attractive to prospective residents, thereby maintaining property values in the city."

A number of years ago Barzen tried to resign as president of the baord. For six months the board did not have a president. "They won't let me quit," Barzen states. It isn't difficult to see the reason why.

be initiated if the appraisal values for their lands are not accepted.

Grant Taxi Licenses

Two licenses to operate taxi service in the city were approved. Separate resolutions granted licenses to Paul Sullivan, operator of the present taxi company, and to Fred Johnson who plans to purchase two new cabs for such service. Approval was also given to an application for a beer license by Mrs. Howard Comstock at the Viking Tavern.

In attempting to provide public, off-street parking on the west side of the city, the council ordered an appraisal of a 100-foot tract of property on Knight avenue behind the city's municipal liquor store. The lot is offered for sale and is being considered as a parking area by the city.

Cigarette licenses were approved for Froseth's Food Market, Viking Tavern, Maves Standard Service, Park Drive-In, city arena, municipal liquor store, Fountain Cafe and American Legion Post 117.

Routine Check by Police Nets Area Burglars

city, with the company manager, came to Thief River Falls to identify some of the merchandise. Investigation also revealed that two tires on the Donarski car had been stolen from Maves Standard Service in Thief River Falls.

Working on the possibility that the men could be involved in the Marshall county burglaries, local authorities called Oscar Erickson, Marshall county sheriff. Sheriff Erickson and Orrin Skunes, owner of Skunes Hardware at Argyle, drove to this city and Skunes identified tags on some of the merchandise as bearing his code numbers.

Under questioning by law enforcement officers, Donarski admitted several of the burglaries and the other men were implicated. Donarski, Marvin Hutchinson and Gerald Wayne were involved in the Marshall county burglaries. Donarski and Merton Hutchinson took part in the Farmers Union Oil company theft at Crookston and Donarski stole the $290 in cash from the Irishman's Shanty.

About half the loot taken in the burglaries has been recovered by the authorities. It was cashed at a number of different places in the Thief River Falls area, Goodridge area and at East Grand Forks.

Corporations Are Reminded of Tax

Calendar Year Groups Must File by March 15

George O. Lethert, district manager of internal revenue at St. Paul, reminded today that all calendar year corporations should file their federal income tax returns by March 15, 1963.

He stated that there was some misunderstanding of the due date of federal corporation tax returns, inasmuch as individuals, partnerships, and estates and trusts do not have to file until April 15.

In addition to calendar year corporations, said Mr. Lethert, foreign resident corporations as well as special election to be taxed as a partnerships and individual proprietorships who have made the corporation must file by March 15. Failure to file by this date will subject the corporations to penalties and interest for delinquent filing.

Corporations may, he went on to state, secure an extension of time for filing the return if they file Form 7004 by March 15 and pay at least 50 per cent of the balance of the tax due.

Oslo Trips Goodridge to Win Subdistrict

The Oslo Bobcats, behind the fine all-round play of their veteran guard, Dave Michalski, defeated the Goodridge Huskies, 64 to 57, on Wednesday night in the finals of the sub-district tournament that was concluded at Red Lake Falls. In a game to determine third place in the tourney, the Fisher Flyers, having a decided height and weight advantage, defeated the Plummer Cardinals, 64 to 52.

Oslo, Goodridge, and Fisher now advance to the District 31 tournament that will begin on Monday, March 4, in the North Dakota U fieldhouse at Grand Forks. Oslo, the sub-district champions, will meet East Grand Forks at 8:30 p. m. on Monday; Goodridge, the runner-up team, will play Crookston at 7:00 p. m.; and the Fisher Flyers, champions of the Polar conference and third place winners in the sub-district tournament will play Thief River Falls at 4:00 p. m. on Monday.

In Wednesday night's championship tilt, the Huskies, with Dick Saurdiff looping in three field goals and a free throw, and with Duane Lillevold adding a pair of field goals, moved into a 16 to 12 first period lead.

But coach Ken Theige's Oslo club, with Michalski directing play smartly, and connecting on his outside shooting, outpointed the Huskies, 18 to 11, in the second period to gain a 30 to 27 lead at the intermission.

Dropping in eight of ten chances from the free throw line, and scoring four field goals, the Bobcats pulled away to a 46 to 40 lead in the third period. In the final period Oslo had a one-point margin in scoring, 18 to 17.

Michalski, with 20 points, was the game's high-point player. Dick Saurdiff, with 16 points, led the Husky scorers.

In first-round play in the subdistrict tournament, and played on Monday, Oslo defeated Alvarado, 52 to 37; and Plummer defeated Red Lake Falls, 31 to 27. In the semi-finals, on Tuesday night, Oslo, with a rally in the final minutes, edged out Fisher, 58 to 52; and Goodridge defeated Plummer, 60 to 30.

Sport Fishing Is Big State Activity

Department Says Anglers Spend over $100 Million

Figures just released by the Minnesota Conservation Department show that sport fishing is both a popular recreation and an important business in the state.

There are approximately 2 million acres of water in Minnesota's inland lakes, another 2 million counting the border lakes plus 15,000 miles of streams and rivers.

Over 1.3 million licensed fishermen including 300,000 non-resident anglers use these waters each year. They catch a total of 50 million fish each year.

Surveys show that Minnesota fishermen go fishing an average of 10 times a year and catch an average of two fish per trip.

The bait business has grown so large that the gross receipts from this venture exceed that from all commercial fishing in the state including that from Lake Superior, Lake of the Woods and inland waters.

Fishermen spend over 100 million dollars annually in Minnesota according to figures compiled by the conservation department's research and planning section. Nonresidents contribute over 30 million dollars of this amount.

This represents around 40 dollars spent per acre of fishing water by sport fishermen. This is a substantial return considering that the conservation department is currently spending an average of one dollar per acre of water to maintain and improve fishing.

Moose Population Increases Over 1962 Air Count

Flying Survey Is Made At Agassiz Refuge and State Management Areas

Increase in the moose population for the fourth straight year and a derease in deer herds were noted in the annual inventory of big game animals taken recently at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge and the Elm Lake and Eckvoll state wildlife management units which adjoin the refuge.

Pilot-biologist John Winship and assistant managers Ralph Town and Dave Olsen made the count from the air. Combined federal and state acreage of big game habitat included in the survey includes approximately 76,800 acres or 120 square miles.

This year a total of 520 deer and 136 moose were counted in comparison with 532 deer and 134 moose in 1962, 962 deer and 130 moose in 1961 and 918 deer and 128 moose in 1960.

Agassiz refuge itself had 394 deer and 80 moose in 1963, 380 deer and 68 moose in 1962, 690 deer and 104 moose in 1961 and 620 deer and 74 moose in 1960. The Elm Lake and Eckvoll units had 126 deer and 56 moose in 1963, 152 deer and 66 moose in 1962, 272 dere and 26 moose in 1961 and 298 deer and 54 moose in 1960.

In contrast to last year, men making the survey reported all animals seen to be in good condition. No dead deer or moose were observed. "With light snow cover and ample browse, these animals should winter in excellent condition," stated Herb Dill, managers of the Agassiz refuge.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

How Not to Win Friends

I received a clipping in the mail the other day, from Los Angeles, and it was Jim Murray's column in the Los Angeles Times. Murray, apparently, is the hockey writer for the Los Angeles paper and he accompanied the Los Angeles Blades team on its swing into the Canadian provinces. And these are some of his comments:

"Hockey is Canada's national sport but hockey in Calgary is minor league and the populace can bring in the graceful roughnecks of the big league by a mere flick of a television channel. Calgary can watch Jean Bellveau and Henri Richard and the other assorted high priests of the game in its living room as major league hockey, like major league baseball, fattens up at the expense of its own young.

"The band playes 'God Save the Queen', and the game is played under massive twin portraits of Elizabeth and Philip. The newcomer is struck again with the bafflement of a robust young country nearly 200 years after the American revolution tying itself to the meaningless anachronism of a monarchy half a world away and half a millenium out of date. But Canadians consider it bad form to question it, suggesting the loyalty is as much stubborness as habit, two qualities Canadians acquire along with their first pair of skates.

"Curling, a strange housewifely sport in which a contestant throws a huge hunk of iron that looks like something you'd use to stake a wagon horse to a sidwalk with, is almost as popular as hockey. A meet is called a 'bonspiel' and the iron ball is sped on its way by a crew of characters with brooms furiously sweeping the ice before it. At first viewing, you don't know whether to laugh at them or cry for them. It seems to have as much 'sport' as beating a rug but everyone keeps a straight face and, if you try, you can, too."

Murray, it appears, was trying too overly hard to be funny, but from the comments in the Canadian papers he "missed the broom" by plenty. If fact, a writer for a Regina paper, gave this terse advice to Murray: "Yankee, go home."

Travelling League at Family Bowl

The four-team — Thief River Falls, Hallock, Lake Bronson and Roseau — traveling bowling league will hold its league matches at the Family Bowl here on Sunday.

The recently-organized league is operating on a twice-a-month schedule, and Sunday's matches here is the third to be held. Matches will get under way at 1:00 p. m. on Sunday, with a second set of matches scheduled for 3:00 p. m.

The Thief River Falls club, and it is probable that the local roster will have Lloyd Samuelson, Wally and Jesse DuChamp, Marv Washnesky, and Carl Onkka in the lineup, is holding a high rank in the league standings.

Carl tells me that the bowler to watch, though, is Clarence (Pa) Stites of Roseau's Pa and Ma alleys. Stites is a southpaw with an unorthodox delivery, taking off on the wrong foot, etc. But he is very effective.

A Popular Win

When the Hank Monson rink of Nash, N. Dak. scored their 8 to 2 win in the finals of the Hartz Wholesale event in the States-Dominion bonspiel here Sunday afternoon, the win proved popular.

The Monson rink, with Hank Monson at lead, Montelle Boone at second, Ray Holt at third, and Orville Gilleshammer at skip, have participated in several previous States-Dominion 'spiels. The four members of the rink are all farmers in the Grafton area, with Monson and Gilleshammer having extensive acreages.

The rink, and this is perhaps due to the influence of Gilleshammer, has the appearance of being professional. The team members wore maroon and black sweaters, and wore caps in the same color pattern. These colors, incidentally, are the club colors of the Strathcona curling club in Winnipeg.

Yes, Hank and Monty and Ray and Orv will always be welcome here.

Engineers Group Gives Trophy to Agassiz Chapter

The Lake Agassiz chapter of the Minnesota Society of Professional Engineers came home from the annual state engineers convention held in Minneapolis February 20-22, with the state membership trophy. Chapter President Lloyd Ofstedahl, Polk county surveyor of Crookston, received the prize for best membership increase as the group had a 17.8 per cent membership gain over the past year.

Vice President James Walker and chapter director, Herb Dale, both of Bemidji, and Secretary-treasurer, Walter J. Forney, East Grand Forks, were all on hand to accept the state award. The state society president, D. H. Stewart, of Thief River Falls also a member of the chapter, presided at the two-day business session.

Thieves Lose to League All-Stars

The league-champion senior hockey Thieves and the Northwest Hockey league All-Stars turned in an interesting game before an appreciative crowd of hockey fans here Tuesday night as the All-Stars scored a 5 to 4 win over the locals on the Arena ice.

The Thieves will leave for Coleraine on Friday afternoon where, on Friday night, they will meet the Eveleth Rangers of the highly-rated Arrowhead league in a state amateur Class A tournament game. With several members of the Thieves' squad unable to make the Friday trip, because of employment or business, the local club will add two or three players from the Crookston Pirates and Roseau Cloverleafs. Among the players considered are Tony Schmitz and Eddie Derosier from the Pirates, and Dave Wesloff of the Leafs.

In Tuesday night's exhibition here, the Thieves, on Cal Offerdahl's backhanded shot into the north net from a difficult angle, gave the Thieves a 1 to 0 lead at the 8:31 mark of the first period. The All-Stars knotted the game at 1-all at the 13:31 when Craig Simmons of Grand Forks, with Derosier assisting, scored at the 13:31 mark. Roseau's Jeff Vacura scored at 15:41 for the Stars; and Simmons unassisted tally at the 17:48 mark, gave the All-Stars a 3 to 1 first-period lead.

Tony Schmitz banged a rebound into the south net in the opening minute of the second period, paring the All-Stars lead to one goal, 3 to 2. Monty Markstrom gained the assist on Schmitz' tally. But the Stars, on Jerry Wentz's marker at 2:46 regained their two-goal lead.

Del Offerdahl, on assists from Larry Poole and Dale Wennberg, scored at 16:25, and the Thieves' trailed by one goal as the period ended.

In the third period, Roseau's Wayne Hites, with a shot that was partially screened, scored at 5:58, and this tally proved to be the winning margin as the Thieves, on Wennberg's goal, closed out the game's scoring at the 8:29 mark.

Taxpayers Group Hits at 'Narrow Margin' in State Finance Plans

An analysis of state budget and financing plans for the coming biennium, issued today by the Minnesota Taxpayers association, called attention to "an extremely narrow margin between estimated revenues and proposed spending" and to "the uncertainty of the Congressional action looked to by the state government to provide a substantial portion of its new money needs."

The analysis, prepared by Harold T. Miller, research director of the association, has been distributed to legislators, newspapers and interested taxpayers as a supplement to the association's biennial statistical compilation: "Fiscal Facts for Minnesotans." Highlights of the analysis show that:

Recommended direct appropriations of $673 million for the "five major money bills" for the next biennium are up $106.8 million. Of this increase $76.5 million is intended for educational activities, $19.9 million for a new pay plan, merit increases and for new employees — other than those for the state colleges and university — and $10.3 million for other purposes. (Of the total appropriations recommended, $38.2 million is to be financed by moneys other than the general revenue and income tax school funds.)

Recurrent open appropriations recommended in these two funds total $76.8 million — up $28.5 million from 1961-63.

According to the budget estimates, present taxes and receipts credited to the general revenue and income tax school funds are calculated to produce a gross sum of $682,881,688 — an increase of $86,486,901, or 14.5 per cent over receipts for the current two-year period. In addition, $7 million is expected through cancellations of unused appropriations, $6 million from "available balances," and an additional $23 million increase in state income tax revenues is estimated in anticipation of a reduction in Federal corporate and personal income taxes.

In addition to the formal budget proposals the Governor, in an accompanying message to the legislature, recommended additional spending of nearly $5 million from estimated 1963 balances. Included were a 2.5 million paid life, medical, hospital and surgical insurance program for state employes, $2 million for continuing the conservation works projects in Northeastern Minnesota, and $350,000 for an increase in the Workman's compensation revolving fund.

"The Governor's budget sets an extremely narrow margin between estimated revenues and proposed spending," Miller said. "Estimated income exceeds proposed outgo by less than $500,000 — less than one-tenth of one per cent of the total resources contemplated.

"This margin of budget-balancing safety is dwarfed by the estimated $23 million included in the financing schedule by reason of an anticipated cut-back in Federal corporate and personal income taxes. The uncertainty of the congressional action looked to by the state administration to provide so substantial a portion of its new money needs poses a difficult problem for state legislators who face the responsibility of balancing the budget and avoiding deficits.'"

FU Exchange Meets in St. Paul March 4

Local FU Oil Co-op to Be Represented by Two Men

Several persons from this area will join a throng of some 1,000 Minnesotans heading for St. Paul this weekend for the 32nd annual meeting of the Farmers Union Central Exchange, March 4-6.

The delegation from this community will include B. F. Beiswenger and Edgar Naplin, who will represent the Farmers Union Oil Co., one of the 280 locally-owned Minnesota co-ops through which the Central Exchange serves farm families in this state. The Central Exchange is a regional manufacturing and wholesale farm supply cooperative operating in nine states from the Great Lakes to the Pacific.

Topping the list of speakers is Sen. Quentin N. Burdick of North Dakota, who will talk at the annual banquet, March 6. Sen. Burdick is expected to report on the status of farm legislation in Congress and to discuss the upcoming wheat referendum.

Big Tree Entries Being Submitted

Contest Is Sponsored by Izaak Walton League

Entries are being received daily by the Minnesota conservation department for the "Big Tree Contest" sponsored by the Minnesota chapter of the Izaak Walton League.

William Aultfather, league president, said several large trees have already been entered, however, there are still several specis of trees for which no entry has been received.

He said that although some species may be hard to identify in the winter, there are several trees, notably the evergreens or conifers, that are readily identified. To date, no entries have been received for Norway pine, white and black spruce, jack pine and tamarack.

He also cautioned persons sending tree measurements to be sure and give the measurement of the circumference 4½ feet above ground level. Some entries have been received giving the height at 4 feet and one person sent in a measurement taken six inches above the ground.

Some of the trees for which entries have been received are American and slippery elm, silver maple, white oak, white pine, basswood, paper birch, box elder and cottonwood.

Rules for the contest can be obtained by writing to: Big Tree Contest, Minnesota Conservation Department, division of forestry, 331 Centennial Office Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

$3,000,000 Bridge Contract Is Let for Minneapolis

Approximately $5.7 million in highway construction contracts were let February 15 by the Minnesota highway department in St. Paul. The project is construction of the new double deck Washington avenue bridge over the Mississippi river near the University of Minnesota.

Another sizeable apparent low bid was submitted by the Hallett Construction Co., Crosby, lowest of seven bids with $1,658,244 for 9.1 miles of concrete paving, gravel base and plant-mixed bituminous shoulders on TH 90 between Petran and Austin.

Sick Pay Exclusion on Income Tax Explained

(This is the ninth in a series of articles on income taxes made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar Association, Public Relations Committee.)

If you were sick or were injured during 1962 and under a wage continuation plan, your employer continued to pay your wages or make payments in lieu of wages while you were away from work, you may be entitled to exclude from your gross income the amount you received as pay during part or all of the period you were away from work. The law also provides the health and accident insurance coverage provided by your employer or the payment of medical expenses by your employer is not includible in your gross income.

Your W-2 record of total wages paid will generally show the amount of wages which you received during the entire year without consideration of possible exclusions based upon this provision of the law. The sick pay exclusion is allowed whether or not you itemize your personal deductions. This exclusion is limited, however, to $100 of wages received per week.

If you were injured, the period during which the exclusion is applicable begins on the first day of absence and terminates on the date you return to work.

If, however, you are absent from work due to illness, the sick pay exclusion starts on the eighth day of your absence unless you are hospitalized for at least one day. If you are sick and are hospitalized, the computation of the sick pay exclusion begins with the first day of your absence and terminates with the day you return to work.

The computation of the sick pay exclusion must be based upon the facts of your actual employment and the amount of wages your employer actually pays you while you are absent. Thus, if you are sick on Saturday and Sunday and normally do no work on these days, no sick pay exclusion can be taken for these days. It is allowed to you only for those working days when you are not at at work if your absence is the result of sickness or injury.

The sick pay exclusion is allowed on both your Federal and Minnesota tax returns. You must, however, substantiate your right to the exclusion by submitting adequate information to justify the amount of the exclusion taken. This information normally includes a statement as to your normal work week, the actual days you were absent, the rate of pay you received from your employer, the nature of your illness or injury and the actual amount you received as pay from your employer during the period of absence.

The Internal Revenue Service provides Form 2440 to assist you in making the proper computations of the sick pay exclusion.

Newfolden Legion Asks 2-Way Radio

Post 427 Seeks Funds To Equip Police Car

To permit the Newfolden police car ambulance to be in constant contact with police, sheriff's departments, highway patrol and fire departments in the area, the Otto Knutson Post 427 of the American Legion in Newfolden has started a fund for the purchase of two-way radio equipment to be installed in the car.

The post went on record at a recent meeting to sponsor a donation-type fund raising campaign to purchase the radio. The police car is the first vehicle going to all fires and emergency calls in that community. A radio would put the village in immediate contact with Thief River Falls police, the state highway patrol, sheriff's departments at Pennington, Roseau, Kittson and Marshall counties and area fire departments.

Persons interested in contributing to the two-way radio fund may send their donations to Stanley Holmans, Newfolden, or by subscribing to lists which have been placed at most of the Newfolden business places.

Bill Would Limit Interstate Route Highway Signs

The state of Virginia has become the 17th state to sign an agreement to conform to the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads standards on advertising adjacent to Interstate highways.

Similar legislation has been introduced in the Minnesota legislature and hearings have begun on the proposal.

In addition to regulating billboard advertising adjacent to rural portions of Minnesota Interstate highways, passage of this legislation would mean approximately $2,000,000 additional federal aid funds to the state.

Reviewing The Facts

Next Tuesday, March 5, will bring another school election. This will be the fourth time, in a comparatively short time, that the voters of the district will be called upon to express their wishes on a proposed expansion program.

In two previous bond issue elections the voters, by strong majorities, rejected the recommendations of the school board. And at the annual meeting of the district the voters replaced two members of the old board by electing new members who favored less expansive, and less expensive, solutions for our district's classroom needs.

In this fourth referendum on this question, the basic issue is still the same. The ballot will divide, and confuse, the question, but the questions that are being submitted still offer no compromise. Our only choice is to take it, as a package, or leave it.

As the question involved in this election remains substantially the same, our position on the question is also the same as it has been in the previous elections. In the previous elections; we have expressed our reasons why we believe the proposals should be rejected. The objections we expressed then are still valid objections. The proposed expansion calls for more than we can afford and more than we need.

In the school year of 1957-58 we were a happy family, and school officials expressed their appreciation for the manner in which the community had responded to a classroom need. They would be able to reduce the number of pupils per teacher and everything was wonderful. That was just a few years ago, the school year of 1957-58 when the new Washington and the new vocational school facilities were made available.

Since that time we have provided more classrooms by construction and by rental. And since that time there has been a comparatively small increase in elementary and secondary school enrollment.

As we have pointed out before, the enrollment from the school year of 1957-58 to the school year that ended last June, increased very little. At the elementary level there was an increase of only 43 pupils, but there was an increase in the number of elementary teachers from 40 to 49. At the secondary level there was an increase of 84 students, and the number of teachers increased from 46 to 59.

These, according to the records, are facts, and, in our opinion, they are pertinent facts. And, in our opinion, they are sufficiently pertinent to justify another look at the overall operation of our school district and a check on the capacity and the efficiency of its management.

Our doubt on these points is strengthened to some extent by the attitude of the management toward the old Washington. The old Washington is somewhat like the old overcoat that many of us have had, that was getting a little shabby but, because of the cost of a new one, we decided we would wear it another year. While that old overcoat was not stylish, it still kept us warm, and, until we could afford a better one, it still served a useful purpose.

One thing about this "Old Washington" question that bothers us a little, is how the school officials can justify closing four "Old Washington" rooms because they are unsafe and then rent space for additional classrooms in buildings that probably do not measure up to the safety standards of the old Washington?

Well, to bring the argument to an end, we are convinced that this whole question of need should have a thorough scrutiny by friends of education and economy. The two objectives have many interests in common.

The Right To Doubt

A recent issue of the Saturday Review contained a report by George Reavey on a sensational book that was extremely critical of the Soviet government under Stalin and that was published in one of the Soviet Union's major literary monthlies. According to Reavey:

"This book is more than a surprise. "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" is an event of social, political, and literary importance. Its repercussions may well be incalculable, for the author, Alexander Solzhenitsayn, strips away the accumulated mythology of the Stalin era."

The story tells of life in a forced-labor camp and, says Reavey, "With terrible irony the author manages to convey that corruption and degradation were not confined to the world-in-prison that engulfed millions, but had become deeply ingrained in the whole Soviet society."

Commenting on the report editorially, the Saturday Review stated:

"Perhaps what is most significant about the publication in the Soviet Union of "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" is that the Russian people today are prepared to believe it. Ten years ago it would have been regarded as a monstrous lie; even so short a time as five years ago it would have been profoundly doubted. But the Russian people are ready today to take the book at face value. They may be deeply stunned, even bewildered, by the revelations concerning the pulverizing hardships of prisoners at the labor camps under Stalin, but they no longer doubt that these things actually happened."

This is encouraging evidence that some progress has been made in Russia toward a greater freedom by the individual as a rational being, giving him some right to doubt. If Stalin, who had been a godlike figure to the majority of the people, were actually an oppressor and a tyrant, then possibly other leaders with dictatorial power might also be evil men.

Giving to the Russian people the right to doubt could be a long step forward in the direction of political freedom as we understand it.

Selling the Stories

Sixteen astronauts of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration are considering a $3 million contract to sell their personal stories to a publishing house. There is some controversy as to the propriety of such a deal.

There was a similar argument when the Eisenhower administration approved a contract under which a magazine paid half a million dollars for a report on the astronaut's experiences in orbiting the earth, about which the New York Times made the following comments:

"The heroism involved in being an astronaut is obviously more lucrative than other tyes of heroism in connection with military service, including heroism which may contribute more to the nation's survival than a voyage into space . . . We do not recall any similar lucrative contracts having been signed by those who fought and died in Korea, or Guadalcanal, or Iwo Jima, or the beaches of western Europe and Anzio."

We can see no good reason why anyone, in public or private life, should not be permitted to sell a story revealing their personal experiences and reactions during an interesting adventure, providing, of course, that what they revealed would not be contrary to the public interest. The market value of such stories drop rapidly as the adventure becomes more commonplace. We do not begrudge the astronauts their financial gain or their glory. They put on great acts and probably should be paid somewhat in proportion to box-office receipts, as we pay home-run hitters.

Peace On Earth

Maybe we should lay our outer-space problems on the shelf for a few years and concentrate on trying to make this world of ours a little more livable. We are drifting dangerously again. In all parts of the world there are explosive situations that could suddenly involve our civilization in another struggle of catastrophic proportions.

The most discouraging thing in the world's present political picture is the obvious fact that we are making no progress in the control of atomic weapons. On the contrary the prospects for a reasonably safe international control system are diminishing. We not only are quarreling with our enemies but now our friends are squaring off against each other and us.

The following observations by the National Observer point up the growing danger and the difficulties involved in any attempt to replace chaos with unity.

"Beyond an agreement, if it is reached, lies a question central to the whole issue of atomic weapons control: What to do about nations that do not now possess nuclear capabilities but who may develop them in the years ahead.

"France, determined to become a nuclear power, has shunned he test ban talks. Red China, though lagging in nuclear technology, is known to be working on atomic weapons. Other nations, scientists say, could develop these weapons if they had the money and the ambition.

"Experimental testing is the route to perfecting atomic weapons, so it's unlikely that a nation set on having its own arsenal would abide by an agreement among the great powers to cease testing. National ambitions, in short, could make a test ban meaningless.

"The urgency of working out a test ban is not diminished by the difficulties yet to be faced. As Mr. Kennedy noted the other day, progress in this area is made one step at a time.

"In the 1920s, when the United States sank several of its own battleships to comply with a disarmament treaty, other nations with lesser naval might, notably Japan, were free to build up their power. They did, and the world war of the 1940s underscored the folly of the twenties.

"This same kind of risk is inherent in a test ban treaty. By standing pat, the nuclear powers of today—the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union—may penalize themselves while other countries build up atomic arsenals. If this is permitted to happen, a test ban would trigger an explosion as deadly as the weapons it seeks to silence.

Interesting Opinions

"Our present assessment rules work against sound redevelopment. They simply aid the person who lets his property run down and hurt the person who improves his property. Their effect is exactly the opposite to "encouraging anyone to work with the city to produce the most beautiful and efficient buildings on their land."

Polio Immunization Before Next Summer Is Advised by Leader

Communities planning mass immunization clinics against polio are urged to complete the full series of three doses of the Sabin oral polio vaccine before the beginning of the summer months, the polio season. The reminder comes from Dr. D. S. Fleming, director of the division of disease prevention and control, Minnesota department of health.

"Minnesota has made remarkable progress in setting up community-wide polio clinics since the vaccine became available," Dr. Fleming states. "However, much still remains to be done before the beginning of summer if all susceptible persons are to get the benefit of the vaccine protection."

Types I, III, and II should be given in that order to adults of all ages as well as children, with four to six weeks between feedings. This is a change in order from 1962 when supplies of Type III vaccine were limited until late in the year, making it necessary to give Type III as the last in the series.

The important thing is that every one has the full series, since it is necessary to take all three to get protection against all three forms of polio, according to Dr. Fleming. If a large enough percentage of the population is immunized, he states, the disease may be eradicated eventually.

Widespread community campaigns are strongly encouraged during the fall, winter, and spring seasons. Use of the vaccine during these months, the non-polio seasons lessens the chances that problems will come up in cases associated with wild polio virus. This is also the period when wild polio strains have usually shown a limited capacity to spread.

Summer, in contrast, is the polio season and infections caused by the wild virus could be attributed to the vaccine. Also, the fact that there are more other viruses present in the intestinal tract in the summer could reduce the effectiveness of the vaccine.

The interference factor is the main reason that Type III is usually fed before Type II. Type II lasts longer in the intestinal tract and its presence can interfere with the establishment of maximum protection against Type III virus.

Type I vaccine gives protection against the type of polio generally responsible for 85 to 90 per cent of the paralytic cases. However, in recent years, Type III virus has become increasingly important as a cause of the disease. All three types of virus can be present in an area at one time.

Gamble Robinson Has Net Income of $1,243,371

Parent Firm of Local Distributor Has 146 Per Cent Net Increase

Net income of $1,243,371 during 1962 was noted by Pacific Gamble Robinson company, according to J. G. Scott, president of the firm. One of the company's distribution offices is located in Thief River Falls as part of the North Dakota division.

Income in 1962 was equal to $1.03 per share on 1,209,339 shares outstanding and compared with $504,545 or 42 cents per share on 1,185,626 shares in 1961. The 146 per cent increase in net was realized despite a 2.3 per cent drop in sales which last year totaled $191,508,059. Reduction in operating expenses and a better margin of profit on sales was attributed to the rise in earnings.

During the year four new supermarkets were opened and one old store was sold. This year it is planned to open seven new stores. Last year there were 46 supermarkets in operation on December 31.

Taxes during the year totaled $3,437,000 or $2.84 per share—2.7 times the amount of the company's net income. Net working capital was $19,395,000 or $16.04 per share. Book value on the stock at the end of the year was $16.88 per share.

Highway Dept. Safety Winners Announced

The Minnesota highway department today named the award winners for the 1962 departmental industrial safety and motor vehicle safety contests.

Two district offices and three maintenance areas went through the year without a "preventable" employee motor vehicle accident to attain the highest rating, and three district offices and one maintenance area kept a "perfect record" to claim awards in the industrial safety division.

Winning districts in the motor vehicle safety contest were District 2 at Bemidji, and District 8 at Willmar, both winners of an award for 1961. The top three maintenance areas in this same category were those with headquarters at Marshall, Bemidji and St. Cloud.

The Twin Cities Metropolitan, Golden Valley and Willmar districts, and the maintenance area with offices at Virginia qualified for the top awards in industrial safety by having no "lost time" industrial accidents. A mishap involving a motor vehicle is not classed as an industrial accident.

The Brainerd and Bemidji districts ran a close second with each recording only one lost time industrial accident for the year, and maintenance areas at Mankato and Windom, and the central shop at St. Paul, also recorded only one lost time mishap each.

Plaques, commemorating the performances, departmental safety awards and National Safety Council safe drivers awards, will be presented to the various districts and maintenance areas and employees, at safety meetings in April.

The highway department's safety award program has ben held annually for the last 32 years, and has set a pattern for other state award safety programs in the country.

praying hands

these hands in prayer with fingers gently poised as ten cathedral towers in humble supplication gently now reposed.
hands that have soothed
the infant's cry, or, in love, caressed
the wrinkled brow of care, now lifted up in prayer:
these praying hands
are yours and mine;
in church,
at work,
at home,
wherever you may be,
hands that speak unfettered
by space, or haste, or time.
dear lord,
we ask thy guidance in hour of trial for, we are thine!

Friday and Saturday

LHS Music Students Will Present "The Wizard of Oz"

Music students at Lincoln high school will present the operetta, "The Wizard of Oz" for public viewing on Friday and Saturday at 8 p. m. in the school auditorium. The musical fantasy is under the direction of Bryant Ulseth, vocal music instructor at the school, with Myrna Weckwerth as student director.

Tickets for the production are on sale from cast members and at Larson Music company and will also be on sale at the door. Reserved seats are $1 each with 75 cents being charged for general admission and 50 cents for students.

Considerable time and expense has gone into the production of the stage show with elaborate costuming and stage sets being arranged. Nancy Newton heads the costume committee with Linda Noel as stage manager. Lighting will be handled by Robert Steitz, Bruce Gilbertson and Allan Aasby.

Story of the operetta follows the adventures of Dorothy, a Kansas school girl with a wild imagination, who arrives at the kingdom of Oz when her house is swept up in a tornado. Her adventures carry her through contact with the many residents of the mythical kingdom as she seeks the Great Oz to arrange her transportation back to Kansas.

Humor is interspersed with musical selections to provide a full night's entertainment by the local students. Janet Thorstenson is cast in the role of Dorothy and is given excellent support in her leading role by the supporting cast.

Orchestration for the operetta is provided by the Lincoln high school orchestra under the direction of James Solsten. Others assiting with the production are Mrs. Raymond Ulferts and Sam Porter, square dance routine; Richard Kotchevar and Dale Knewt-

Crippled Children Society Seeks Names of Needy

Many Services Available To Children and Adults Thru State Association

Names of crippled children or handicapped adults who need help are being sought by Mrs. Sigurd Folkedahl and Mrs. Herbert Halverson, Thief River Falls, co-chairmen of the Pennington county chapter of the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc. Names may also be sent to Minnesota Crippled Children, 2004 Lyndale Av. S., Minneapolis 5, Minn.

The society's services aid persons disabled at birth, by accidents and by disease and are available to all regardless of type of handicap, race or creed. The annual crippled children's appeal served 4,875 crippled children and adults last year.

Services offered were Camp Courage, Minnesota's only camp for crippled children; rehabilitation services at facilities in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Virginia and Montevideo; sheltered employment at Rochester Ability Building Center; equipment loans; and research, scholarships and education.

The organization seeks the means to restore crippled children to usefulness in the community, Mrs. Folkedahl said. Practical help for the crippled is sought to aid them in becoming wage earners, independent of their families and tax-supported relief.

"When you give to Minnesota Crippled Children, consider it an investment in human beings," Mrs. Halverson added.

Need Permission for Students To Attend Tournament

School Requires Permit And Chaperon for Those Attending State Event

Letters are being sent to parents of Thief River Falls high school students this week in anticipation of some of them attending the state high school basketball tournament. Twin Cities hotels and motels will refuse reservations for all students unless local school administrators furnish the names of approved students and chaperons.

"We, of course, assume no responsibility for the students while enroute or in attendance at the tournament," the letter to parents states. "While we have a good deal of faith in our students, we know the dangers in travel and the opportunities to become involved in undesirable conduct are exceedingly great for those in attendance.

"It is therefore very important that any parent giving permission for his student to attend has complete confidence in the chaperon, and feels certain that the chaperon will take his responsibilities seriously." Parents are asked to sign an approval slip contained on the letter and to designate the chaperon responsible for the student.

FHA Reviews Emergency Loan Program

Supervisors Discuss Means To Best Serve Needs of Area Farmer

Supervisors and assistants from 12 northwestern Minnesota counties gathered in Thief River Falls Thursday to review emergency loans offered by the Farmers Home Administration, according to Leslie Matts, Thief River Falls, district supervisor.

Arthur Hanson, state director, and A. Donald Hanson, chief of the emergency loan program, were present for the meeting. Emergency loans have been made available due to drought in 1961 and extreme moisture in 1962 to farmers in Lake of the Woods, Roseau, Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk, Norman, Clay, Wilkin, Beltrami and Clearwater counties.

Matts was in charge of arranging the meeting which included a review of the program and discussion on how to consolidate FHA procedure and authority in order to be of the most assistance to farmers in the area. Temporary transfer of personnel from other areas is available if needed to assist county supervisors in this area with work in the emergency loan program, it was pointed out at the meeting.

In addition to the emergency loan program, which would provide short-term loans at three per cent interest, other programs can be used to be of assistance to farmers affected by the poor crop conditions of 1961 and 1962. Emergency loans are available for nearly all purposes except refinancing of secured chattel and real estate debt. Assistance for these purposes is available under other existing FHA programs.

Farmers are encouraged to study their needs and make their applications for loans as soon as possible, Matts told the Times following the meeting. An orderly series of requests will make it possible to handle loans in a prompt and efficient manner and avoid inconvenience to both farmers and supervisors.

In the past year and one-half a total of $2,536,950 has been loaned under the emergency program in the seven-county area which Matts supervises. Total loans under all programs for that time were $7,395,635 with $4,173,965 being loaned since July 1 of 1962. Assistance has been given to about 1,200 farm families in the seven-county area during that period.

School Bond Election To Be Held Tuesday

Polls will be open from 3 p. m. to 9 p. m. Tuesday, March 5, at room 111 in Lincoln high school for balloting in a special school bond election. Two questions will be included on the ballot. The first would authorize the board of education to spend not more than $1,195,000 for construction of a new junior high school. The second authorizes the board to spend an additional amount not exceeding $300,000 for a 10-room elementary school only if the first issue is authorized.

Last year voters of the district were called upon to vote on an issue of $1,595,000 for a new junior high school and elementary school on two different occasions. In the first election a total of 3,104 ballots were cast with 1,750 opposing and 1,354 in favor —a margin of 396 votes. A petition was presented to the board to hold the election again and in the second vote on May 21 the issue lost 1,789 to 1,003 — a margin of 786 votes.

Since the second defeat of the proposal, members of the school board have considered a number of possible building alternatives to the issue presented about a year ago. Analysis of alternatives proved either too expensive or inadequate, the board determined, and the present proposal represents the same basic plan as first offered with the exception of a $100,000 cut in total cost.

Question To Be Voted

Part one of the question to be voted Tuesday is as follows:

"Shall the School Board of Independent School District No. 564, Minnesota, be authorized to borrow money and issue the negotiable coupon general obligation bonds of the District in an amount not exceeding $1,195,000 for the acquistion and betterment of a junior high school?"

Part two of the question states: "If the authority requested under question No. 1 above is granted, shall the School Board of Independent School District No. 564, Minnesota, be further authorized to borrow additional money and issue the negotiable coupon general obligation bonds of the District in an amount not exceeding $300,000 for the acquistion and betterment of an elementary school and for the betterment of existing school buildings?"

Method of Voting

Voters may vote either yes or no on either question in the boxes provided on the ballot for indicating the voter's choice. A simple majority of "yes" votes on the first question will result in a call for bids on the junior high school. A majority of "yes" votes on the second question is also needed for new elementary school construct-

NFO President Is Absent at Meeting

Grounded at an Iowa airport due to fog and icy conditions, the national president of the National Farm Organization was unable to appear as scheduled at a multi-county meeting of the organization held Saturday afternoon at the National Guard Armory in Thief River Falls. About 350 people from Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Marshall counties attended the meeting.

In the 20-minute talk to the gathering, Staley outlined the four steps he believed necessary to provide a profitable price for farm products. He stated that farmers must organize to form a solid front; all production of all farms must be brought under control; bargaining power of farmers must be made felt through holding actions; and farmers must set their own production goals and their own prices for their products.

Irving Beyers, Red Lake Falls, president of the Red Lake county NFO chapter, presided at the meeting. Hobert Gundy, Hibbing, one of the NFO organizers who has been working in this area, spoke to the crowd while arrangements were being made for the telephone connection with president Staley. Several other area county chairmen also spoke at the combined meeting.

The Library Corner

by Virginia Gjernes

"The Quiet Room" (nice soft sound, isn't it?) is not the name of a new book. It is, instead, the name of exactly what it says—a room. A room provided exclusively for adult patrons of Medina, N. Y., Public Library. The average adult is neither "fer ner ag'in' " the student using the public library as much as the student needs to use the library. . . but the average adult patron of the average public library does enjoy browsing in relative silence and it honestly seems, at times, that teenagers make more noise being quiet than an adult does being down right noisy.

"The Quiet Room" is one town's answer to a nation-wide problem. Your own library does not have a "quiet" room. . your library has one room, not counting the basement which doesn't have much to offer library patrons in the way of comfort. Apparently Medina, N. Y., has money as well as library patrons, but we're grateful for the patrons and maybe our "Quiet Room" will come later. Teen-agers do become adults, eventually, and the very best time for them to learn to use their library to advantage is while they are young, for the good-reading habits and the knowledge they acquire stay with them always.

That is why adults, and librarians, must move to one side, just a little, for the young of today, for they are the leaders and the good citizens of tomorrow. It is because of their schools and their library and their parents that these intelligent, well-informed teen-agers do become the kind of adult citizens capable of leading the world and our country and teaching the next generation . . either at school or at home.

And, speaking again of adults and their likes and dislikes, there is a chilling new novel by that thrilling writer Philip Wylie, on the shelf of "new fiction available" at Carnegie. Wylie, one of the most sensitive and perceptive observers of human beings, has evidently given a great deal of thought to what might happen if the world powers should engage in nuclear conflict. If there's much doubt in you mind as to just exactly what might be the outcome of such a shattering event, read "Triumph" and while it is a figment of the author's imagination, just the flip of a switch somewhere in the world could make it honest-to-goodness fact, not someone's fancy. Read it and shudder.

"Here to Stay" puts the reader in another frame of mind. The author, John Hersey, takes one of the first laws of human nature, the will to live, and tells eight engrossing and true stories about individuals faced with posible destruction. His main characters range from a widow to the few survivors of Hiroshima. The problems they face are as different as the situations which caused them. It is best not to begin this book unless you have the time to read it to the end because once it is started it is as impossible to put it down. It's, almost as if your hands are glued to the cover.

For the stay-at-home traveller there's "North to Adventure" by John T. Rowland which has so many exciting episodes you'll be as tired from reading it as if you'd actually accompanied the sailors on the cruises. Actually the time of the adventure is from 1908 through 1912 while the author was a student at Yale. The trips he tells about with such enthusiasm and such drama took place during his summer vacations. This book is so exciting it best be read, truly, by the stay-at-home traveller because it will make anything less than a trip to the moon seem rather commonplace.

Alan Fry tells the true story of ranching in British Columbia in "The Ranch on the Cariboo". This is the story of really-truly cowboys and the hardships and rewards that accompany their labors. If you like the great outdoors and enjoy learning of the struggles faced by others, this is it.

Events to remember and dates to circle are March 16 through April 11, for each Saturday during that time there will be a "Story-Telling Hour" at your library. Students enrolled in first, second and third grades are invited to attend. Bertha Hastad, assistant librarian, will be the narrator, assisted by Girl Scouts.

During April will come "Library Week". Keep watching for all the nice things that will happen then.

Oratorio Slated at Bemidji Mar. 10

Handel's 'Messiah' to Be Given at State College

Handel's Messiah will be presented at Memorial Hall on the Bemidji State college campus Mar. 10 at 8 p.m. by the Bemidji Civic Oratorio society.

The oratorio will be the final event in the third annual Bemidji State College Festival of Arts. The chorus is directed by Carl O. Thompson, with the orchestra under the leadership of Howard Michens, both of the BSC faculty.

The Bemidji Civic Ontario Society was organized in 1938 and has presented 22 oratories since that time. This is the ninth production of "The Messiah." The society has ten oratorios in its repertoire and each performance is recognized as a musical highlight of the Lenten season.

Soloists at this year's performance are Irvin Nordquist, John Miller, Mrs. Henry Dyck, Mrs. T. H. Megorden and Mrs. Kenneth Wilson. Members of the BSC chorus, the Bemidji high school chorus, and individual members of many church choirs of the Bemidji area join in singing the oratorio.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the kitchen of
MRS. JULIAN C. LENDOBEJA

The second of the prize-winning recipes at the Feed and Seed Show is this one from a farm homemaker whose name is perhaps quite familiar to a number of readers. Mrs. Lendobeja says that this recipe is practically foolproof, adding that her husband makes it as well as she does. Husbands, consider yourselves challenged!

JELLY ROLL

1 cup sifted cake flour	1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder	5 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt	½ teaspoon vanilla

Beat eggs until thick and lemon-colored. Add sugar gradually, then the salt and flavoring. Beat well. Fold in sifted flour with the baking powder. Pour into a shallow pan, 9 x 15 inches, ungreased. (Mrs. Lendobeja uses her cooky sheet.) Bake 20 minutes at about 350 degrees, or until delicately browned. Remove from oven, and run knife along edges of pan to remove the crust which may have formed around the edge. Turn cake out onto a damp cloth. Spread generously with jelly, and roll carefully. Cool on rack. when cool, dust with powdered sugar.

Mrs. Lendobeja's sphere of influence, far from being restricted to her farm home in the Kratka community, is only centered there. Her husband is a grain and beef farmer. Having never lived on a farm previous to her marriage, his wife found that her new environment proved both interesting and challenging, and she states that it is greatly enhanced by the activities offered through the extension agents.

They are members of St. Bernard's Catholic Church, a CCD study club, and she is also active in ladies aid. They likewise belong to PTA, and both she and her husband are leaders in 4-H, in which she directs the clothing projects. The Ladyslipper garden club of the Kratka community includes them in its membership also.

They have two sons, Peter, a freshman in Lincoln high school, and Paul, who attends Washington school as a fifth grader. The boys in the family love hunting and fishing, their mother says.

It seems incredible that in the full schedule of this homemaker, there should be time for hobbies, but she has those also. Among her leisure-time pursuits are sewing, knitting, baking, music, reading, and entertaining friends. In the summer they make much use of the outdoors, doing much living and cooking under the open sky.

HAPPY HOMEMAKING

PENNINGTON COUNTY HOME AGENT

National 4-H Week is March 2-8 and the 4-H members of Pennington county will be observing this week. As you go shopping, take a look in the store windows. Several clubs will have window displays.

Since 1914, when federal legislation was passed to help finance and conduct 4-H club work, nearly 700,000 different young people in Minnesota have participated in the "learning by doing" program. On a nationwide basis, nearly 23 million young people have been 4-H'ers.

As of now Pennington County has 487 members which is an increase over last year. Any boy or girl interested in joining 4-H can do so up to May 1.

Did you know that there was organized club work for rural boys and girls many years before the term 4-H or the design of the four H's on the cloverleaf came into use? The design of the 4-H emblem was adopted in 1911. But the 4-H emblem was used on posters, literature, uniforms and in other ways many years before the term "4-H" was used to designate the clubs. Not until 1925 was the term 4-H universally applied to clubs.

Minnesota and Kansas lead the nation in re-enrolling 4-H members and in the length of time 4-H members continue in the program. More than 75 per cent of 4-H members re-enroll each year. The median age of 4-H'ers in Minnesota is 13.2 years as compared to 12.4 nationally. Average tenure in both Minnesota and Kansas is 3.3 years as compared to a national average of 2.7 years.

Do you know the difference between a natural cheese and a pasturized process cheese food? Chances are you don't. Yet, the terminology should be your clue. A cheese is exactly that. A cheese food is other things too. It has moisture and milk solids added—and sometimes such flavorings as pimentos, fruits, vegetables and meats.

So, if you're looking for the most cheese per pound, you'll select a natural or a pasturized process cheese, which is a blend of natural cheeses. If you want a specilty item — one that's milder, easy to spread and quick to melt, you'll choose a cheese food, or possibly a cheese spread.

Cheese experts in the U. S. Department of Agriculture say it's entirely a matter of preference. But you should know what you're buying. So, read the label and know the terminology.

Questions & Answers

ON THE SCHOOL BOND ISSUE TUESDAY, MARCH 5th

QUESTION: Where are the new schools to be built?

ANSWER: The schools will be built on a 35-acre tract in the southeast quarter of Thief River Falls.

QUESTION: Why is the school to be located on this site?

ANSWER: This land is now owned by the school district and has been paid for as authorized by voters of the district in 1957.

QUESTION : What buildings are to be constructed?

ANSWER: A junior high school designed to accommodate 650 students and an adjoining 10-room elementary school.

QUESTION: Why are the two schools to be built together?

ANSWER: In this way the 2 schools will be able to utilize common facilites such as a cafeteria, gymnasium, heating plant and library.

QUESTION: What happens to our mill rate if only the junior high school is approved?

ANSWER: The increase will remain at 10 mills, since the board of education favors the paying of the smaller bond issue in a shorter period of time.

QUESTION: Is there an advantage to building both schools in one project?

ANSWER: Yes, there are several advantages. (1) A better bid on a bigger contract; (2) better interest rate on a larger bond issue; (3) building costs continue to rise and both schools are needed now; (4) elimination of elementary rentals.

QUESTION: Will there be any transportation furnished for west side students to the new junior high school?

ANSWER: Yes. Buses discharging rural students at Northrop, Washington and Lincoln will pick up the junior high students at those points.

QUESTION: How can a 10-mill tax increase pay off a $1,495,000 obligation?

ANSWER The 10 mill increase, plus the elimination of rentals and the scheduled reduction of the district's currently outstanding bonds will combine to make this possible.

QUESTION: How does Thief River Falls school cost compare with other schools offering vocational training?

ANSWER: The 10 districts with vocational schools have an average cost per student of $383. Our cost is $357. This cost could be reduced by elimination of rentals — a maintenance cost the other schools do not have.

QUESTION: How does Thief River Falls elementary and secondary cost per pupil unit compare with other schools in the state?

ANSWER: Excluding the vocational school, our cost per pupil is $331. The state average is $330. The low for the state is $246 and the high is $588.

QUESTION: Why do we need this building program?

ANSWER: In the past 25 years our enrollment has increased 79 per cent while the number of classrooms has increased only 29 per cent. The present need is obvious.

QUESTION: Will there be an increase in maintenance cost when the new schools are built?

ANSWER: The Citizen's Committee recognizes that some increase for maintenance is to be expected in coming years, but that the increase will be in direct proportion to the increase in school enrollment.

Marshall ASC Okays Emergency Practice

Mr. Edward A. Johnson, chairman of the Marshall county ASC committee, stated that an emergency ACP practice has been approved for Marshall county farmers. The description of the practice is as follows:

The practice is applicable only on those farms where some of the acreage of legumes and/or grasses intended for use as hay or pasture and constituting a part of the crop rotation system for 1961 and/or 1962 was severely damaged or destroyed by drought or excessive rains or floods and reestablishment of a vegetative cover is essential. The county committee shall determine the number of acres to be reestablished in eligible legumes and grasses so that the crop rotation system in effect prior to the disaster may be restored or improved.

Seedbed preparation—A suitable seedbed must be established by plowing, disking, or springtoothing, and performing such other operations as are necessary for the establishment of a satisfactory seedbed.

The area seeded must be protected from continuous grazing until a stand is established. Periodic grazing to hold down the companion crop is permissible. The vegetative cover must remain on the land until August 1, 1964.

Eligible legumes are alfalfa, red clover, biennial sweet clover, Ladino clover seeded in a mixture, and alsike.

Eligible grasses are bromegrass, crested wheatgrass, orchard grass, timothy and meadow fescue.

Seeding requirements — A minimum seeding per acre of (1) 6 pounds of legumes or mixtures thereof, or (2) a 6-pound mixture of legumes and grasses, or (3) 4 pounds of alsike alone, or (4) 6 pounds of grasses. An application of commercial fertilizer is required unless it is established to the satisfaction of the county committee that it is not needed. The application of fertilizer, for which Federal cost-sharing is authorized must be made at or before the time of seeding.

Maximum federal cost-share: (a) $2.00 per acre for seedbed preparation, seed and seeding, (b) 4 cents per pound for the application of not less nor more than 45 pounds of available plant food per acre if approved by the county committee. (Nitrogen alone will not qualify for cost-sharing).

ion. The first question must be approved before the elementary school can be built, according to the wording of the questions.

To finance the proposed construction, the board of education has favored a 10-mill increase in the district's tax levy. This increase, combined with the elimination of rentals and the scheduled retirement of existing debt of the district, has been calculated by bonding consultants as sufficient to meet the bond obligations. Repayment of the bonds would be scheduled over a 28-year period.

Formation of a Citizen's Committee on Eduction has taken place and the group has prepared and distributed factual information on the needs of the district and costs of the proposal. The group is headed by Robert Flynn and Lowell Swenson as co-chairmen.

Eggs Included in Plentiful Foods

Other Items Recommended to Shoppers for March

A variety of plentiful foods in March will help homemakers plan meals to tempt lagging appetites and meet Lenten restrictions, according to Mary Ryan, extension consumer marketing specialist at the University of Minnesota.

Eggs top the U. S. Department of Agriculture's list of plentiful foods. Since March is National Egg Month as well as Good Breakfast Month, Miss Ryan suggests that homemakers feature eggs for family breakfasts during cold, blustery weather. Take advantage of the good supply of eggs to serve omelets, souffles, custards, meringues and other family favorites using eggs. University extension nutritionists point out that eggs provide protein of the highest quality, are a source of vitamin A and contribute to the daily needs of B-vitamins and minerals. Yet one egg yields only 80 calories.

Other economical, protein-packed foods in generous supply this month are pork, cottage cheese and peanut butter.

Consumers should find a good selection of fresh pork cuts at attractive prices during March as well as specials on pork loins for the freezer. Reports indicate that hog slaughter from March through June may be near record levels. Pork roasts, chops and steaks prepared in a variety of ways should make especially good eating during the month.

Locally grown red potatoes, dry onions, Texas carrots, Western head lettuce, radishes, sweet potatoes from Louisiana and New Jersey are the most plentiful and reasonably priced fresh vegetables in Minnesota markets, according to the Federal and State Market News Service. Grocers' shelves will also have plenty of canned corn.

John E. Seltz to Be Graduated at St. Cloud College

John Edward Seltz, son of Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Seltz of Thief River Falls, will receive a bachelor of arts degree at the close of the winter quarter March 15 at St. Cloud State College.

Nearly 75 students completed their four-year degree programs at the college during the session, according to President George F. Budd.

Bakery at Fergus Falls Maintains Branch in T.R.F.

Park Region Bakery to Serve Jung's Routes On Delivery from This City

Sale of delivery trucks by Jung's Quality Bakery in Thief River Falls to Park Region Bakery of Fergus Falls, Inc., was announced recently by Walter Jung. Jung's Bakery has been sold to make room for the new J. C. Penney company building which will be erected this summer.

Thomas C. VanMeter, president and general manager of Park Region Bakery, stated that his firm has hired local driver-salesmen to operate the trucks purchased by his company. Six representatives of the bakery will remain in Thief River Falls to conduct local operations.

VanMeter and his mother purchased the Park Region Bakery at Brainerd in 1930, and in 1934 moved to Battle Lake after selling the Brainerd plant. In 1936 the Home Bakery of Fergus Falls was purchased and Park Region Bakery began its expansion program.

By the fall of 1946, VanMeter said, several new wholesale routes had been added to serve the surrounding territory. They purchased a factory building and moved the large bakery operation there. Now the bakery serves 31 wholesale routes and has branches in Moorhead, Brainerd and Thief River Falls. A branch manager, several driver-salesmen and a small fleet of delivery trucks is located at each of these branches.

Bread and other baked goods now being baked by the Park Region plant at Fergus Falls are transported during the early morning hours of each week-day to distribution centers in the bakery's semi-trailer transports. Bakery goods are then delivered to local stores from these centers the same day.

"We will certainly do our best to serve Thief River Falls and the surrounding communities intelligently and faithfully," VanMeter said.

Morkassel Cows Place High On Production Test

Two registered Guernsey cows in the herd of Morkassel and Son at Warren have recently completed official production records, according to the American Guernsey Cattle club of Peterborough, N.H. Both were on twice daily milking for 305 days with testing supervised by the University of Minnesota.

Morkassel Dynamic Grace, a three-year-old, produced 10,627 pounds of milk and 503 pounds of butterfat and Morkassel Footprint I Martha, a two-year-old, produced 13,501 pounds of milk and 533 pounds of butterfat.

EGG-ZACTLY how good a meal of all-Minnesota produced foods can taste was demonstrated to 310 leaders of Minnesota's government, education, industry and agriculture in St. Paul, Feb. 26. Gov. Elmer L. Andersen appears pleasantly convinced as he accepts a forkful of butter-scrambled eggs from the dairy industry's Princess Kay of the Milky Way, Kathleen Hjelle of Argyle. Still in chef's attire after personally doing the honors at the skillet is Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Duane Wilson. The breakfast, sponsored by various commodity group organizations in cooperation with the department of agriculture's division of marketing services, was served to point out that agriculture still is Minnesota's No. 1 industry. The menu included tomato juice, scrambled eggs, turkey-and-pork sausage links, muffins with honey-butter, fried potatoes, milk and beet sugar.

Progress!! Progress!! That's the cry we hear from the citizens every time we run a questionnaire. Everybody wants progress.

What the community citizens want is admirable but, unfortunately, many people would rather have someone else achieve it. Too many of us fail to realize that 98% of all community development takes place from within — not from the outside. In other words, it is what you and I as progressive individuals do with our brains and our own bare hands that will actually accomplish something.

For instance, today we have finally reached "D-DAY." You and I simply have to decide whether we are for or against this school bond issue. When we walk into that election booth we must vote "YES" or "NO." There will not be any gray area in between. In this case the power of decision is Thief River Falls key to progress. We either vote "yes" for adequate and progressive elementary, secondary and higher education — or we vote "no" in favor of deteriorating standards, crowded conditions, poorly educated students and a demoralized community.

To me, the answer to the previously confused question is now very clear. We must give consent and confidence to the school board we elected to proceed. We must vote "Yes." Now that we understand the facts our better judgement can and will solve the problem.

The progress we cause this week should make us proud when we walk down the street as we Shop and Trade where Bargains Are Made — Here in the Heart of Northwest Minnesota — Thief River Falls.

Our LAND

Appearing in newspapers of the Minnesota Editorial Association through the cooperation of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and the University of Minnesota Institute of Agriculture

Waterways and terracing in conjunction with tile drainage have worked well in Steele County asparagus fields, according to Carl Norman, manager of the asparagus farms for the Owatonna Canning Company. "We intend to follow these practices wherever we establish asparagus on sloping ground," he said. Orville Risser, SCS work unit conservationist at Owatonna, helped set up the soil conservation practices for the asparagus fields.

Decreased cost of field operation is not the only advantage of reducing tillage. Indiana agricultural engineers conducted experiments for five years with controlled rainfall on a five per cent slope to compare minimum tillage with conventional tillage. They found that more water infiltrated and less soil eroded using all three different types of minimum tillage with cultivation as compared to conventional tillage with cultivation.

"A farm pond, livestock watering pit, diversion terrace, field windbreaks, open drains and crop rotations all help me utilize every acre of my farm to the best advantage," says George Lande, cooperator with the Traverse SWCD. SCS technicians helped Lande develop a basic conservation plan for his farm and advised on the installation of conservation practices.

Most Minnesota land needs conservation treatment of one type or another, according to the National Inventory of Soil and Water Conservation Needs recently released. Roughly 15 million of the 22 million acres of cropland which still will be in production in 1975 now needs some type of treatment, according to the report. About three-fourths of the pasture land of the 3,158,000 expected to be in use in 1975 needs conservation treatment and about half of the state's 16 million acres of forest and woodland need some type of conservation treatment.

"I was skeptical about what the SCS technicians were doing when they laid out my diversion and contour strips in 1956," said Werner Sand, cooperator with the Stearns County SWCD. But after a wet year like 1962, Sand said, he realized that the technicians knew what they were doing. He says he had the only fields for miles around which suffered little or no erosion. His neighbors now are developing similar programs.

Fertile soils don't just happen. Most farmers have one or two fields where crops do better and yield higher than the rest of the farm. When fields aren't too wet or dry, it's the higher fertility level of the soils that makes the difference. A high fertility field had soils that provide all needed nutrients in a form available to plants. Usually you can trace the reason for a particularly fertile field. For example, it may be closer to the farm yard and thus have received more manure through the years than the rest of the farm.

Ninety-nine out of 100 Corn Belt farmers now use some form of minimum tillage even though many of them do not realize it. Wyoming Experiment Station reported five methods farmers use to cut corn tillage costs: Spring or fall plow—work it lightly and plant. Fall plow—Cultivator just ahead of planter. Deep disk twice (fall and spring only)—plant. Fall plow—disc lightly and plant in one operation. Spring plow—plant in one operation.

"Give roots a place to grow instead of letting them down." That's the motto of Henry Fiene of Freeborn. Fiene installed more than 20,000 feet of tile on his farm at an average depth of four feet in Webster Soils. Technical advice was from Elmer Miller, SCS work unit conservationist at Albert Lea.

Times Camera Records Ten Pin Action at Family Bowl

Winter activity in the Times area, on a competitive basis, finds an outlet in curling and bowling. The photos here were snapped at random during action in the Friday Mixed League at Family Bowl last Friday evening. Although most bowlers are concerned about team placing and individual average, they generally agree that mixed bowling (two couples on a team) on Friday night is in a "fun league". It was in this league that Bess Lang, one of the city's most ardent women bowlers, rolled her highest series a week ago with 617 and her highest league game with a 244. Since none of the bowlers knew they were going to be "shot" for this series, and since Friday's action was in a "fun league", we trust the bowlers pictured will accept their publication in the same spirit.

The district titleists will participate in the Region Eight tournament that will be played on the UND fieldhouse court in Grand Forks on March 15 and 16.

A new champion is certain to be named in District 30 and Region Eight this season as last season's district 30 and regional champion, the Ada Vikings, was eliminated from district play by Twin Valley, who scored a 68 to 58 win over the Vikings in sub-district competition.

The Bemidji Lumberjacks, the Warren Ponies, and the Kennedy Rockets, district winners last year in districts 29, 31, and 32, are entered in this week's tournament play. And two of these teams, Bemidji and Kennedy, are given high ratings in their respective districts.

Halvorson Rink Wins City Bonspiel Title

In a finals match that was not concluded until 11:40 p. m. last night, and which required an extra end, the Harold Halvorson rink, by a 9 to 8 score, defeated the Jon Larson rink to win the city bonspiel title.

It was the second extra-end match of the evening for the Halvorson foursome as, in a semi-finals match, against the Reuben Jorde rink, it was a take-out rock by Harold Halvorson on his last shot in the eleventh end that gave the Halvorson rink a 10 to 8 win.

The Jon Larson rink played their semi-finals match, against the Glen Haugen rink, on Sunday afternoon, and scored a win.

Enroute to the title, the Halvorson rink, with Frank Passa at lead, Ken Ose at second, Les Halvorson at third, and Harold Halvorson as skip, defeated the Dale Knewtson, Hans Newman, Reuben Jorde, and Jon Larson rinks. The Larson foursome, with Donovan Erlandson at lead, Kermit Hanson at second, Shorty Perkins at third, and Jon Larson as skip, defeated the Ardell Liden and Glen Haugen rinks to reach the finals of the ten-team 'spiel.

In the championship finals which found the Larson rink trailing until the tenth end, when, faced with a difficult draw shot and with two Larson rocks in the rings, skip Halvorson decided on a take-out shot, and banged one of the Larson stones out of play, giving up a point. That point tied the match at eight-all and forced an extra end.

The match thundered through the eleventh end, and with but one rock to be thrown, and that by Halvorson, there was Jon Larson's rock at the one o'clock position in the eight-foot ring. Halvorson's last rock was on the broom, and he took out Larson's shot rock and remained in the rings to provide the winning margin.

The line scores:

Harold Halvorson [illegible]
Jon Larson [illegible]

Schoolmen from TRF at Meeting of Agassiz Club

The Agassiz Schoolmasters club met in Crookston last Thursday evening. Guest speaker was Kurt H. Peters of the public relations staff of the Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. A native of Germany, Peters left that country a week before World War II started in 1939. He was interned for three years as an alien at Fort Lincoln near Bismarck, N. D., being released to enlist in the U. S. Navy. Attending Thursday's meeting from Thief River Falls were Supt. Marshall Hankerson, Richard Edlund, Francis Hamerlinck and Lawrence Brown.

District Tournament Time

The 51st district high school basketball tournament will begin play at 4:00 p. m. today, Monday, when the Prowlers' Tom Lindberg and the Fisher Flyers' Roger Belswenger battle for the tip-off, which will be tossed up by either Horace May or Dwayne Syverson.

While the tournament that opens on Mondy is the 51st, since 1913, it isn't the 51st in District 31 play. As far as District 31 is concerned, Monday's tournament will be the 39th annual. And for the Prowlers, it will be the thirty-third time for the local eagers in District 31 tournament play.

This discrepancy in the Prowlers' district competition is the result of the shuffling of district areas back in the late 1920's.

From 1913 through 1924, the Prowlers were members of the 16th District, and in those days, sixteen teams participated in the state tournament. In 1925 the regional setup, with the state divided into eight regions and thirty-two districts, was established.

From 1925 through 1931, Thief River Falls, along with Warren, was a member of District 32. And during that span, the Ponies and the Prowlers monopolized the district honors, with Warren winning district titles in 1927 and 1928, and the Prowlers being winners in 1925, 1926, 1929, and 1930. Since 1930, the Prowlers have included in District 31 play, and during those years the local eagers have won fourteen district championships. And coach Jack Junker's 1963 Prowlers are favored to win the district title in the tournament that opens today and concludes on Wednesday night.

Prowlers Face Fisher

The Prowlers, seeded as the tournament's number one team, will play the sub-district tourney's third place team, the Fisher Flyers this afternoon. Coach Norman Wagner's Flyers are tallest and heftiest team in the tournament, and if they can control the temp of the game, and take advantage of their height around the boards, the Prowlers may be in for a tussle. While it is agreed that Fisher has the potential to be "dark horse" (and in right forward Roger Bentrup, a sophomore, the Flyers will present one of the district's better players) there is doubt whether or not the Flyers can contain the all-round speed and fast-break offense of the Prowlers. The college-sized floor of the UND fieldhouse court may, in the later stages of the game, prove a handicap for the Flyers.

Last year, it will be recalled, the Prowlers dropped their district tournament first-round game, losing to the Climax Vikings, 57 to 55.

Incidentally, the Prowlers, in 18 games, have scored a total of 1198 points. That averages out at about 66.5 points per game. The Prowlers of 1961, who set the school's season scoring record with a total of 1353 points, amassed that total in 24 games, for an average of 51.5 points per game. This season's club can, when it's "hot", roll up the points.

The pre-tournament form charts, and the season's records, indicate that the following teams should win their respective district championships: Bemidji, District 29; Hendrum, District 30; Thief River Falls, District 31; and Lake Bronson, District 32. But don't wager the homestead that this lineup will appear in next week's Region Eight tournament.

Rolling Up the Pins

And the Family Bowl squad of Mary Washnesky, Wally DuChamp, Lloyd Samuelson, Jesse DuChamp, and Carl Onkka, turned in some consistent bowling here Sunday afternoon as the team swept their series against the Lake Bronson and Hallock squad.

The Family Bowl team, and they are leading the four-team travelling league, bowled games of 947-968-975 in winning three games and the aggregate-pins point from the Lake Bronson team. Carl Onkka, with a 651 and Lloyd Samuelson, with a 602, paced the local bowlers.

In the second match on Sunday, against Hallock, the Family Bowl squad had games of 886-922-1033, for a sweep of the four points. In that 1033-pin game, the local bowlers posted the following scores: Washnesky, 190; Wally DuChamp, 241; Samuelson, 188; Jesse DuChamp, 210; and Onkka, 204.

And speaking of high series, how about the Schmidt's Beer team and their 2943-pin total. In the first two games of their league match, the Schmidt's had games of 971 and 965.

But it was the 1007-pin third game that boosted the team into a season's three-game mark. In this third game, Dave Clough rolled a 212; Jack Hoppe had a 181; Larry Perkins rolled a 186; Wally DuChamp had a 235; and Del Harbott a 193.

Thieves End Season

The senior hockey Thieves, champions of the Northwest Hockey league, closed out their season's play on Friday night when, on the Coleraine arena ice, they dropped an 8 to 5 decision to the Eveleth Rangers of the Arrowhead league.

No. Central Regina Service in Doubt

Civil Aeronautics Board Recommends Suspension

The Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington, proposed Thursday that Regina, Sask., be dropped from the operating certificate of North Central Airlines. A final decision will be made later.

The board said the Candian city has failed to originate the minimum amount of traffic that would qualify it for scheduled air service under U. S. standards.

The CAB authorized North Central last Nov. 21 to suspend service temporarily at Regina until 90 days after a final decision in a use-it-or-lose-it proceeding.

North Central has estimated, at the time it received the route between Regina and Minot, N. D. that it would require about $57,000 a year in subsidy for the service. But the airline has found that it actually needs $83,000 in subsidy.

No Active TB Found in School Tests

Follow-up on Mantoux Tests Conducted Here

A follow-up was conducted on the students who were absent during the regular Mantoux testing program in Thief River Falls schools in January. As a result a total of 2868 persons were tested. Those whose tests were positive were X-rayed at Northestern Hospital and none were found to have active tuberculosis, said Mrs. Margaret Race, school nurse.

The area vocational school, St. Bernards, Northrop and Washington grade schools all had 100 per cent participation. Lincoln junior and senior high school had 99 and two-thirds per cent and Knox grade school had 99 and one-third per cent participation. Of the entire student body there were only 7 refusals, everyone else was either Mantoux tested or x-rayed.

This will qualify all Thief River Falls schools for an "A" rating for the tuberculosis control certificate, said Mrs. Race.

Bemidji Wrestler in Finals of State Meet

Bemidji's Tom Detschman was the lone wrestler from Region Eight to reach the finals in the state high school wrestling tournament that was concluded at Mankato on Saturday night. Detschman, wrestling in the 154-lb. division, was edged out in the championship finals, losing a decision by a 2 to 1 score, to Steve Guggisberg of Fairfax.

The Prowler wrestlers participating in the state meet were Roger Wilson, in the 112-lb. class and Joe Taylor, in the 145-lb. class. Wilson dropped a 4 to 0 decision to Makike Howe of Robbinsdale in a first-round match.

Taylor scored a 4 to 0 decision over Wayne Gysland of Hopkins in a first-round match, and then lost to Roy Andres of South St. Paul, 5 to 2, in a second-round encounter. Competing in the consolation bracket, Taylor defeated John Nylund of Hibbing, 5 to 1, in a first-round match. And then lost to Chuck Field of Rochester, 4 to 2.

The state high school wrestling champions for 1963 are:

95-lb. Albert Ogdie, Bloomington
103-lb. Jim Enfield, Northfield.
112-lb. Jim Anderson, Fridley.
120-lb. Mike Callahan, Albert Lea.
127-lb. Howard Leopold, Redwood Falls.
133-lb. Ronald Ankeny, Blue Earth
138-lb. Ted Anderson, St. James.
145-lb. Bill Wendell, Windom.
154-lb. Steve Guggisberg, Fairfax.
165-lb. Erv Kallstrom, Browns Valley.
175-lb. Mike Rybak, Anoka.
Heavyweight Gary Hoehn, Hopkins.

'Save Your Vision' Week Being Noted

Optometrist Association Head Asks Observance

"Preventive vision care should be part of any intelligent physical fitness program", Dr. C. L. Peterson, Montevideo, president Minnesota Optometric association said today as he announced the annual observance of Save Your Vision Week, March 3-9.

He said that public and health officials as well as the president have urged citizens to embark on a "Keep Fit" program. But in addition to the most obvious requirement, such as diet, exercise, etc., it is equally important to maintain good vision if the "whole person" is to function efficiently.

"Vision is the precious sense that influences every human movement and activity during waking hours," Dr. Peterson said. "Our complex modern way-of-life makes greater demands of us. This is especially true of vision, because everything we do in our busy lives is dependent on sight — much of it strenuous use of the eyes for long periods of time in one capacity or another."

He pointed out that there are many elements in good vision. Each plays its part in overall sight and has its importance to specific activities. Vision is specialized and governed by habits and requirements.

Dr. Peterson said that it is impossible to be "fit" without having good vision. Regular yearly visits to an optometrist for a thorough vision examination should be part of every individual's program of fitness and self improvement.

FAMILY LIFE in the African bush country of Tanganyika is the experience of Rev. and Mrs. Douglas Augustine, two-year-old Cynthia and nine-year-old Scott. The family is returning to work among the natives following a furlough in the United States. Rev. Augustine served Black River, Tarna and Clara Lutheran churches at St. Hilaire several years ago and is now the president of a training school for elementary teachers in Tanganyika.

In a Continent on the Rise . . .

Rev. Augustine Leads Busy Life in Africa

By Flora Allison
Times Society Reporter

In the phraseology of the Rev. Douglas Augustine, the continent of Africa, to which he is again returning after a leave spent in America, is a continent "on the rise." The former pastor of the Black River - Tarna - Clara church at St. Hilaire, his function in Tanganyika approximates that of a president of a normal training school. In other words, he trains others (in this case, African youths) to be leaders in their nation's forging-ahead process by becoming elementary teachers.

He is stationed in the "bush country" of Tanganyika, on Africa's east coast, where the nearest store and filling station are 45 miles distant. The station itself stands on an escarpment behind which live thousands upon thousands of natives, and ahead of which, from its commanding view of the broad sweep of valley, it is evident that no other people live for many miles. Here at the station the minister, his wife, and two-year-old daughter Cynthia make their "home away from home." A nine-year old son, Scott attends a boarding school away from home, along with children of other missionaries from all over Tanganyika.

In the part of the equatorial country where they labor at an elevation of 5,000 feet above sea level, the climate is comparatively cool in contrast to the coastal regions which are usually hot and steamy. The "bush country" is also relatively dry. Even at their elevation, however, the African sun is brutally intense; it is, according to Rev. Augustine, actually about 20 degrees cooler in the shade of the trees.

Education, which is his prime concern, is noting a decided upsurge in this newly-independent nation. About 45 per cent of the children now start school and progress to at least fourth grade. This is a marked change from the educational pattern of the past, which saw much resistance to education. Now there are more potential students than there are schools to house them.

Improved Education

Upon completion of the fourth grade, 10 per cent of the pupils go on to the eight grade, and of these, 20 per cent go on to high school. Among the nine million inhabitants are 120 tribes. To coordinate education, the schools are government financed, and thus government controlled.

"The natives wear clothing in accordance with each one's individual circumstances," Rev. Augustine said, "everyone dressing as well as he can afford. This, however, covers the range from loin cloths to full western style dress. The cloth is usually purchased from East Indian tradesmen and put together by an African tailor who sews it in short order. Every town of any consequence in East Africa has a Singer sewing center, generally operated by Indians. Originally brought in by the Germans from East India to build the railroad, these men stayed on and set up shops which handle most of the retail trade and services. Europeans cannot buy land there for farming.

The majority of the natives exist at mere subsistence levels. However, the dismal situation shows signs of improvement as cash crops are being introduced, but farming methods still remain primitive, although a few tractors are coming into use. The homes of the populace are constructed of mudbrick, with flat, earth-covered roofs. They are built low, and practically windowless, except for a hole in the wall about the size of a mud-brick or two. There is only one door, and the hut is generally too low to allow standing erect.

Stoves consist of three stones arranged to hold a cooking pot, which despite the crudeness of the stove, might very well be made of aluminum, which is gradually replacing the clay pots used heretofore. Since there is no stove pipe or chimney, the house is usually smoke-filled. Some cooking is also done outdoors. Any furniture in the hut is apt to be purchased from the shops, with the exception of the beds, which are of wooden framework interlaced with ropes, and covered with a sort of mattress filled with straw. A few have tables and chairs.

Family Living

The Augustines live in a large, comfortable house constructed of cement blocks, and topped off by an aluminum roof. No heat is required at any time. "And to build a bigger house, all one needs do is add on some more cement blocks and roofing," laughed the minister. A small Diesel plant furnishes illumination, and a small kerosene refrigerator keeps their food fresh.

Rice is a staple in the Augustines' diet, often served topped with curried meat. A large bowl of fresh fruit is always in evidence, including many bananas. Peanuts are worked into the diet in many ways, and incidentally, the Augustines make their own peanut butter, which was described as "wonderfully tasty."

The flesh of the rangy cattle is quite tough, due to the sparsity of grass, which necessitates their roving about in search of forage. They are herded by shepherds. . . Poor grazing results also in scanty milk production, and the Augustines have to content themselves with about ten cupfuls a day, delivered to their door by two milkmen. This milk is first milked into a gourd, and then poured into the family's personal metal container. They separate the milk daily, using the cream for ice cream, which they have frequently, and sometimes for butter, of which they use only a very little.

Wonder of Nature

There are 12 hours of darkness, 12 of daylight, each day. Dawn and twilight are practically non-existent. "It's as if someone turned a light switch on or off: complete darkness one minute, and the next, brilliant sunlight. A tropical moon is the most overpowering sight in the world, I think," Reverend Augustine stated. "So much bigger, brighter, closer than you could ever imagine. There is no artificial light around, and in the dark phase of the moon, or when the sky is overcast, the darkness is thick and intense."

He has hunted and bagged elephants, lions, and other game including antelope-type animals, some not farther than 20 miles from the station. Traveling by Jeep, the party sleeps out in the bush. The antelope make fine eating, much better than Tanganyikan beef, and thus are much prized when bagged.

To sum up in a few words a country so widely divergent from section to section is practically an impossibility, he said, but his most vivid impression is that the changes in Tanganyika, as indeed in a large part of the continent once called "The Dark Continent", are practically phenomenal. What may be true one year may be outdated the next, he added. The transition is felt both politically and economically. Salaries have doubled and in some cases tripled in the past three years.

As for communism, there is, he agreed, perhaps little room for complacency. Not too active as yet, the communists are, in his words, "there, they are organized; they are waiting." As long as the natives feel that they are progressing, communism may not make very deep inroads in Tanganyika, for its philosophy feeds on discontent and misery. Helping the people to help themselves, he feels, is perhaps the best defense we have against that "ism" which vows to bury us, and all of the world along with us.

He is there doing his part toward providing that self-help in staving off that catastrophe.

National Weights & Measures Week Noted March 1-7

Department Supervises Accuracy of Weighing and Measuring Devices

Americans are probably the most weight conscious people in the world. They even have official "weight watchers"—the men and women of the many weights and measures departments throughout the United States whose job it is to check for accurate weight or measure where there is buying or selling of stated quantitites.

This week, March 1 through 7, has been named "National Weights and Measures Week" to commemorate their public service in almost every city and state in the nation.

The job of the weights and measures officials is to watch over, supervise, and test the accuracy of weighing and measuring devices used in trade and to spot-check weights of packaged goods. The value of this service in dollars and cents is tremendous.

An average overweight of only 1 per cent because of an obsolete or out-of-balance scale can literally put a man out of business. In a word, this service is to protect both buyers and sellers from bad weights and measures.

Minnesota was one of the first states to pass an effective weights and measures law, doing so in 1911. The weights and measures inspectors in Minnesota see to it that correct weights and measures are observed under these laws.

Today, we take correct weights and measures almost for granted. Whether we buy 5 pounds of potatoes, 5 gallons of gas, or an expensive 5 pound roast, or 100 gallons of fuel oil, we expect to get what we pay for. And we get it because of these men who test scales, pumps, meters and package weights for accuracy to protect both the buyer and seller.

The old Roman adage, "Caveat Emptor" (let the buyer beware), has lost much of its meaning because of stringent weights and measures laws and their vigorous enforcement.

Minnesota Dairy Products Assn. to Meet in St. Paul

Dairymen from throughout Minnesota will gather in St. Paul Thursday and Friday, March 7-8, for the 30th annual convention of the Minnesota Dairy Products Association. Registration opens at 9 a. m., Thursday, in the Hotel Lowry, with business sessions to get underway at 10 a. m.

Former Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Byron G. Allen, now assistant to Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman in Washington, will be main speaker at the convention banquet Thursday night. Sharing speaking honors with him will be Minnesota's Princess Kay of the Milky Way, Kathleen Hjelle of Argyle. Dean Harold Macy of the University of Minnesota's Institute of Agriculture, will be master of ceremonies.

Resolutions will be acted upon and organization directors will be elected during Friday morning's business session.

The American Farmer degree is awarded to about 380 outstanding FFA members each year. Only one member in a thousand may receive it.

People are spending about the same amount — 19.7 per cent — of their take-home pay for food this year as last, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

"There is a point, of course, where a man must take the isolated peak and break with all his associates for clear principle; but until that time comes he must work, if he would be of use, with men as they are. As long as the good in them overbalances the evil, let him work with them for the best than can be obtained."

Vote Tuesday

Tomorrow, Tuesday, is election day again. An important community issue is to be decided. As usual, there are two sides to the question.

The question involves local educational facilities. In the arguments that have been advanced there has been no opposition to providing adequate facilities. There has been a sharp difference of opinion as to how much would be adequate. And there is a sharp difference of opinion as to what the proposed program would mean in future taxation.

The problem can be approached in two ways. Good citizens may vote for what they believe is best for our schools. Other good citizens may vote for what they believe is best for the community, including the schools.

An attempt has been made to create the impression that we are confronted by an emergency. There is no emergency except that which has been created for dramatic effects.

Good citizens should vote. As a good citizen, vote as you think right, but vote.

Dairy Surpluses

Senator William Proxmire of Wisconsin hopes to reduce the surplus of dairy products by a better control of the large surpluses of milk produced primarily for drinking in the large marketing areas. These surpluses are marketed as manufacturing milk at much lower prices and are sold to the government in the form of butter and other manufactured products.

He has introduced a bill that would discourage this kind of surplus production in those federally price-protected areas by inflicting price penalties that would no longer make such surplus production profitable. The excess of milk in such areas is responsible for much of the surplus that depresses the national market for producers in the less populous areas of the country.

It is unfortunate that so little progress has been made in establishing a nation wide producers organization to give direction to the marketing problems of the industry. The industry should gradually assume responsibility for the management of its own production and marketing. The Proxmire plan may be a step in that direction.

Expensive Acres

Along about the turn of the century the Rio Grande river changed its course slightly at El Paso and created an international boundary problem that came close several times to starting a war. The river shifted into Mexico, leaving an area of about 600 acres between it and the American city. Mexico claimed this small area as being south of the original border. As reported by W. E. Blundell in the Wall Street Journal, these flats now are occupied by a few shops, a small packing house and some sagging tenements and tiny abode houses.

But there isn't going to be a war after all. According to Mr. Blundell, our U.S. negotiators think they have solved the problem. The proposal includes provision "for ample comensation" to the city and any proerty holders for any land that would be ceded to Mexico. Our government would pay the cost of rechanneling of the river along the new border, along with a new park and an express highway to be constructed along the new channel. El Paso may also get federal aid for a housing project near the border.

All of this would cost Mexico nothing and El Paso very little. According to one official, the cost to our government would be at least $30 million and possibly $50 million. Them's going to be expensive acres, but the Texans didn't want to start a war.

Fists Across the Border

In an article titled "Fists Across The Border", published in the Winnipeg Tribune, Max Frankel of the New York Times Service, makes these interesting observations:

"Canada is the second largest nation in the world, but with a mere 18,000,000 inhabitants. Virtually every Canadian knows this, and hardly an American does—and therein lies the fundamental and continuing problem of their relations.

"Their frontier with the United States is widely celebrated for its lack of fortification. It is undefended, however, not only against our investors, prospectors, books, magazines, TV, movies, sports and lecturers. Just about the only thing that makes them unlike us is their persistent cl[illegible] to be different from us; and to prove it, more often to themselves than to us, they insist on the right to disagree with us or to decide for themselves.

"This insistence, and a great many legal fortifications of it, is the only real boundary between the most celebrated friends in the history of nations. Americans, unfortunately, know as little about Canada's psychology as about her geography."

Canadians are not strangers hereabouts and many of our people have a fair idea of what the country north of the border is like. We know that the border is not a barrier.

But it unfortunately is true that comparatively few Americans have any information or understanding about Canada's past, present or future. Canadians, on the other hand, are much better informed about us, which is understandable. Our lack of information about the history of Canada, and the background and progress of its economy, is shameful.

If it were not for the fact that we are so bitterly opposed to education in all forms we would suggest that a semester of Canadian history might well be a required subject here in Minnesota.

Fifty Minute "Think"

Columnist James Reston, of the New York Times Service, is sometimes offensively controversial but he is always delightfully interesting. In a recent analysis of his favorite subject, President Kennedy, he took out after the fifty-mile hike. He scolded:

"President Kennedy is a puzzle. One day he pleads with the country to sacrifice, and the next he pleads with it to accept a tax cut. One day he venerates brains, and the next he tries to popularize walking.

"Trying to popularize walking in America is like trying to popularize prohibition in Kentucky. Asking a citizen to walk instead of ride in America is like asking a Frenchman to drink milk instead of wine. And the last French premier who did THAT, Pierre Mendes France, was booted out of office."

And after several informative comments on the phyiscal shortcomings of several other presidents, he concluded:

"What this capital needs is not the 50-mile hike but the 50-minute "think". It could easily be arranged. The National Security Council, for example, could have been summoned to think for 50 minutes before sending out that rocket at Canada the other day."

Youth Vandalism

The Portland Oregonian, reviewing an incident of youth vandalism, concludes that much of the responsibility may be attributed to the indifference of parents. The incident referred to is interesting:

"On the night of last Nov. 30, more than a score of youngsters, during the course of an all-night party, wrecked the interior of a penthouse apartment in the Travelers' Motel in North Portland. Owner of the property, John Goss, wrote a restrained letter to the parents of those identified as attending (ranging in age from 17 to 21). He said that their child had been named as a participant and asked that the parents inquire of him (or her) whether the information was correct. If the answer was yes, he invited the parents to an open house in the battered apartment to see for themselves the extent of the damage.

"Mr. Goss sent 20 such letters to parents of 21 youngsters; and the astounding fact is that he had responses from only three sets of parents. The assumption must be that the other 17 just did not care what their sons (or daughters) had done, or, if they cared, they wanted no responsibility for it.

"Two youths, 19 and 21, were convicted on larceny charges growing out of the party and were ordered to jail for 20 days. A third participant, a 17-year-old juvenile, joined the Army. Thus far, we have no word that any of the others were disciplined—even at home. Particularly at home, one should say. For the most shocking thing uncovered by this shameful incident is not the senseless damage done to the apartment or the larceny for which two boys were convicted; it is the evidence of a lack of concern and responsibility on the part of such a large group of parents. Is there any doubt about where some of the kids learn their contempt for authority and for the rights of others?

For a Real Record

Minneapolis Star

Some members of Congress are reported talking about procedural changes which they hope can be made at the upcoming session. One of these is for strictly limiting the editorial privileges that members of both houses have with the Congressional Record.

Many people are unaware that the Congressional Record often does not reflect what actually was said on the floor of Congress. Members are allowed to go over the "copy" and edit it to suit themselves.

It always has been our opinion that the Congressional Record should be what the name implies—a record. As congressional custom has developed, the Record has come to be largely what members of Congress want it to say—after second thoughts—rather than what actually was said on the floor.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans' benefits may be obtained by visiting or writing the VA Contact Office at the Fargo VA Center, Fargo, North Dakota.

Q—How many U. S. veterans are still living, and how does this total compare with the all-time high?

A—On January 1, 1963, there were 22,225,000 U. S. veterans of all wars still living. This compares with the all-time high of 22,735,000, which was reached in March, 1958.

Q—As the widow of a World War II veteran with two children, I understand WW II widows and orphans are now eligible to receive pensions on the same basis as World War I dependents. What are the conditions for eligibility and how much would the pension amount to?

A—The WW II deceased veteran no longer is required to have had a service-connected disability at the time of his death. Your income must be less than $3,000 a year. Your pension would range from $25 to $60 a month, adding $15 a month for each child.

Q—As a veteran with a GI home loan, I understand I may make additional payments to retire the loan faster than my contract stipulates. What is the minimum extra payment I may make?

A—You may pay an additional $100 with your monthly payment or an additional monthly payment, whichever is the smaller payment.

Q—Is there an extent-of-time limit or an amount limit on a GI home loan?

A—There is no limit on the amount of the loan in the case of a guaranteed loan. The limitation is on the amount of guaranty that can be issued upon the loan, which is 60 per cent or a maximum of $7,500. VA-insured loans, (instead of guaranteed loans, may not exceed $26,666. The time limit is 30 years.

Q—Is there an age limit after which a war orphan may no longer be eligible for Educational Assistance by the VA?

A—Generally the age is between 18 and 23, but in no case may the schooling assistance be continued beyond the 31st birthday of the beneficiary. Certain war orphans younger than 18 may receive this assistance — for example, those who are handicapped.

Q—Does the Veterans Administration recognize employee unions?

A—Yes. During the past six months the VA has recognized 28 employees' organizations at 117 field stations as well as in Washington, D. C.

THE ANDERSEN LETTER

Gov. Elmer L. Andersen

Gnats and Camels

When the Federal budget message went to Congress it anticipated an operating deficit of $11.9 billion dollars for the next fiscal year.

This simply means that next year the Federal government proposes to spend $11.9 billion more than it takes in, and add the difference to debt, through borrowing. This is exactly the same as if you planned to spend more than you earned in the year ahead, and told your banker, "Just add the difference to the mortgage on my home or farm."

What does $11.9 billion deficit mean to Minnesota? Our share of that is $238 million. It is exactly the same as if we proposed to operate the State of Minnesota next year spending $238 million more than we raise — and add $238 million to our State debt! I hate to think what the public reaction would be if any such proposal were made. Yet this is exactly what your Federal government is doing.

What does it mean to you personally? It simply means that every farm and home in the State of Minnesota will have an additional $700 mortgage for just one year's over-spending of Federal government.

What has this to do with gnats and camels? You remember the Bible verse — "Ye strain at a gnat and swallow a camel?" That is what we do between State government and Federal government.

Right now your state representatives and senators are working with appropriation bills and striving strenuously, as I am, to plan the next two years to live within our income. This is hard grueling work — to meet important needs — to provide for education — to preserve our natural resources — to care for those needing special help — to build highways — and to do it economically and prudently.

While your Governor and legislators work their heads off to develop a balanced budget and avoid increased or new taxes — your Federal government is launching an almost incomprehensibly large spending program.

Yes, we strain at a gnat and swallow a camel.

If you don't want to swallow that Federal camel write your representative and senators in Washington and let them know.

And when your state senator and state representative comes home from his legislative duties for a week-end, pat him on the back for his good work in St. Paul — and if you don't see him, write him at the State Capitol, St. Paul.

COMMENDATION AND CONDEMNATION are two words which look much alike but carry a substantial difference in meaning. There are cases where either one of the two words should be applied but not too frequently there are also situations where both words are applicable. Such is the situation of action taken by the Thief River Falls city council and Chamber of Commerce board in regard to North Central Airlines service.

Since commendation is more pleasant, let's take a look at the bright side of the picture. When North Central announced its application for use of Convair aircraft on its Minot to Minneapolis run, it also noted that it would have to over-fly Thief River Falls, Brainerd and Devils Lake since runways at these airports would not handle the larger planes. This would have meant one round trip daily from the local airport until the local runway could be extended to handle the larger planes.

A curtailment in service by the airline to this community would have been, so some people suppose, a sad state of affairs. It is important—to those who use it. Protests to the use of Convair aircraft on this Minot to Minneapolis run were filed by the city council and Chamber of Commerce with the Minnesota Department of Aeronautics and the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington, D. C.

Early this week the CAB denied North Central's request. This bit of government action was hailed as a great victory by a number of local people. These people are to be commended for taking a stand and making themselves heard on a matter in which they believed the community would be adversely affected.

North Central, on the other hand, was somewhat less than happy. The airline had an opportunity to purchase six Convair aircraft at a good price from another line which was switching to jet service. The purchase was made. Anxious to begin realizing a return on the investment, the airline wanted to use the planes as soon as possible. They submitted an application for permission to use the Convairs and the cry of protest arose.

Thief River Falls was not the only objector. Others were the Devils Lake City Commission, Devils Lake Chamber of Commerce and Northwest Airlines, Inc. All had a personal interest in the proposal and each believed that it stood to lose something important.

Of particular interest here is the protest filed by the Chamber of Commerce. This is a division of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, an organization devoted to the promotion of free enterprise with as little government intervention as possible. Basically it deplores high government costs and federal subsidies and warns of losing individual freedoms. Like political parties it has high ideals on paper.

When the practice of these ideals conflicts with a local interest, however, the ideals are soon forgotten. The airline protest is a good example of where America is failing. Good organizations have good intentions but fall victim to decay at the roots. For fear of small personal loss they seek refuge in the very things which they profess to abhor and turn to the government for help. Collectively these minor individual failings create a major and complex problem.

The Civil Aeronautics Board estimates that North Central would receive approximately $111,000 in increased federal subsidies if Convairs were put in use. This is in addition to present subsidies—a word which the Chamber of Commerce believes somewhat tainted—yet overlooks when personal gain is involved. The CAB also estimates that North Central would lose money by operating Convair craft on this run—a problem which, I believe, should be considered by the airline on company time with company funds rather than a government tax-supported agency.

When I use the words "personal gain" in this column, it should be understood that reference is made to no individual. It does seem, however, that the Chamber of Commerce should re-read the Bible parable concerning casting out motes from a brother's eye.

National Roundup of Girl Scouts Is Sought for Minnesota in '65

The Minnesota legislature was asked Wednesday to appropriate $449,000 for the accelerated development of Savanna Portage State Park to enable the state to host the National Roundup of the Girl Scouts of America in 1965.

Identical bills were submitted to the House and Senate in a bipartisan move to secure the roundup and an estimated $10 to $15 million in revenue expected to be generated by the roundup.

James A. Lee, acting commissioner of the department of business development, reported Girl Scout officials in New York have indicated Minnesota has a high priority for the roundup, provided the park is improved.

He said it is estimated the roundup will involve approximately 100,000 persons who are expected to spend between $10 and $15 million in connection with the event.

The 15,000-acre park, in Aitkin county, was created by the 1961 legislature, which provided only $2,300 for improvements.

The proposed bill stipulates the $449,000 cannot be spent unless the Girl Scouts confirm selection of the park for the roundup before July 1, 1963.

The bill seeks $265,000 for physical improvements, $150,000 for construction and surfacing of five miles of entrance road, and $33,600 for acquisition of privately-owned land within the park boundaries.

Improvements called for include construction of service roads and bridges, parking areas, water and sewer systems, waste disposal facilities, power and telephone systems, service buildings, administration center, picnic and camping facilities, and recreation areas.

U. W. Hella, state park director, said the Savanna Portage site was selected last year as a candidate for the roundup by a committee of state and national Girl Scout officials. Sites in other states also were inspected.

The 1965 roundup will be the fourth sponsored by the Girl Scouts. The others were in 1956, in Highland State Park, Michigan; 1959, Colorado Springs, Colo.; and Button Bay State Park, Vermont, 1962.

Actual participants in the 1965 roundup are expected to total about 10,000, including 8,500 girls and 1,700 men and women, mostly volunteers on the roundup staff. Last year in Vermont 22 countries were represented.

Visitors are expected to number close to 90,000. Last year there were 72,000, of which more than 21,000 toured the roundup site by buses. The visitors will be principally relatives and friends of the Girl Scouts.

Dates for the 10-day roundup in 1965 have not been set but are expected to be in July.

Explains Income Tax Standard Deduction

(This is the eighth in a series of articles on income taxes made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar Assn., Public Relations Committee.)

The standard deduction is available to you if you do not itemize your personal deductions which are authorized by law such as real estate taxes, charitable contributions and medical expenses.

These deductions are deductions from a figure which is called "adjusted gross income". Adjusted gross income is defined as gross income less business expenses, exclusions such as pay while sick, expenses incurred in connection with property which you hold for the production of rents or royalties, deductions for traveling expenses while away from home on business and those expenses for which you have been reimbursed by your employer.

The standard deduction amounts generally to 10 per cent of this adjusted gross income figure. It, however, is limited for all taxpayers to $1,000 where the 10 per cent figure exceeds this amount. The standard deduction is a substitute method allowed in lieu of itemized deductions and is given to you whether or not you keep records of deductible expenses or actually have these expenses.

The determination of whether or not you should use the standard deduction must be the result of comparing the next tax which you will pay under both methods of filing your return. The final method used should be based upon a consideration of the amount of tax payable under each method and the relative ease of filing under either method.

A general rule of thumb is that you will pay less tax by itemizing your deductions where you own your own home and pay substantial real estate taxes and mortgage interest. However, in many other situations the itemization method will also benefit you taxwise.

Langen Would Curb Farm Item Imports

Calls for Investigation When Surpluses Develop

Congressman Odin Langen Wednesday introduced a bill that would require investigations whenever a surplus agricultural commodity is being imported. Under Langen's bill the President would call for United States Tariff Commission hearings in all such instances.

"The misunderstood man in overalls has been maligned again and again as the cause of our surpluses," Langen told members of the House of Representatives, "simply because he became the best farmer in the history of mankind. But we must look deeper for the total reason for our surpluses."

Langen pointed out that the United States, for a number of years, has imported several agricultural commodities, already in surplus, in such large quantities that these imports are, in effect, being placed in storage. "The taxpayer pays the storage costs, prices are edged higher through support payments, the resultant higher prices attract further imports, and the American farmer is left literally holding the feed bag, watching his market disappear into the overseas sunset."

Langen cited oats, barley, rye and a number of meat products that have been imported in quantities far beyond the amount of the same commodities we put into surplus storage. The dairy industry is the latest to be hit by imports, he said.

"I'm not opposed to imports," explained Langen, "and my bill does not close the door on them. But it does make possible a determination of the facts regarding imports of such commodities, and will provide a solid basis on which realistic approaches and decisions can be made."

The average cow last year produced 7,211 pounds of milk, enough to provide year's supply of milk and other dairy products to slightly more than 11 Americans.

Buttermilk used to be a by-product of butter making. Now most of it is produced artificially from skim milk with bacterial cultures.

NOTICE

Recognizing our responsibility to the people and children of the community, the unanimous agreement of the assembled pastors of the Thief River Falls Ministers' Association is to call attention to certain facts present in the school bond issue:

1. The moral pitfalls of the present situation which throws young Junior High students into close proximity and company with older students of Vocational and High School age.
2. The moral issues involved in the misrepresentation of some of the facts to which the community has been subjected.
3. The moral issues involved in individual stewardship of community members which holds back on such important matters as education of the young, additional costs for which would be insignificant in comparison with that being spent on luxuries, entertainment, liquor, etc.

From the facts as known we further concur with the Citizen's Committee in support of the school bond issue.

To reach Emerald City, Dorothy must travel through a large area controlled by the Wicked Witch of the West. Burglars Admit Several Robberies At Inga's Cafe

Men Apprehended Feb. 24 Are Involved in Five Break-ins in This City

Two of the four area young men apprehended about a week ago through efforts of the Thief River Falls police department, Pennington, Polk and Marshall county sheriff's departments have admitted taking part in several robberies at Inga's Cafe in Thief River Falls.

Frank Donarski, 22, rural Thief River Falls, has admitted larcenies and burglaries at the cafe in August, September and December of 1961 and December of 1962. A considerable amount of cash was taken in the robberies. Merton Hutchinson, 23, rural Goodridge, has also been implicated with part of the local robberies.

Hutchinson and Donarski are being held at Polk county jail in Crookston after failure to post bond of $1,500 and $2,000 respectively. Both have been charged with third degree burglary in the January 25 break-in at the Farmers Union Oil Company in Crookston. Donarski has also been charged with the February 9 break-in at the Irishman's Shanty in that city.

Marvin Hutchinson, twin brother of Merton, appeared in justice court at Warren Friday and was bound over to the fall term of district court. He was released on $1,000 bond. Gerald Wayne, the fourth person involved in the multiple burglary cases, was bound over to district court on $1,000 bond when he appeared in Warren

Karl Rolvaag Favored to Win Vote Recount

DFL Candidate Leads by 74-vote Margin as Tally Nears End

The vote count in Minnesota's gubernatorial recount remained unchanged Wednesday as the final phase of the recount trials began before the three-judge recount panel in St. Paul.

Former DFL Lt. Gov. Karl Rolvaag continued to hold a 74-vote lead over Republican Gov. Elmer Andersen as final rulings on disputed ballots were delayed.

The panel heard testimony from about 10 witnesses regarding uncounted spoiled ballots as attorneys for Rolvaag began presentation of alleged irregularities occurring during election night vote counting procedures or during the recount process itself.

Attorneys for Andersen will present the GOP allegations to the panel next week.

At stake are about 150 votes — fairly evenly divided between the two candidates — which are currently uncounted or which the parties contend were erroneously counted.

The absence of a few witnesses held up completion of the disputed ballots trial yesterday. There are still 39 disputed ballots — 20 for Rolvaag and 19 for Andersen — which the panel must rule on.

Meanwhile, GOP representatives, who now admit that Andersen's chances of overcoming Rolvaag's lead in the recount process are slim, said yesterday they may ask the recount panel to hold that the lead is not sufficient to prove that Rolvaag actually won the election.

The recount is not a recanvass, commented Andersen's recount representative, Tom Swain. It is a discovery process to enable the contestant to develop evidence to prove that the original canvass was in error.

St. Hilaire Co-op Creamery Annual Meeting Monday

Annual meeting of St. Hilaire Cooperative Creamery association will be held Monday at 1:30 p. m. in the St. Hilaire school gymnasium, according to Merle Rafteseth, creamery manager.

Increased business of the creamery will be reported at the meeting since butterfat handled increased by 15,000 pounds in 1962, Rafteseth said. Lunch will be served at the close of the meeting by the American Lutheran Church women.

Record Turnout Witnessed With 3,202 Votes Cast

In a record turn-out for School District 564, voters gave approval to two questions on new school construction Tuesday — both by 168-vote margins. Approval for the construction of a junior high school at a cost not to exceed $1,195,000 was given by a vote of 1,676 to 1,508 while a second questional for a 10-room elementary school was approved 1,641 to 1,473.

A total of 3,202 ballots were cast in the six-hour election from 3 to 9 p. m. on Tuesday — 98 more than the previous record of 3,104 set about a year ago in an election on what was fundamentally the same project. In that election the bond issue was turned down by a vote of 1,750 to 1,354, a margin of 396 votes.

A second election, held May 21 following the presentation of a petition for such election to the board of education, resulted in even sounder defeat with a smaller number of people voting. The margin in the second election was 786 votes with 1,789 people voting "no" and only 1,003 voting "yes".

With public approval now being granted, the board will proceed with the preparation of final plans and specifications in preparation for a call for bids. It is expected that discussion on these items, as well as the sale of bonds, will be held at the regular meeting of the board on Monday.

Election judges completed their count by about 11:30 p. m., and presented the ballots to the board for canvassing. A number of ballots were marked in unusual combinations, such as "no" on the first and "yes" on the second, the judges said, but only eight ballots were spoiled. This occurred when voters marked both "yes" and "no" on either or both questions.

Wording appearing on the ballot was as follows:

Stodolka Company Is Given Road Contract

The Pennington county board at its March meeting Tuesday awarded the contract for blacktopping State Aid Road 3 from the west county line east to the intersection with the airport road.

Given the contract was C. L. Stodolka Co. of Little Falls, whose low bid of $147,384.25 was well below the engineers' estimate of $173,000. High bid was $172,622.50.

The Western Oil & Fuel Co. was given the contract to supply the season's needs for Diesel fuel and gasoline. Its low bids on Diesel fuel were 13.7 cents per gallon for No. 1 and 13 cents for No. 2, and its bid on gasoline was 14¼ cents per gallon. These figures are exclusive of tax.

The Standard Oil Co. was awarded the contract to furnish the season's requirements for brush-killer spray on its bid of $5.03 per gallon delivered in 30-gallon drums.

The board approved the request of Dr. H. P. Wendt for a policy statement designed to put teeth in sanitary regulations governing premises in the county, and a resolution was being drafted Wednesday.

The Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. was granted permission to bury about ten miles of telephone cable in Norden township 24 inches below the surface of ditches.

County Engineer Joseph Seidel was authorized to post county roads for load limits during the spring breakup.

Millet Acreage Still Available

Contracts for a considerable amount of millet acreage are yet available at Farmers Grain and Milling company, according to Harland Knutson, manager. About 30 contracts for approximately 900 acres have been received to date.

Contracts for sunflowers have been received in good number and acreage, Knutson said, although much of this acreage is outside the immediate Thief River Falls area. A number of contracts have been signed by Kittson county farmers who will be trucking sunflowers to the Thief River Falls plant for sale in the fall.

Again this year the seed for both millet and sunflowers will be available at the plant and the price of seed will be deducted from the price paid when crops are delivered in the fall. Persons interested in details on the contracts are asked to call, write or stop in person at Farmers Grain and Milling company, located just south of Lincoln high school.

AT WORK making "Pinky the Puppet" dolls to be given to children confined at Northwestern Hospital are members of the hospital auxiliary committee headed by Mrs. Herbert Halverson. The committee has about 20 members with several doing cutting and stitching at their homes and others gathering at the hospital each Tuesday afternoon to complete the assembly process. Working in this fashion since the first of January, the committee will have made 144 puppets by the end of March. A minimum of about three hours work goes into each puppet with cost for materials totaling about 25 cents for each one. Almost 450 have been made by the auxiliary and paid for out of its funds since the project was started in February of 1961. Heads used are sold only to units of accredited hospitals and other materials are purchased locally. Seated left to right behind the table above are Mrs. J. W. State College Faculties Appeal for Salary Boost Faculty members at the five Minnesota state colleges today released comparative statistics which indicate that Minnesota is falling behind in meeting salary competition from state colleges outside of Minnesota, from private colleges, and from universities and public school sytems.

The statistics prepared by the Inter-Faculty Organization of the state colleges at Bemidji, Mankato, Moorhead, St. Cloud and Winona indicate that the state of Minnesota ranks below neighboring states in the average salaries paid to professors and associate professors. Minnesota trails Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois in both categories. The study also shows that the five other states provide more fringe benefits than does Minnesota.

The IFO said that it has made specific recommendations designed to stop the flow of college professors from Minnesota by adjusting salaries. Their recommendations include an average 10 per cent increase the first year of the next biennium and a 5 per cent increase the second year.

Elaine's CHATTER

People have liked the same colors for hundreds of years, regardless of what fashion may dictate. Color preferences are based on optical and physchological factors, optical because the eyes see colors in complementary pairs and physchological because colors have a strong effect on the sub-conscious mind.

Since Red and Green are complementary colors, red makes green look greener, and vice versa. Some colors and color combinations are popular because they are pleasing to the eye. History shows that some colors, notably reds and blues, have been popular for as long as man has recorded history. Emotional needs determine most color preference. Individuals with few emtional outlets prefer pure, vibrant colors.

Most farmers paint their barns red, partly as an unconscious complement to nature's green. Normal adults react most favorably to combinations of warm colors, reds, and cool colors, blues. But quantity is important. A spot of red is stimulating, but a red room would be "nerve wracking."

Mothers may coo over pink and blue for their infants, but the babies aren't even aware of such delicate tints. Normally children enjoy strong reds and dislike blues. Experts can predict how thousands will behave towards color but not how any one person will react, so we at Elaine's have to carry many colors to try and satisfy everyone's wants.

If you are loking for color or style in a new Spring Coat, dress or sportswear, shop now at Elaine's. We can't urge you enough to shop early for that Spring coat; early shoppers get the best selection in fabrics, colors and styles.

—SLOW DOWN AND LIVE!

Legis Lative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

The future of Minnesota started looking a great deal brighter last week with news of the compromise agreement between the United Steel Workers Union and the steel companies operating in Minnesota on a proposed taconite amendment to the state constitution.

With this agreement between the two groups most directly involved, most legislative observers agree that a taconite amendment bill will have relatively clear sailing through this session of the Legislature and will be presented to the voters in the November 1964 election for their approval. (This latter point was one on which many of us had very strong feelings—that the people of Minnesota have the opportunity to vote on this matter.)

As you recall, a taconite amendment bill died in the House Tax Committee in 1961. An indication of the present unanimity of opinion on this important matter is the fact that the Liberals and Conservatives on the committee, upon hearing of the agreement between the steel workers and the companies, immediately agreed to introduce the measure as a committee bill. As you know, a bill with the full backing of a legislative committee has far greater strength on the floor of the House than a measure on which committee opinion is divided.

Although, as I write this, the exact wording of the bill is still being worked out, the major provisions were established by the union-management compromise and are relatively simple—a simplicity which belies the extreme importance of the measure to the future progress and prosperity of our state. The bill provides for a constitutional amendment guaranteeing the state's taconite industry tax equality with other industries for the next 20 years. At the end of that period, 5 per cent of Minnesota's voters could order a referendum on repeal of the amendment by signing petitions to that effect.

Economically hard-hit northeastern Minnesota and the entire state have long been in need of a measure such as this which will provide incentives for the establishment of taconite processing plants in the Iron Range area. Literally thousands of persons on the Range are presently on relief, and by laying the groundwork for putting breadwinners back to work mining and processing the area's rich reserves of taconite, the amendment provides great hope for the future.

Some adverse words have been said about giving an industry "preferred" tax treatment, but those statements are false and motivated by a type of reasoning that simply doesn't understand economic growth and our economic system. This amendment would give no "preferred" treatment to anybody, but simply guarantee that the taconite industry will be taxed at a level no greater than any other industry in the state. Rather than "preferred" treatment, this is simply equal treatment, and as such, indicates that the state wants new taconite plants and will not discriminate, tax-wise, against them.

Passage by the Legislature is now all but assured. In the elections of November 1964, you will have the opportunity to ratify the amendment, and by so doing, cast your vote for economic growth, progress and prosperity for the state of Minnesota. In the words of the joint union-management statement to the Legislature announcing their agreement on the issue—"It is the hope of both the union and the industry that this will offer a solution to this vexing problem and that the people, legislature and executive branches of the state. . .will be able to unite behind this proposal."

Myron Carlson Dairy Herd Tops Pennington DHIA

Cow at Burtness Farm Produces 656 Pounds BF In 365-Day Lactation

Orville Piters supervisor of the Pennington County Dairy Herd Improvement association, lists the following herds as the top 10 in the association for the month of February:

The herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If too many dry cows are included in the herd then the average for that month may be low even though the cows which are milking produce a lot of milk.

There were 25 herds with a total of 710 cows on test during February with the Pennington association; 81 per cent of which were milking. Average amount of milk produced per cow as 864 pounds which tested 3.53 per cent fat. This amounted to 30.5 pounds of fat per cow.

Four cows finished with over 500 pounds of butterfat during the testing year, in a 365-day or less lactation. They were:

Twelve owner-sampler herds were on test with a total of 260 cows, 83 per cent, of which were milking.

Durum Wheat Output Rose Sharply in 1962

The Ninth district durum wheat crop in 1962 recorded a 250 per cent increase over the output of 1961 and was the largest crop since 1928, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, in the current issue of its Monthly Review.

The 71.2 million bushel production compares with an annual average output of 26.5 million bushel over the 1951-1960 period. Through the years, almost all the U. S. supply of durum has been produced in the Ninth district.

Two factors primarily responsible for last year's district output increase were favorable weather, which more than doubled the average yield per acre, and a 39 per cent increase in the acres planted to durum wheat over the 1961 level, the result of the 1962 wheat program that relaxed durum acreage restrictions because of drouth-reduced supplies of the commodity.

The total supply situation for the 1962-1963 crop year contrasts markedly to that of the preceding year when stocks on July 1, 1962 fell to just over 5 million bushels. Assuming no imports, the total supply, 76.1 million bushels for this crop year, is well over the total stock of recent years, the Bank said.

Figures on the milling of semolina flour used in the making of spaghetti and macaroni products from durum wheat reflects this abundance. During the first six months of the crop year (July-December), 9.9 million bushels were milled compared to 8.2 million ground last year during the same period. Most of the mills have also shifted to grinding a 100 per cent durum product.

Durum exports dropped sharply during the first half of the 1962-1963 crop year. Large amounts of durum supplies are available in several exporting counties, particularly Canada, which produced an all-time record crop in 1962. The over-all world supply situation limits the U. S. export demand considerably beneath last year's levels. With a smaller export demand for durum, the U. S. year end carry-over could well exceed one year's normal production disappearance.

The beginning of the crop year saw durum wheat prices drop markedly as farmers began marketing the near-record crop. Since September, prices have strengthened somewhat, reflecting in part a holding on the part of farmers and some improvement in demand.

District economic activity on the whole appeared to slow down during January, even after allowing for normal seasonal declines. The larger than seasonal letdowns found in many of the financial and business series probably could be attributed to the colder than usual weather and its effects upon retail sales, construction and other weather-sensitive activities. In view of this, the district economy in January presented no clear evidence of a significant shift in the basic trends of the latter half of 1962, and over-all figures for the month indicate another "wait and see" period for the district, the Bank concluded.

Voters Approve Bond Issue for School Buildings

ble coupon general obligation bonds of the District in an amount not exceeding $1,195,000 for the acquisition and betterment of a junior high school?"

Part two of the question states: "If the authority requested under question No. 1 above is granted, shall the School Board of Independent School District No. 564, Minnesota, be further authorized to borrow additional money and issue the negotiable coupon general obligation bonds of the District in an amount not exceeding $300,000 for the acquisition and betterment of an elementary school and for the betterment of existing school buildings?"

Board members present unanimously adopted a resolution thanking the Citizen's Committee on Education and other local individuals not members of the committee for their work in disseminating facts on the school bond question and support of the issue. Members present and voting on the resolution were Morris Owen, John Burtness, Rufus Olson, Robert Bredeson and Lloyd Howick.

Robert Flynn and Lowell Swenson, co-chairmen of the Citizens' Committee on Education, issued a joint statement commending voters of the district for their interest in the election and for "the majority decision to proceed with the much needed building program." The thanks to the many people who worked on the committee for their assistance in conducting the house to house informational canvass.

justice court Monday. Both are charged with third degree burglary as a result of break-ins at Oslo, Alvarado and Argyle.

Wayne has also admitted the break-in at Phillips Auto Wrecking at Thief River Falls on Oct. 14, 1962, when a few tools but no money was taken. A juvenile boy from Thief River Falls is also involved in the Phillips robbery.

Solution of the many burglaries came about through questioning after two local police patrolmen stopped a car bearing the wrong license plates in Thief River Falls on February 24. Suspicion was aroused when an unusual amount of tools and miscellaneous items was found in the car.

FARMING TODAY

by your County Agent

Paul Stelmaschuk

Hay

Any extra hay? If you have extra hay it is possible that it may be sold in the Northeastern states. A severe drought in that area last year created a hay shortage. The extension office now is taking listings of hay which farmers may have for sale. If you plan to list hay we need a description of its quality, amount available, cutting date, asking price per ton (FOB), and whether it's alfalfa, grass hay, etc.

Your listing will be sent to the state extension service where hay is needed. You will be notified later, if buyers are found for it.

Butterfat Variations

Why don't different butterfat tests on a herd always give the same results—even if conducted just a few hours or days apart? Some variation is the rule — not the exception.

Butterfat tests can vary as much as two percentage points from one day to the next, and only a fourth or slightly more of the cows will vary less than 1 per cent. Variation comes from many causes.

First, breeds differ, with heavier breeds tending to have lower tests. Second, fat test decreases over the first two or three months after freshening and then increases gradually. Tests usually increase in fall and winter and decrease in summer. As temperature goes down, test tends to go up.

Milking interval makes a difference. Shorter intervals usually result in higher fat test and lower total milk yield. Therefore, morning milk usually has a lower test than evening milk.

While good feeding won't guarantee higher tests, cows must have enough grain for maximum production. Feeding a lot of finely ground hay or cutting down on forage intake may lower the test, however. Illnesses may cause temporary drops in test.

By far the most important consideration in maintaining uniform tests is milking management. Rules to follow are: Don't frighten or excite cows. Practice uniform milking procedures. Prepare cows properly for milking letdown, then attach milkers without delay.

Fat test increases sharply as milking progresses — meaning you don't lose much fat if you check for mastitis with a strip cup.

Prowlers Defeat EGF, Enter Region Tourney

Coach Jack Junker's Prowlers beat back the challenge of a stubborn East Grand Forks team in the finals of the District 31 basketball tournament at Grand Forks on Wednesday night, and score a 65 to 44 win. It was the twentieth district cage title for the Lincoln high school basketball squads since the sport was organized on a state-wide basis in 1913.

As a result of their win, the Prowlers will represent District 31 in the Region Eight tournament at Grand Forks on March 15 and 16. The Prowlers will meet the representatives from District 32 in a first-round game at 7:30 p. m. on March 15.

In a third place game, played prior to the championship finals last night, the Warren Ponies, with guard Jerry Cook scoring 19 points, defeated a Goodridge Husky squad that was minus the services of their rangy center, Lon Szymanski, from the second period on. The Ponies defeated the Huskies, 70 to 56. Szymanski, in the Huskies' overtime loss to East Grand Forks in the semi-finals, suffered an ankle injury, and the injury was aggravated in the first period of last night's game.

In the championship tilt, East Grand Forks, with Rich Hangsleben and Norm Bolstad doing the scoring, kept within reach of the Prowlers throughout the first half. The Prowlers led at the end of the first pelod, 15 to 11, with Tom Lindberg hitting on three field goals from the lane. With 1:10 of the first period remaining, the Powlers' captain, John Aune, picked up his third personal foul, and he was withdrawn from the game.

With their high-scoring captain out of action, the Prowlers, in the second period, received scoring help from Bob Olson, who scored three field goals, and Rick Jensen, who contributed a pair of field goals and a free throw.

The Prowlers held a 32 to 23 lead at the intermission, and opening the third period, Paul Klungness notched a Prowler free throw, giving the locals a 10-point bulge. Bolstad, who played a strong game around the boards, shouldering his way into position for rebound play, hit on a field goal for East Side. Klungness added another free-throw point.

But then the ever-trying Green Wave, on three quick field goals, with Louie Lopez tallying a pair and Carl Coulter hitting on a jump shot, and with 6:12 to play in the third period the Prowlers led by three points, 34 to 31. Lindberg looped in a field goal, and Aune, rushed back into action, scored a free throw and then tipped a rebound into the west basket. Lindberg and Klungness added two field goals apiece as the Prowlers moved into a 51 to 38 lead at the third period's end.

In the fourth period, after Klungness for the Prowlers and Rich Black for the East Side, had each tallied three free-throw points for their teams (Klungness left the game with 5:15 to play, on personals), Jensen with two jumpers, one from the free throw circle and the other from the left of the lane, "insured" the win. In the final minutes of the game, Bob Olson, who played real well for the Prowlers, scoring 14 points, scored on a layup; Lindberg, who was the game's high scorer, added two free throws; and Steve Mittelstadt closed out the game's scoring on a layup shot.

Lindberg, who was very accurate on his pivot shots from the lane, and proved effective in covering the boards against the rugged Bolstad, tallied 20 points.

Semi-final Round in District Play

The Thief River Falls Prowlers and the East Grand Forks Green Wave gained the District 31 championship finals on Tuesday night by scoring semi-finals victories over Warren and Goodridge, respectively. The Prowlers, combining a fast-breaking offense, strong rebounding, and sturdy defensive play, defeated the defending champion Ponies, 72 to 32. East Grand Forks, though, was forced into a pair of overtime sessions before edging out a courageous band of Goodridge Huskies, winning by a 52 to 48 score.

The Prowlers vs. Ponies game was resolved in the first two periods of play. Coach Jack Junker's, limiting Warren to a field goal in each period, gained a 48 to 15 lead at the intermission, and maintained control of the game throughout the second half to mark up their decisive win. The Ponies were without the services of forward Dennis Dvorak, who suffered a knee injury in Warren's first-round game against Climax.

The drama of the semi-finals program was crammed into the fourth period and the two overtime periods of the East Grand Forks vs. Goodridge tilt. Trailing by eight points, 23 to 15, at the intermission, Goodridge, with big Lon Szymanski doing a strong and effective job in clearing the boards, and scoring on rebounds, rallied to tie the game at 24 to 24 with 5:30 of the third period to play. The two teams exchanged basket for basket as the tempo of the play mounted, and the period ended, 32 to 32.

And the play in the fourth period continued at the same nip-and-tuck pace, with Goodridge holding a 42 to 41 lead with 1:34 to play, when East Grand Forks' Rich Hangsleben scored a free-throw point to knot the game at 42-all.

In the first three-minute overtime session, Szymanski, regaining a rebound, dropped a field goal into the west basket with 2:10 to play, and the Huskies led, 44 to 42. That lead was short-lived as burly Norm Bolstad, from the right-hand corner of the court, swished in an East Grand Forks field goal. The East Siders maintained control of the ball, maneuvering for a last-second shot, and, with seven seconds to play, Carl Coulter lofted a try at the basket. The shot was strong, and the ball rounded to the free-throw circle to the Huskies' speedy guard Dave Parnow. Parnow, with an open court, drove for a straight-on layup shot at the west basket, and the ball bounded off the back rim and out on the court as the buzzer sounded.

In the second overtime period, Coulter for East Side and Szymanski for the Huskies exchanged goals, and the score was still in a 46-46 knot with 1:42 to play. Hangsleben scored a field goal, and Bolstad tallied a pair of East Side free throws, and coach Larry Selk's club held a 50 to 46 lead. The game's final points were scored with free throws, with Goodridge marking up a pair and East Grand Forks adding a pair.

UNUSUAL circumstances led to the demise of this timber wolf Tuesday. Jerry Bulger, shown above with his trophy, first noticed the animal when delivering fuel about two miles east of Stephen. A former resident of Stephen, Jerry returned to town for his .243 rifle and relocated the wolf a short time later about two miles further east. He said the animal showed no fear and he was able to make the shot from about 75 yards at about 4 p.m. Tuesday. The animal tipped the scales at 91 pounds. Bulger works for Western Oil and Fuel company in Thief River Falls.

District Basketball

Sideline observers are agreed that this year's field in the District 31 tournament doesn't appear as strong as the fields in previous years. And this may be so. One of the reasons for this apparent falling-off in the tournament strength is the absence of the "big men".

In the present scheme of basketball, with possession of the ball and the clearing of rebounds being vital factors, a team requires a "big man". And in the tournament play that was concluded last night, Goodridge possessed the only bona fide "big man" in promising sophomore Lon Szymanski. Szymanski, who showed the fans some talents that were noteworthy, having the ability to hook from the right or the left, and proved quite effective on the boards. When the boy learns to make the moves around the lane, and gets his timing in control, he will become a good one, and perhaps a great one. He has a fine touch in lofting the ball at the basket.

The other teams in the tourney had to use players better adapted to forward play as the "big men" in the offense. And there were a number of capable players in this category, such as the Prowlers' Tom Lindberg and Bob Olson, Crookston's Jim Johnson, Warren's Dean Peterson, East Grand Forks Norm Bolstad, Fisher's Roger Beiswenger, Oslo's Wayne Nelson, and Climax's Bob Peregson.

Only in the guard play was the district tournement up to par. And all the teams had fine all-round players filling the back-court posts. The Powlers had John Aune and Rick Jensen; Warren had a good one in Jerry Cook; and of course Goodridge can rightly be proud of Dick Saurdiff and Dave Parnow, who led the Huskies to their first win ever in district play; East Grand Forks had Louie Lopez; Oslo had Dave Michalski; and Fisher had Lyle Berg and Rod Engel, both of whom will be back next season, and Climax received fine play from a crippled Lionel Estenson.

Baseball Notes

There are several boys who graduated from Region Eight high school and Ninth District baseball who are making bids in Organized Ball. And it is of interest to fans in this area to mark the progress these boys make.

Arlo Brunsberg, the famed all-round athlete from Fertile and Concordia college, is at the Detroit Tigers Lakeland, Florida, camp, and is included in the contingent of catchers. Arlo, who suffered a crippling knee injury while playing football with Concordia, is rated highly by the Detroit Tigers' coaching staff. If Brunsberg can hit for average (and it's odd that the smooth - swinging Brunsberg should be having hitting troubles) he will move up in the Detroit farm system this season.

Bemidji's Clark (Corky) Johnson has signed a contract with the El Paso Sun Kings of the Texas league, and will report on March 17. Corky was with the El Paso club last season, and, although bothered by an arm ailment, had a fair year with the Sun Kings, who won the Texas league title. El Paso is the second-ranked farm club of the San Francisco Giants.

Ken Weber, the former Ada high school and North Dakota all-round athlete, has been doing conditioning exercises in the North Dkota U fieldhouse in preparation for this season's baseball play. Ken, who is a Pittsburgh Pirate chattel, and who played with the Grand Forks Chiefs following the completion of the Sioux's baseball schedule last spring, will report to the Pittsburgh farm camp at Reno, Nev., in a week or two.

Jim Turner, who pitched many games for the Crookston high school Pirates and the Crookston Juniors against local clubs, spent several weeks visiting in Crookston last month. Jim, who now resides in Mason City, Iowa, is on the Cincinnati Reds roster, and pitched for the Reds' Geneva, New York State league team, last year. Jim, used in a relief a number of times, had a four wins and seven losses mark with the last-place Geneva club. He has been assigned to the Macon, Georgia, team for the spring training sessions.

And Roger Sinner, the rangy righthander who pitched Junior baseball in the Ninth District for Fergus Falls, will be at the San Francisco Giants training camp, and will be on the Tacoma, Wash., roster.

It would be fine if one or more of these boys make the "big time" in baseball. This area hasn't had a major leaguer in action since Clearbrook's Wes Westrum moved to the coaching box after a number of years of catching for the New York Giants.

Attention: Grade School Wrestlers

The grade-school wrestling program, with boys from the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades participating, will begin on Monday at 4:00 p. m. in the old gymnasium in the high school.

Prowler varsity coach Al Shaff and his assistant Dale Folger will direct the sessions, which will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. And also giving a hand in coaching the grade-school youngsters will be members of this season's Prowler varsity wrestling squad.

These practice sessions, on a three-times-a-week basis, will continue for three weeks. And at the conclusion a grade-school wrestling tournament will be held.

1st Round Scores in District Play

In first-round tournament competition in District 31 high school basketball at Grand Forks on Monday, Thief River Falls, Warren, Goodridge, and East Grand Forks marked up wins. The Prowlers defeated the Fisher Flyers, 66 to 51; the Warren Ponies bested the Climax Vikings, 50 to 44; the Goodridge Huskies sidelined the Crookston Pirates, one of the district's Class A teams, 62 to 41; and East Grand Forks defeated the Oslo Bobcats, 65 to 53.

In the tourney's opener, coach Jack Junker's Prowlers unleased a 21-point first period, with captain John Aune hitting on seven field goals and adding a free throw, to gain a 15-point cushion. And this lead proved to be the margin of victory, with the Prowlers winning by a 66 to 51 score over coach Norman Wagner's Fisher club.

In the second game on Monday's afternoon program, coach Irv St. John's Warren Ponies, the defending district champions, with playmaking Jerry Cook turning in a fine all-round game, defeated the Climax Vikings, 50 to 44.

Coach Glen Peters Goodridge Huskies, a crowd favorite, provided a minor upset in first-round play when they defeated coach Al Droen's Crookston Pirates, 62 to 41.

The Huskies win was due largely to the remarkable 49-point production of guards Dick Saurdiff and Dave Parnow. Saurdiff tallied six field goals and 15 free-throw points for a total of 27 points; and Parnow notched eight field goals and six free throws for 22 points. The Goodridge club, holding a 36 to 31 lead entering the fourth period, took control of the game in the final period by scoring 26 points while limiting the Pirates to but ten points. In this 26-point outburst, Saurdiff tallied a pair of field goals and connected on eight free throws in eight tries. And Parnow hit on a pair of fielders and made five of five free-throw tries.

Crookston's veteran Jim Johnson, closing out his high school cage career, scored nine field goals and three free throws in the Pirates' losing effort.

The final game of the first-round play found the East Grand Forks club, showing good all-round scoring balance, and with Louie Lopex directing the offense, defeated Oslo, 65 to 53.

Lions Get Preview of 'Wizard of Oz'

Mayor Orin Green Tells Club about Canadian Trip

The Lions club at its luncheon meeting Wednesday noon enjoyed excerpts from the musical play, "The Wizard of Oz", to be presented at Lincoln high school Friday and Saturday evenings by a cast of 215 students under the direction of Bryant Ulseth, music instructor, and James Solsten, orchestra teacher.

Sharing in the presentation were five students with principal roles, including Janet Thorstenson, Nadine Craig, Brian Lofberg, Jeffrey Hoel and Ronald Lindberg.

Mayor Orin Green reported that he and his family were royally entertained Saturday at Beausejour, Manitoba, Winnipeg suburb, where he had been invited to compete in a two-block-long snowshoe race, a feature of the town's winter carnival. He won runnerup honors in a field of nine mayors.

At the suggestion of James Parkins, member of the board of directors of the Minnesota Lions Eye Bank, the club voted a contribution of $1 per member to support the project.

Life Insurance Death Benefits $60 Million in Minnesota in 1962

Minnesota families received $59,900,000 in life insurance death payments from their life insurance companies in 1962, compared with $55,600,000 the year before, it is reported by the Institute of Life Insurance. Last year's payments were 102 per cent greater than those in the corresponding period ten years ago, when the year's total was $29,600,000.

The number of policies paid off in this state because of death in 1962 was 26,900 which compared with 24,700 in 1961 and 16,800 in 1952.

"The rise in death benefit payments in the past ten years is a direct reflection of the greatly increased family protection through life insurance owned by American families," Blake T. Newton, Jr., president of the Institute, said in announcing the figures. "Death benefits paid last year throughout the country were 112 per cent greater than in 1952, even though mortality among policyholders generally is relatively unchanged from the 1952 rate. Aggregate ownership of life insurance in this country has risen 161 per cent in the past ten years."

Of the total death payments in this state during 1962, $36,800,000 was under 12,300 ordinary policies; $21,000,000 was under 8,600 group life insurance certificates; and $2,100,000 was under 6,000 industrial policies.

For the nation as a whole, $3,878,100,000 was paid as death claims under 2,264,100 policies in 1962, compared with $3,581,400,000 under 2,140,300 policies in 1961 and $1,833,500,000 under 1,509,400 policies in 1952. Of the 1962 payments, $2,138,000,000 was under 684,500 ordinary policies; $1,381,800,000 was under 535,000 group certificates; and $358,300,000 was under 1,044,60 industrial policies.

New York led the states in the total of death claim payments in 1962, with $526,600,000 under 262,300 policies. Next in rank were California, $319,600,000; Pennsylvania, $300,600,000; Illinois, $272,600,000; and Ohio, $228,000,000.

State Budget Asks for 2,076 Increase in State Employes

Taxpayers Association Says $18-20 Million More Pay Involved in Biennium

The budget proposed to the legislature by Governor Andersen would add 2,076 new employees to state payrolls, Harold T. Miller, research director of the Minnesota Taxpayers association, said today.

At present pay levels the additional positions would cost a minimum of $18,600,000 for the two-year fiscal period beginning next July 1. Enactment of a "new pay plan" and salary increases also recommended by the governor would raise the total salary cost of the new employees to $20,400,000.

"The proposed new positions would increase the number of state employees by nearly 9 per cent," Miller said. "The salary costs of the new employees, including the 'new pay plan', merit increases, and the state's share of retirement costs, take up 19.1 per cent of the $106,752,780 increase in spending recommended by the governor."

Miller said that 796 of the new positions asked would be at the University, 288 at state colleges, 790 in welfare and correctional activities, 24 in the education department, 14 in the highway department (direct appropriation activities only), 9 in semi-state activities, and 155 in various other state departments.

One out of 5 Adults in U.S. Is a War Veteran

The Minnesota state employment service found jobs for 26,693 veterans, including 2,671 who were disabled, in 1962, it was announced today by Walter S. Carlson, state veterans employment representative for the United States Department of Labor.

In his annual report on the status of employment conditions for veterans in Minnesota, Carlson said that 1,605 veterans, 633 of whom were disabled, received counseling service to assist them in making a vocational choice or job adjustment.

He also reported that studies made by the Department of Labor show that there has been an almost five-fold increase in the overall veteran population —from 4.7 million to 22.3 million—between 1930 and 1962. The ratio changed from 1 veteran out of every 17 adults 18 years and older in 1930, to 1 out of every 5 in 1962. Only 1 out of 10 veterans living now served in World War I, compared to 9 out of 10 in 1930.

Almost 44 per cent of the total United States population now are veterans, members of veterans families, or dependent survivors — almost 81 million persons — reported Carlson. Average age of all veterans in 1930 was 38.8 years compared to 43.3 now (World War I veterans average 43.0, while Korean veterans average 30.8).

Carlson urged all veterans who may have employment problems, either in job-finding or job adjustment, to contact the veterans employment representative in any of the 33 offices of the Minnesota state employment service, located in the principal cities of the state.

NW Bell Reveals Increase in Use Of Its Services

100,000 More Phones in Use During 1962; Other Services Are Expanded

Continuing increase in use of telecommunications in a widening variety of forms is forecast by Northwestern Bell President A. F. Jacobson in the company's report for 1962, released recently.

Indicative of this direction was growth during the year in new forms of communication such as wide area calling, private line services and greater use of the telephone network for the transmission of data through the interconnection of computers and other business machines.

A gain of nearly 100,000 telephones and a rise in use of intercity services accounted for a seven per cent increase in overall customer use of the company's services last year.

To provide for this growth and to continue its service improvement program, company expenditures for new facilities for the year totalled $115.1 million, a record high. Of this amount more than $82 million went for growth and improvement, the remainder to replace worn and outmoded plants.

Over the past five years the company's investment in plants throughout Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota has risen from $658 million to just over $1 billion at the close of 1962. This is a growth rate of over 10 per cent per year on the average which is considerably in excess of the rate of growth for the economy as a whole.

Resort Operators To Review New Government Rules

A summit meeting of Minnesota resort operators will be held in Little Falls March 17, 18, and 19. The March meeting is not to be confused with the annual meeting of Minnesota Resort Association. It will be open to anyone in the resort business who wishes to register and pay a $25 fee.

Four guest speakers will appear on the two-day program. Government rules and regulations on wages and hours, business entertainment expense and other tax matters, brought into being since resorts closed last year, necessitated this meeting, a complete transcript of which will be made available to those attending.

"The basis of our government being the opinion of the people, the very first objective should be to keep it right; and were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter."

—Thomas Jefferson

The Easy Way?

President Kennedy is sure prosperity will be just around the corner if his tax program is approved and we are able to rack up a really big deficit. According to him it would open the door to a much greater economic growth "which might total over the next ten years—400 billion dollars more in our output of goods and services; 110 billion more in profits; 210 billion more in wages and $5,000 more in income for every family."

Isn't that wonderful? Or is it? How much buying power would those dollars have? That's a pretty important question too.

The people of Germany spent themselves rich following the first world war. The printing presses rolled out the German marks and money was plentiful again. But gradually that money lost buying power. Inflation started slowly but gradually it gained momentum and finally German marks became valueless.

A few Germans became extremely wealthy. They bought heavily on credit. Their promises to pay were in terms of German marks and as the marks lost value it was easy to pay debts.

Their experience with inflation following World War I is what induced the Germans to rebuild their nation the hard way following World War II. Europe learned by experience, and Europe is prosperous now. Let us hope that congress will resist the temptation to solve our problems the easy way, and adopt instead, the kind of recovery program that has been proven sound. Wise men learn by the experience of others.

The Need Is Urgent

The Ford Motor Company has indicated that it will build a one-million-ton taconite plant near Eveleth on the Iron Range, providing the industry is given assurance that it will not be discriminated against by state or local taxes. That is a most encouraging development. The people of Minnesota will give that assurance we are sure, and the Legislature should submit the proposition to them for their approval at the next general election.

Maybe this example of how industry can be discouraged by unfair or unwise taxation will lead to more serious consideration of some of our other tax problems here in Minnesota. From the standpoint of industry our tax structure does not compare favorably with the tax structures of neighboring states, and those industries that are in a position to choose their locations will of course study tax differences thoroughly before picking a state.

We are surrounded by states that lean heavily on sales taxes for revenue. The sales tax has proven itself to be one of the most popular revenue producers for state purposes thruout the nation. Our income tax is one of the highest in the nation and that is bad because it places an additional burden on incomes that already are paying a heavy federal tax.

No tax is popular and that certainly is true for the tax on personal property. Practically all of the revenue from this tax is distributed for local needs however and unless some form of replacement were adopted, killing the personal property tax would merely shift more of the burden to real estate.

Our tax structure here in Minnesota is very much in need of a thorough revision, and in considering revision, emphasis should be placed on the desirability of maintaining uniformity with other states, and especially with neighboring states. Minnesota is now rated as one of the backward states because of our present tax structure, and the need for revision is urgent.

On Being Helpful

Little progress is being made at the Geneva Disarmament Conference and there appears to be little likelihood of a ban on nuclear testing. President Charles de Gaulle has declared that France will act independently in this field and nuclear bombs probably will soon be available to many nations. That is a discouraging prospect.

Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review, discussed the overall problem at some length in a recent issue and concluded his comments with the following statement:

"The new talks in Geneva are not going well. It is possible that the Soviet Union, which has been charged by Communist China with appeasing the United States, will back away from its agreement to accept inspection. If it does then the world will move that much closer to the nuclear edge. Meanwhile, however, there would seem to be an opening, thin though it is. Whether it is wide enough for any effective agreement it is difficult to say. In any case, the President of the United States needs to know that he has the backing of the American people on this issue.

"Anyone who has ever asked himself the question "What can I do?" need be tormented by his helplessness no longer. He can make known his views to the people in government whose job it is to represent him."

It isn't clear to us just what Mr. Cousins had in mind when he suggested that we, the run-of-the-mill citizens, could be helpful in this matter by telling our representatives in Washington what we think they should do about this most disturbing situation. They are much closer to the facts than we are. We do not want war, and especially not a nuclear war, and we are sure that they are of the same opinion.

If we were to write to our representatives it probably would be mainly to express our concern over the fact that we are not getting along with our friends as well as we should be, and that our country may be assuming too much of the responsibility for world leadership. Our friends probably resent some of the one-man decisions that are made in matters involving them. And now and then we suspect that not all of the world's war mongers are in the enemy's camp.

Shameful Record

Congressman Adam Powell of New York, is, by his misconduct, as a prominent public official, doing a disservice to the Negro race. The St. Paul Pioneer Press agrees that he deserves much of the criticism he is getting for his reckless spending of public money and for his indiscretions. But, the Pioneer Press reminds us:

"—it is unfair to single him out as if he were the only member of congress to indulge in indiscretions. There are plenty of others whose trips abroad with friends and relatives would not stand public scrutiny.

"The fact is that the junketing of Powell and others is encouraged by lax congressional ethics on such matters, and failure of both the house and senate to set up reasonable regulations and accounting procedures for their members. Some belated steps are now being taken to curb abuses, but they still do not go far enough. It was only because of publicity given Powell that the house leadership reluctantly instituted some long overdue restrictions on its members. Members of the senate have criticized Powell, but have done little about tightening travel and expense account rules for their own body."

The criticism should be directed at Congress itself for tolerating such misconduct by a member. The members of both the Senate and the House should be required to make a public accounting of all of their expenditures of government money. It is a shameful thing that some members of the nation's law making body set such a bad moral example for the people they are elected to serve.

Four Decades of Service

In his column in Newsweek last week, Raymond Moley, called attention to the remarkable record of J. Edgar Hoover who is completing four decades of service as chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, suggesting that, considering the record, the letters FBI could stand for fidelity, bravery and intelligence. In Mr. Moley's opinion the thing that most distinguishes Hoover's career is his fidelity to the limited function of his organization and to constitutional restrictions. He says:

"Americans should remind themselves from time to time that the FBI is largely an investigative agency. It does not prosecute. It does not judge. It finds the facts and submits them to agencies responsible for doing something about them. The FBI lets facts speak for themselves.

"This concentration of function has marked J. Edgar Hoover as more than a super detective, more than an uncommonly capable executive, more than a protector of American security against alien enemies. He has the essential qualities of a statesman. For true statesmanship is found in an individual who when in power understands the limitations within which that power should be prudently used. He can live with power without succumbing to its narcotic effect."

Moley reminds us that during forty years of service Hoover has served under six presidents and has "survived" twelve attorneys general, and concludes:

"As long as Hoover or the Hoover tradition is on guard, Americans need not fear the perils of a police state. He has said: "The secret of crime eradication lies not in a national police force but in solidarity and the linking of all law-enforcement agencies." He has gained that solidarity, better called cooperation, by never usurping but in helping local, state, and other Federal authorities through mutual respect and trust.

"Finally, he and his extraordinary staff have indefatigably guarded the liberties of Americans against the hot blood of overzealous pursuers of alleged wrongdoing. He has kept in mind the old rule that not only must there be guardians, but that someone must guard the guardians."

(This is the tenth in a series of articles on income taxes made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar Association, Public Relations Committee.)

Generally, you must include in gross income the amount you receive from your employer as an allowance or reimbursement for meals and traveling expenses paid by you. So that you are not forced to itemize all of your personal deductions in order to recoup this addition to income, you are allowed to deduct from gross income the expenses you incurred for which your employer reimbursed you. Normally, this would require the reporting of the income and an itemization of your expenses in connection with this reimbursed income. However, the regulations now allow you to forego the detailed itemization of these expenses if you are reimbursed by your employer and if you were required to account for the money spent to your employer. If you received not more than 15 cents per mile for mileage and not more than $20 per day for other expenses while traveling on business away from home, you are presumed to have accounted to your employer, and, if your expenses were in an amount equal to the reimbursement from your employer, you need not report the income received or itemize these expenses on your tax return. You need only answer the two questions concerning expense allowance or reimbursement on the Federal tax return.

To this point, the discussion has dealt with expense reimbursement where your expenses are less than the amount received from your employer. However, it is possible that you may spend more for certain expenses incurred on behalf of your employer than the amount which he reimburses you. Some of these expenses incurred by you, when properly itemized on your return, are deductible directly from gross income, while others must be itemized as deductions from adjusted gross income.

For example, you are allowed to deduct from gross income, whether or not your employer reimburses you, for expenses or travel including meals and lodging incurred by you while you are away from home overnight performing services for your employer. You are also entitled to deduct from gross income transportation expenses incurred by you on behalf of your employer, other than the cost to you of commuting to and from work.

Planting on Trunk Routes Cuts Noise

Trees and Shrubs Do More Than Beautify Highways

Although roadside planting has been used for many years to beautify highways, increased attention is now being paid to planning highways with plantings used for noise abatement, according to students of the subject at the Minnesota highway department.

Landscape development of the whole right of way is related to land use of abutting property and includes factors making for pleasant and safe driving and for quiet and pleasant living along the highway.

Methods of noise abatement include various types of barriers and buffer plantings such as barrier walls, solid fence embankments, hedges, shrubs, vines and combinations of these, installed only at critical locations.

It appears from some research projects that the depressed surface highway, together with planted roadside slopes, absorbs sound and deflects it upward to the best advantage.

Present day road builders take the noise abatement and beautification factors into account even as early in the process as when the right of way is being acquired.

There are numerous types of plantings used for screening sound along highways, preferably conifers, flowering crab, deciduous shrubs and broad leafed trees. Each location is carefully studied for the right combination of noise abatement plantings.

Economic Growth Parley Set by DFL

Slated in Minneapolis on Saturday, March 16

What can be done to bring business and industry into the main streets of Minnesota's towns and cities?

Attorney General Walter Mondale, conference chairman, said that the purpose of the meeting will be to discuss thoroughly the economic factors faced by Minnesota towns and cities in attracting new industry and creating new jobs.

Mondale announced that Professor Seymour Harris, internationally noted Harvard economist, will be the guest speaker.

Dr. Harris will speak at an afternoon session on "How Education Can Aid Economic Growth." Robert Hess, University of Minnesota Regent and executive vice-president of the Minnesota ALF-CIO, will lead a question session for Dr. Harris.

What's Inside?

WHAT MAGIC INGREDIENTS DO THESE BOTTLES CONTAIN? Do they hold harmful, injurious poisons? Or are they filled with healing medicines and vitamins? Will they inflict pain, or will they cure disease?

But what does it matter? If the contents are bad, we can pour them out.

But the minds of children is an entirely different matter. A small human being can be filled with selfishness and hate, or he can be filled with sincerity and love. Unfortunately, evil is more quickly dispelled from a glass bottle than from the soul of a child. For in the human mind bad thoughts can grow, and as time goes on, it is more difficult to replace them with truth and love.

That is why it is so important to instill within our children a sense of right and wrong at an early age. Of course, by example, "you" can be a tremendous influence. But you need the help of your church—the wisdom of Christ's teachings. With them, you can fill your heart with the essential ingredients for a happy and fruitful life.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Jaycee Chapter Reviews Reports from Committees

Several items of business and reports from committees highlighted the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening in the Elks club rooms.

James Wilson, manager of Northwestern Bell Telephone company showed a movie on rescue breathing and gave a demonstration on the technique involved. Used in the demonstration was "resusci-Annie", a life-like inflatable dummy, which could be actuated by proper performance of the rescue breathing technique.

Wilson noted that the dummy had been perfected through the technology financed by a philanthropist whose own daughter died because nobody knew how to use the artificial respiration technique. Face of the dummy was molded from a death mask made of the girl. Following instruction by Wilson, each of the members present tested his knowledge by practicing rescue breathing with the dummy.

Reports Given

Ralph Foster reported on the Minnesota Jaycees DSA banquet held in Bemidji and reminded the chapter members of the next state meeting to be held at St. Cloud early in May. He also commented on the spoke award program for first year chapter members which will be implemented by the local chapter in the near future.

James Wilson reported on the Valentine party and was given a round of applause by the chapter for the manner in which the project was conducted. Richard "Bud" Evans reported on the Outstanding Young Farmer award which was presented to James Muzzy at the Boss-Employee banquet this year.

Charles Holmquist stated that the charity dance for the benefit of the local Salvation Army unit would be held in March with music to be furnished by the Tornadoes dance band.

Bid for Pageant

Following discussion on possibilities of hosting the District Miss Minnesota pageant in Thief River Falls, the chapter approved the attempt to secure this city as the site for the pageant. A formal application will be submitted to the Minnesota Jaycees in an attempt to gain approval for holding the event in Thief River Falls.

Membership drive activities were announced by Marvin Lundin and a list of prospective members was distributed among the members. From this list one potential member has been selected as a "mystery prospect". Any chapter member who signs the mystery prospect to active membership will win a cash prize of $15 offered by the chapter. Deadline for the contest is April 1.

Club members also decided on a style of jackets to be purchased as official for chapter members and the committee was authorized to make a final selection on the type and style of lettering to be used. Members will be called by phone and must make a deposit with Richard Bjorkman at Bjorkman's Clothing prior to ordering of the jackets in a group order.

Early Requests Are Needed for Ditching Projects

All farmers who desire assistance with drainage matters in Pennington county should report their plans 90 days ahead of the planned construction date, according to Robert Kloubec, work unit conservationist for the Pennington County Soil Conservation District.

Under legislation enacted late last summer, the Fish and Wildlife Service of the U. S. Department of the Interior has 90 days to approve or disapprove all drainage requests in which the Department of Agriculture participates.

Farmers wanting cost-share assistance on drainage should check with the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office. Farmers who want only survey assistance and not cost-share assistance should consult the Soil Conservation Service office.

Drainage assistance from the Department of Agriculture will be on the same basis as in the past, Kloubec said, except that good waterfowl sloughs will not be eligible for drainage assistance. Approved projects will be cost-shared at the rate of six cents per yard.

Merchants Decide On Store Hours

Thief River Falls merchants met Friday at the Rex cafe and made several decisions in regard to store openings and spring promotions. A new approach will be a two-hour special each Friday during April under the heading of "Springzapoppin".

Beginning April 5 stores will stay open Friday evenings until 9 p. m. On Good Friday, April 12, stores will remain closed until 10:30 a. m. to permit employees to attend church services. This practice will represent a departure from the previous noon to 3 p. m. closing of former years.

A special edition of the Thief River Falls Shopper will be published on April 2 to emphasize the beginning of Friday night openings for the season. An Easter coloring contest will again be sponsored by local firms this year with contest pictures to be printed in the April 1 edition of the Times and April 2 edition of the Shopper.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Gustafson are expected home this week from Phoenix, Ariz., where they spent the winter.

Kathy Wengeler Wins in County Spelling Event

Pennington county's representative at the state spelling contest will be Katherine Wengeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wengeler of Thief River Falls and an eighth grade student at St. Bernard's school.

Katherine won the county finals in the Minneapolis-Tribune-sponsored contest held last Friday at the Goodridge high school under the supervision of Dr. David Brown superintendent. Runner-up and third place honors went to Dinne Goulet and Margaret Wurst, both of Thief River Falls, also pupils at St. Bernard's. Other pupils competing were from the Goodridge school and Little Oak school in Eastern Pennington county.

The state contest will be held at the Leamington Hotel in Minneapolis on April 20. Accompanying Katherine to Minneapolis will be her teacher, Sister Hyacinthe, O. S. B., principal of St. Bernard's school.

Hospital Will Impose Visitor Restrictions

Due to the high incidence of upper respiratory infection and stomach flu in the community, temporary restrictions for visitors are being imposed at Northwestern Hospital, according to Dr. H. Paul Wendt, chief of staff, and Norman Peterson, administrator.

Until further notice, visits will be permitted only by members of the immediate family of persons hospitalized. The temporary restriction is being imposed to prevent the carrying of such disease germs into the hospital and is designed for the protection of persons hospitalized for other ailments.

Ormond Johnson Heads Pennington Co. Cancer Group

An organizational meeting to prepare the way for establishing an official unit of the American Cancer Society in Pennington county was held Friday evening at the Rex Cafe in Thief River Falls. The meeting was called by Mrs. Edward T. Nelson who was recently named by the American Cancer Society as the volunteer activities chairman for Pennington county.

A temporary slate of officers was named, including Ormond Johnson as president; Mrs. Edward T. Nelson, volunteer activities chairman; Mrs. Paul Wendt, education chairman; Mrs. George VanRooy, service chairman; Allen Torkelson, crusade chairman; Dr. Earl Dagg, physician; Mrs. Fred Sorensen, secretary; and Dr. Edward Nelson as treasurer.

A committee from this group will attend an informational session next week at Crookston. Before an official charter can be issued by the Minnesota Division, the group must draw up a constitution and by-laws and organize several committees for volunteer action in the county. Mrs. Nelson explained that several advantages would be realized through the forming of a County Unit. The work of the Crusade chairman has been conducted here before and is generally understood by the public. Some work has also been conducted toward public education about cancer but this could now be much more thorough under the supervision of a full time educational chairman. Perhaps most important will be the possibility of offering direct services to cancer patients in the county through the establishing of a "loan closet" of equipment and supplies needed by cancer patients. This would be supervised by a committee working under the service chairman of the county unit.

Another meeting of the group is scheduled in the third week of March to review the plans of the crusade chairman, Allen Torkelson. The annual Cancer Crusade will be conducted in April.

Rabies Vaccination Clinic Set March 15

Dr. F. W. Hazard, local veterinarian, will conduct a rabies vaccination clinic from 7 to 9 p. m Friday, March 15, at his office located on Oakland Park Road just south of the Dina-A-Mite Cafe.

Augustine Again Nominated for Land O'Lakes Post

Marlan Augustine of rural Thief River Falls was unanimously elected a nominee for director on the board of Land O'Lakes Creameries Inc., at the annual meeting of District 17 held Thursday afternoon in Thief River Falls. Art Stenberg, also of rural Thief River Falls and a former member of the Land O'Lakes board, withdrew from the election.

Renamed to the district board of directors were Art Norby, Grygla; Edgar Rokke, Newfolden; Carl Krohn, Viking; Elmer Severson, Clearbrook; and Augustine. The board will reorganize at the annual meeting of Land O'Lakes to be held Wednesday through Friday at Minneapolis.

About 750 people attended the annual meeting and a request was made to change the by-laws and permit directors to be elected for three-year terms instead of being elected annually. Action on the request will be taken at the next annual meeting when a by-law change will be presented.

Speakers at the session were Dan Holtz, Land O'Lakes board president, who reviewed operations of the cooperative, and Frank Stone, general manager, who spoke on problems relative to the dairy industry.

Deadline Near for Feed Grain Signup, ASC Tells Farmers

"Don't think it over too long," is the word passed along to feed grain producers by Edward A. Johnson, chairman, Marshall Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committee. He reminds growers who are iterested in taking part in the 1963 feed grain program that filing an "intention - to - participate form at their ASC county office is a necessary first step, and the signup period extends only through March 22. This gives farmers only a few days longer in which to make up their minds about 1963 production plans.

Minimum diversion under the 1963 program is 20 per cent of the individual farm's total feed grain base. For diverting more than the minimum acreage from feed grain production into a conserving use, the diversion payment will be figured at a higher rate.

Besides the diversion payments available through participation in the feed grain program, participating farmers also qualify for a special price-support payment on the normal production of the acreage planted to feed grains in 1963, and they are also eligible to put their crop under the regular price-support loans or purchase agreements. If the farmer wishes, a part of the diversion payment may be made in advance.

Chairman Johnson points out that participation in the feed grain program not only saves the farmer the costs of planting and harvesting acreage of unneeded feed grains while guaranteeing a substantial income from his diverted acres, but it also incrases the conservation of the Nation's cropland, continues the reduction of government feed grain stocks, and saves dollars for taxpayers by reducing the costs of storage, shipping, and handling the government-owned grains.

February Weather—A Relief After January

February weather proved to be a relief after a chilly January as the month was completed without a high temperature dropping below the zero mark. Temperatures averaged 6.85 degrees for the month with high readings averaging 17.89 and lows averaging —4.18 degrees. Snowfall during the 28-day period totaled 7.60 inches.

While temperatures in February of 1963 were considerably warmer than the same month a year ago, they were much colder than a balmy February in 1961. In that year February high termperatures averaged 25 degrees and lows averaged 5.70 degrees above zero.

High temperature for February this year was 42 degrees on the 5th and 6th while the low was —24 on the 21st. Lowest high reading was 3 degrees on February 21 while the highest low was 13 degrees on February 7. Greatest amount of snowfall was 2.5 inches on February 19 while 2.1 inches fell on February 9 and .9 inch fell the following day.

Comparisons from February in previous years include the following: 1962—High of 38 and low of —37 with 14.9 inches of snow; 1961—High of 37 and low of —21 with 4.6 inches of snow; 1960—High of 30 and low of —14 with .9 inch of snow; and 1959—High of 35 and low of —39 with 6 inches of snow.

In a summary of 1962 weather prepared by O. C. Soine, agronomist at the Northwest experiment station at Crookston, he notes that precipitation measured 24.07 inches compared to the 60-year average of 20.24 inches in 1962. Five months were above average in precipitation with the greatest amount being 5.75 inches received

Girl Scouts Dedicate New Camp on Sunday

Camping facilities for Thief River Falls Brownies, Intermediates and Senior Girl Scouts will be available at a nearby location in future years. Special ceremonies held Sunday honored the transfer of deed for about 10 acres of wooded property from Mr. and Mrs. Mons Engelstad to the Thief River Falls Girl Scout troop.

Attended by about 100 persons, including Girl Scouts and their parents and friends, the ceremony was a fitting opening for Girl Scout Week which is being observed nationally this week. The new camp grounds is located a mile east and one-quarter mile south of the Thief River Falls municipal airport.

Oak trees predominate the camp grounds and the 10 acres provide ample space for an improved camp site and picnic area in addition to wooded land for hikes and nature study. As soon as weather permits, work will be started by volunteers in cleaning up the camp area and preparing for summer outings.

At the present time Thief River Falls has about 50 Senior Girl Scouts in three troops, 90 Intermediate Scouts and six troops and 150 Brownie Scouts in 10 troops. Thirty-five registered adult leaders carry on the program.

Girl Scout Week is being observed with several store window displays in downtown stores. Other activities planned for the near future are a Court of Awards on April 29 and a picnic with parents as part of the Brownie Fly-Up at the end of May.

Scout Week Theme

"Honor the Past — Serve the Future" is again the theme of Girl Scout Week as members of the organization throughout the nation observe the 51st birthday of the Girl Scouts of America. Program changes are constantly being introduced to keep the program in tune with the needs and expectations of girls in our present times.

Renette Yvonne Ulrich Is Bride of T. Hamness

Miss Renette Yvonne Ulrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ulrich of Red Lake Falls, and Thorval (Ted) Hamness, son of Mrs. Alice Hamness of Strathcona, were united in marriage at St. John's Lutheran Church at Red Lake Falls on Saturday, February 23, at an afternoon ceremony. The double-ring rite was performed by Rev. A. C. Seltz.

The altar, decked with baskets of pink and white mums, was the lovely setting as the bride, given in marriage by her father, proceeded up the aisle to the strains of the organ with Mrs. James Johnson of St. Hilaire playing "Let Us Ever Walk With Jesus." Mrs. Johnson also accompanied soloist Mrs. Ivan Gjovek of Strathcona, an aunt of the groom, as she sang, "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride's floor-length gown, fashioned by her mother, was of Chantilly lace over satin with long sleeves tapered at the wrist, fitted bodice, and full skirt. She wore a crown headpiece fashioned of lace, and securing a fingertip length veil. Her jewelry was a cross pendant with matching earrings. The bridal bouquet was of white carnations and pink roses.

Attending her as maid of honor was her sister, Cheryl Ulrich, while another sister, Miss Bonnie Ulrich, was bridesmaid. Both are from Red Lake Falls. Their mother also fashioned their gowns, which were identically styled of pink embossed cotton in street length and featured three-quarter length sleeves, fitted bodices, and scoop necklines and full skirts. They wore matching shoes and pink pillbox headpieces. Their nosegay bouquets were of white carnations.

Best man was Gary Hamness of St. Paul, a cousin of the groom. Groomsman was James Gjovek, of Strathcona, the groom's cousin. Sharing ushering duties were Ronny Konickson and Kenneth Ulrich, both of whom are cousins of the bride. All of the men in the wedding party were in dark suits and wore boutonnieres of white carnations.

Mrs. Ulrich chose a green street-length dress for her daughter's wedding, while the mother of the groom wore a black lace gown over aqua satin, and wore tan accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of gold-and-silver-tipped carnations.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors. It was given by the parents of the bride. Centering the bridal table was a three-tiered wedding cake topped with white bells and a miniature bride and groom. Vases of pink roses completed the decor. The other guests were served buffet style.

Mrs. Norman Aanenson and Mrs. Arnold Arlt, aunts and sponsors of the bride, cut and served the cake. Mrs. Henry Konickson and Mrs. Lloyd Arlt, aunts of the bride, poured. Waitresses were Scharlene Carlson, Diane Hesse, Cathy Steitz, and Bonnie Hesse. Hostesses were Mrs. Vay Rawerts and Mrs. Ernest Ulrich, aunts of the bride. At the gift table was Mrs. Eugene Hanson, Thief River Falls, sister of the groom; Mrs. Ray Gjovick, Strathcona, aunt of the groom, and Miss Betty Johnson. Mrs. Richard Novacek of Greenbush, sister of the groom, registered the guests.

The out-of-town guests in attendance were from Morgan, Halstad, McIntosh, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Greenbush, Strathcona, and Middle River.

Mrs. Hamness is a graduate of the Martin high school of Buhl, and the bridegroom attended the Greenbush high school and is at present employed by the United Insurance Company in Minneapolis.

The bride's travel costume was a long-sleeved white wool dress, with blue and black accessories. The couple is at home at 3023 Aldrich Ave. Minneapolis.

There Is A Difference In Sanitone Cleaning!

HERE ARE 5 BIG REASONS WHY

1. CLASSIFYING— All garments are first sorted according to fabric and color. Because fabrics vary, they require individual treatment. Each type is classified and cleaned in controlled temperatures so that the size and texture stay intact and the garment retains its original style.
2. CLEANING— The "Sanitone" process is used exclusively while fine fabrics are hand cleaned to prevent over cleaning which causes loss of shape.
3. SPOTTING— Each garment is inspected and hand spotted by experts because no cleaning process will remove all spots.
4. FINISHING— All garments are deodorized and carefully pressed to blend collars and lapels with the natural tapering of the garment.
5. INSPECTION— All garments are inspected inside and out for missing buttons, hooks and snaps while linings are examined for minor repairs. No garment released until it is ready-to-wear.

Post-Nuptial Reception Held For E. Melvies, Jr.

A wedding reception was held Saturday evening, February 23, at the Norden church of rural Thief River Falls honoring Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Melvie, Jr., who were married recently in Minneapolis. The bride is the former Thora Chwiolkowski of Stephen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Chwiolkowski of that city, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Melvie Sr. of Viking.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father and was seated at the altar with her husband during the program which followed. Her attire was a floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with a hoop skirt, a sequin-trimmed bodice with long sleeves and modified V neckline. She wore a veil of illusion net fastened to a circlet crown of satin. Her flowers were a corsage of pink rosebuds fastened in a heart-shaped rhinestone pin.

Mrs. Harold Hugg, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, but was unable to be present at the reception. Viola Scott served as her stand-in. Ervin Melvie, the groom's brother, was best man at the wedding, and was seated at the altar with the other members of the wedding party. Kenneth Carlson served as usher. Darlene Melvie, sister of the groom, was at the guest book.

The three-tiered cake, fashioned with pillars and swans, was topped with a bell, net and dainty floral decoration. It was baked and decorated by Mrs. Clarence Molskness. Mrs. I. E. Dyrdal of this city, a great-aunt of the groom, and Arlene Melvie, Viking, the groom's cousin, cut the cakes. Mrs. Boyce Lee of this city, a cousin of the groom, poured. Orlette Melvie and Mrs. Dake Ayers were waitresses. Mrs. Paul Furuseth, Mrs. George Joyce, Mrs. Harold Langaas and Mrs. Daryl Lewis were in charge of the kitchen.

Paul Furuseth emceed a short impromptu program, which included a solo, "Savior, Like a Shepherd Lead Us," by Charles Joyce of Thief River Falls, two vocal selections, "Pilot's Hand in Mine," and "Not One Word Has Failed," by Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hjelle of Viking; a poem in keeping with the occasion read by Mrs. Maynard Ranum of Viking; and short speeches of congratulation and relating of humorous incidents from the groom's younger days were contributed by various friends.

The bride is a graduate of Strandquist high school and the groom a graduate of Newfolden high school. They are both now employed in Minneapolis, but they will be at home at Viking after April 1, when the groom will be engaged in trucking and farming.

Approximately 75 relatives, friends, and members of the congregation from Stephen, Viking, and the Thief River Falls area were in attendance.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the kitchen of

MRS. DAYTON KJONAAS

It seems a good idea to sneak a Lenten recipe into this spot right about now, even though it interrupts the series of Feed and Seed Show winning recipes we began a few weeks back.

Mrs. Kjonaas, like all mothers in these days of supermarket abundance and the refrigerator's easy accessibility for substitutes for Mom's planned menus, finds it hard to come up with something that everyone in the family likes, but this recipe, she says, does it. And it's an "easy-do" dish. What better solution to the problems of the modern menu-planner?

SALMON LOAF ROYAL

¼ cup raw rice
2 cups (1 lb.) salmon
2 eggs, beaten
¾ cup milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon green pepper, minced (optional)
1 teaspoon onion, minced
salt and pepper

Cook rice for 15-20 minutes in 2 quarts boiling water until tender. Drain. Combine the other ingredients, add rice, and mix well. Pour into greased casserole or mold. Place in pan filled with water to a depth of one inch. Bake at 300 degrees for one hour. Unmold, or serve right from the baking dish, whichever you prefer.

This dish may be served with creamed mushrooms, peas, or egg sauce. The Kjonaases like it plain, served with mashed or creamed potatoes, and a Jello salad. For their family, Mrs. Kjonaas doubles the recipe.

There are 8 youngsters in the Kjonaas household: Michael, 13; Julia, 12; Jovinae, 11; Debra, 9; Cynthia 7; Venona, 6; Timothy, 4; Roberta, 7½ months. The breadwinner is a mechanic at Tunberg Motor Company, of this city.

Reading tops the list of this homemaker's preference in the use of leisure time, with sewing a close second. However, with a family of that size, she finds little time for hobbies. Something she and her husband have taken up recently is painting-by-number, which proves that she doesn't have a lack of interests; it is simply the lack of spare time in which to follow them.

Lunch will be served at the close of the afternoon's activities.

Mental Illness Calls for Understanding

Mental disorders are rapidly becoming the number one ailment among people over 40. Authorities say that at least 8 million or more Americans now suffer from some form of mental illness, and further estimate that another 10 million now living will spend some part of their lives in a mental hospital.

According to the Minnesota State Medical association, the conscientious person who takes his responsibilities seriously is often prone to mental illness — although mental illness can strike anyone. It often hits persons who have reached an age where they realize they will not be able to attain everything in life they would like to, or persons who feel that their life offers them no security.

The more common forms of mental illness, says the Association, include:

Mental fatigue — resulting from being dissatisfied with one's work or way of life, loss of self-confidence, or just feeling "in a rut";

Nervous exhaustion — resulting from setting too fast a pace for one's self, tension, lack of sleep;

Emotional problems due to everyday life — financial and family difficulties which one can't seem to resolve;

Menopausal problems — accompanied by glandular changes that make one feel "life is over";

Arteriosclerotic problems — resulting from hardening of the small blood vessels in the brain. Since blood vessel degeneration is a normal part of old age, there will be more cases of arteriosclerotic mental illness as life expectancy increases.

It is important, says the Association, that relatives and friends of the mentally ill realize that emotional illness should be thought of in the same way as one would think of bad tonsils or a broken arm, and realize that once a mental ailment is cured it is just as cured as any purely physical illness.

When a person feels himself overly distraught and hemmed in by a problem, the association emphasizes that he should discuss his problem with a person in whom he has confidence, such as his religious counselor or his doctor.

Poison Prevention Week to Be Observed

March 17 through 23 is the second annual National Poison Prevention Week, as designated by Congress. This collective national effort is designed to focus attention of the public on the ever-present dangers of accidental poisoning to children, particularly under the age of 5 years, but people of all ages die needlessly every year from accidental poisoning in Minnesota.

Of the 142 victims of accidental poisoning in Minnesota in the last five years, 59 per cent were 45 years of age and over, 22 per cent in the 25-44 years of age group, and 19 per cent were children and young adults. Included in these fatalities were 12 children under five years of age.

Gas and vapors, mostly carbon monoxide poisoning, accounted for 96 deaths (68 per cent) during the period 1958-62 with other types of accidental poisoning claiming 46 lives (32 per cent).

It is estimated that there are 600 accidental poison cases for each reported accidental poisoning death to children under five, according to Warren Lawson, M. D. supervisor of the poison information center, Minnesota department of health. About four per cent of all non-fatal poisonings result in a permanent disability.

On this basis, the 85,200 accidental cases of poisoning that could have occurred in Minnesota in the past five years is only slightly less than the total live births for one year. At this rate the projected 200 children under five years who could have been victims of accidental poisoning represent a community the size of Grand Rapids. Four per cent of these cases would represent 3,408 persons, including 288 children with some permanent disability as the result of the accidental poisoning.

Accidental poisoning involving children under the age of five is almost always the result of carelessness on the part of an adult.

Improper storage, handling, and disposal of toxic products are common factors in accidental poisonings.

Services for Melvin Longevan Held Here Today

Melvin Longevan, a resident of this community since 1905, passed away on Friday morning, March 8, at the Northwestern hospital, at the age of 61.

Funeral services were held this afternoon in the Bethany Lutheran church with Rev. A. B. Heltne officiating. Green Funeral Home of this city handled the arrangements.

Melvin LeRoy Longevan was born on December 14, 1901, at Stevens Point, Wis., and in 1905 he moved with his parents to Minnesota, and they took up homesteading near Germantown, where he attended school and grew to manhood. On November 16, 1935, he was united in marriage to Miss Clara Knutson. After their marriage, they settled on their present farm in Silverton township, Pennington county. In addition to farming, Mr. Longevan had been a bus driver for the local school for some six years.

Survivors include his wife Clara; one son, Donald, and a daughter, Yvonne, both at home; and one sister, Mrs. Helen Bendickson of Crookston.

He was preceded in death by his parents.

Rites Held At Babbitt For James Von Wald

Funeral services were held February 23 at the St. Pius X Catholic church at Babbitt for James Stanley Von Wald, 43, who died unexpectedly at the Ely Bloomenson hospital on February 20 shortly after suffering a heart attack while at work. Rev. George Kryspin officiated at the funeral High Mass.

Mr. Van Wald, a resident of Babbitt since 1945, was employed by Reserve Mining company as a superintendent mine clerk and had served as the village clerk since 1957. A native of Golden Valley, Mr. Von Wald was employed in the accounting department of Republic Steel Corporation at Lyon Mountain, New York, from 1940 until he settled in Babbitt in 1954.

He is survived by his wife Helen; two sons, Bruce of Babbitt, and Stanley, at home; two daughters, Irene and Mary Beth, both at home; two grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Frank Anderson, Middle River; and two brothers, Donald, a missionary in Sitka, Alaska, and Glen, Hermon, N. Y. Both of the brothers and his sister were present at Mr. Von Wald's funeral, as were many friends and relatives from New York, International Falls, Silver Bay, Ely, and other points.

She was married in Wisconsin to Donald Marquis, and following their marriage the couple lived in Minneapolis. Surviving are her husband and five children, Lana, Debra, Susan, Donald, and Scott, all at home; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sunsdahl of Goodridge; and two brothers, Junior Sunsdahl of Minneapolis, and Orvin, of Goodridge, and two sisters, Mrs. Ernest Race and Diane Sunsdahl, of Goodridge.

CHAMBER L.I.F.E.

Living-Industry-Farming-Education

By Rolly Larson
Manager Chamber of Commerce

"To Build and To Serve" is the motto of the Chamber of Commerce and although there are some who would cynically make a remark of some sort or another from time to time, the Chamber pretty well lives up to that motto.

On occasion we like to publicize a few office services that some of you might like to take advantage of sometime. We have a community event scheduling service, for example. You might want to call 3720 and tell us that your organization will have some big deal on such and such a date and that we should try to protect that date to prevent conflict. We do that.

Our nationwide map service is utilized by many. We keep a wall-sized map rack that holds maps from all fifty states. This is the only service in the area that is that comprehensive.

We have always been some sort of an information bureau. We get questions all the way from, "Where can we find a Justice of the Peace?" to "Why doesn't the Chamber of Commerce do something about those —— ducks eating my oats?" We don't know all of the answers but usually we know somebody who does and we are usually able to satisfy the person with the question.

Also, we work in cooperation with many organizations on projects of mutual community interest. Oftentimes, the Chamber seems to have to serve as some sort of a central coordinating body for some projects actually sponsored at least in part by some other organization. In the interest of seeing good projects completed successfully, this is indeed a proper community service.

Numerous times each year we are called upon to line up programs for various organizations which hold meetings. Quite often, we are able to do this in the form of a speaker, a movie or perhaps a suggestion of some other sort.

Perhaps the greatest community service of all, however, is that the Chamber is able, to some extent, to keep the community organized in such a manner whereby it has an action group no further away than the telephone that can be called upon to meet any project or problem anytime. This in itself prevents what one could call chaos many times every year. What could otherwise cause community alarm and excitement is most often handled in an objective, routine manner in the best interest of the community by some committee, board, or individual delegated to cover the scope of the project or problem.

Anyway, we try to look out for Thief River and so can you. If you Shop and Trade Where Bargains Are Made—Here in the Heart of Northwest Minnesota.

Miss Diane Allison of Grand Forks, N. D. spent the weekend at the home of her mother, Mrs. Flora Allison.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wells were guests at the Edwin Sjulestad home on Saturday of last week. The occasion was Mr. Sjulestad's birthday.

Use your steam iron — or another iron over a damp cloth — to remove marks left on carpet by the pressure of furniture. Steam the spot for a minute or so but don't press down on the iron. Then brush the pile gently back into position. University of Minnesota extension home furnishings specialists say you can use the same treatment for matted areas. Be careful not to have the iron too hot if the carpet is nylon.

Men's and Lincoln School Bonspiels Now in Progress

High School Finals Set Tonight at 6:30; Men's Finals Slated for 7:30

The Lincoln high school boys curling bonspiel, to determine the school's entry in the state bonspiel; and the men's club bonspiel have reached the finals stage. This evening, Monday, at 6:30 p. m., the Jimmy Anderson rink will meet the Alan Homme rink in the high school finals. And at 7:30 p.m., the Wally Tunberg rink will meet the Jon Larson rink in the finals of the club tournament.

The Jimmy Anderson rink, with Anderson at skip, Don Erlandson at third, Paul Peterson at second, and Elroy Froiland at lead, is unbeaten in the school bonspiel that began on Saturday morning. The Alan Homme foursome, with Alan Homme at skip, Rob Homme at third, Mark Bruggeman at second, and Donnie Scott at lead, has lost but one match, that being to the Anderson rink in a semi-finals match on Sunday afternoon.

The Jon Larson rink reached the finals of the men's club by defeating the Harold Halvorson rink in a semi-finals match curled at the Fair Grounds arena on Sunday evening.

That 2481-pin aggregate was ten pins higher than the aggregate 2471 posted by the Ekeren's Pharmacy team, the tournament's runner-up.

Twenty-nine teams participated in the tourney, and the prize winners, in addition to the American Hardware and the Ekeren's Pharmacy, were, Paint & Glass, 2433; Northern Chevrolet, 2413; Hamm's Beer, 2400; V. Harold Myers Gets $1000 Scholarship

Son of Bernard Myers Honored by FU Exchange

Three financial records were shattered during 1962 by the Farmers Union Central Exchange, 9-state farm supply cooperative. Announcement of record-setting sales volume, net savings and cash return to local co-ops capped the 32nd annual Central Exchange meeting attended by 5,000 persons in St. Paul last week.

A Thief River Falls youth was among five outstanding farm youths awarded 4-year, $1,000 scholarships. He is Harold Myers, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Myers, who plans to attend the University of Minnesota.

Harold, a 7-year member of 4-H Clubwork and a 4-year member of the Future Farmers of America, hopes to study agricultural research at college. He has served as reporter and vice president of his local FFA chapter and as vice president and junior leader of his 4-H Club. He has also been active in junior Farmers Union work.

The five scholarships were the first presented in a new Central Exchange scholarship program authorized a year ago.

Girl Scouts Get Camp Site Area from Engelstads

by 70,000 men work in the Girl Scout program. Robert Flynn is serving on the new Area Development Finance Committee and Morris Owen is a member of the camp development committee. Donald D. Olson, Byron Sagmoen, Florian Kritz, Thomas Fuller and Durlyn Robinson are helping in the development of the new camp site.

In keeping with the theme, Girl Scouting serves the future by helping girls to learn values and skills that they will need as the wives, mothers and community leaders of the future; by providing leaders to bring the program to the girls; and by allowing Girl Scouts to be of service to other young people both within and outside the Girl Scout program.

6 Winners Named in Red Owl's Egg Cooking Contest

The question of which came first, the "chicken or the egg", was of little importance in judging the more than a thousand recipes of egg dishes submitted by amateur cooks throughout Minnesota in the National Egg Cooking Contest. The state contest is sponsored by Red Owl Stores, Inc., and the Poultry & Egg National Board.

The six Minnesota cooks, whose recipes won for them the opportunity to compete at the state level of the national contest, are:

Senior division: Mrs. Allan W. Johnson, Kandiyohi; Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Buffalo; and Lee G. Straub, Minneapolis.

Junior division: Gregory Colberg, Cloquet; Shirley Erler, West Concord; and Gretchen Milner, Hopkins.

The six contestants will receive an all-expense paid trip to Minneapolis on March 19, where they will prepare their prize-winning recipes at the Northwest Builder's Show.

The Library Corner

by Virginia Gjernes

Saturday's the day! Story telling hour for the younger social set at 1 p. m., Carnegie public library. Miss Bertha Hastad will be hostess, assisted by Girl Scouts. The girls are working toward their first class rank badge in arts, and storytelling is one of the requirements. The story and the manner in which it will be told, will be kept a secret until the appointed hour.

Those invited to attend are children enrolled in first, second and third grades. Parents may accompany their children if they wish and may remain with them during the exciting period. All children are spellbound by welltold tales, so "storytime" at their library is an event they may look forward to with great pleasure. Remember it begins this Saturday, March 16.

More new books for your "escape from the humdrum" list. . . "The Moonflower Vine", a novel by Jetta Carleton; "Conquistadors in North American History" by Paul Horgan; Gunter Grass' first novel, "The Tin Drum"; and "A PreColumbian Crusdae to America" by Hjalmar R. Holand.

Novel enthusiasts will read "The Moonflower Vine", the writer's first booklength effort, and be reminded that life is not altogether frightening and that there are many, many inhabitants of our fair earth who do not need to rush to the couch of the nearest psychiatrist to help them through their rougher moments. The story reveals the strength, the love, the beauty and the grace within each life and the respect and loyalty the main characters in the book have for each other. The reader who thoroughly enjoys a novel about everyday people, leading everyday lives, with a bit of the dramatic to add spice and a bit of tragedy to bring tears, will enjoy the 50 years they live in the book with Matthew and Callie Soames and their family of four daughters.

"The Tin Drum" is a best seller in Europe. It too is the first novel of its author, a German, and the first sentence in the book is "Granted: I am an inmate of a mental hospital; my keeper is watching me, he never lets me out of his sight; there's a peep hole in the door, and my keeper's eye is the shade of brown that can never see through a blue eyed type like me." That's the first sentence; you can imagine how gripping the rest of the book is.

The author tells the story of Oskar Matzerath, a 30-year-old who is detained in a mental hospital, convicted of a murder he did not commit. At the age of three, Oskar suffers a fall down cellar steps and remains, for many years, three feet tall and childlike in appearance and speech. On the day of the fall, Oskar's mother gives him his first tin drum and from that day on it is his means of expression. As the story unfolds the reader gropes through every moment of Oskar's fantastic life and the drums beat constantly. This novel certainly is one of the best since the war.

Mr. Holand's book is an historical work describing an expedition headed by Paul Knutson, a Norwegian nobleman. He and his handpicked party of young Scandinavians sailed into the uncharted waters that extended to what is now known as America. The explorers were looking not for gold or trade routes, but were, instead, looking for a colony of Norsemen in Greenland who were reported to have moved to unknown parts.

The author, after extensive research and investigation, has established, to his own satisfaction, the authenticity of the Kensington Stone discovered in Minnesota in 1898. The book, naturally, is of interest to all those who enjoy history but it is of particular interest to Minnesotans, because the greater part of the action takes place in what is now our state. You may not change your mind about Columbus, but Mr. Holand's book will make you wonder a bit when your youngest comes out with "Who was Columbus?"

And from that to Paul Horgan's "Conquistadors" is just a cover away. . .but the book begins on Columbus' flagship and ends 200 years later. Montezuma and Cortes and their efforts in the new land are revealed by this master historian. History, with its established facts and figures, holds the reader interested in a different way from the excitment of a novel. Mr. Horgan began his writing career as a novelist, so his historical storytelling is a bit different from the writings of most historians.

See you Saturday at 1:00 for "Storytime".

Also included will be educational tours of the White House, Supreme Court, Library of Congress, Department of Agriculture and Senate Office building, as well as trips to national shrines. The visit to Capitol Hill to meet senators and congressmen is planned to give leaders a deeper appreciation of their citizenship responsibilities in a democracy and the relationship of this responsibility to the local 4-H Club.

The Minnesota 4-H leaders will travel by chartered bus, leaving from the University of Minnesota St. Paul Campus on March 15 and returning to St. Paul March 27. Highlights of the trip will be a visit to the Gettysburg battlefield, to the United Nations headquarters and tours of New York City.

TRF and Lake Bronson Open Region Tourney

Saturday night's championship finals in District 29 and District 32, and which found Bemidji defeating Littlefork, 58 to 29, and Lake Bronson besting Greenbush, 47 to 31, completed the four-team field that will compete in the Region Eight basketball tournament in the UND fieldhouse at Grand Forks on Friday and Saturday, March 15 and 16. Thief River Falls won the District 31 title, and a regional berth, by defeating East Grand Forks, 65 to 44, on Wednesday night; and the Fosston Greyhounds copped the District 30 honors by defeating Hendrum, 73 to 51.

The first-round pairings for Friday night will find Thief River Falls of District 31 meeting Lake Bronson of District 32 at 7:30 p. m.; and Bemidji of District 29 playing Fosston of District 30 at 9:00 p. m. The regional championship game on Saturday night will start at 9:00 p. m., and will be preceded by a third place game between the losers of the Friday night's games.

A regional titleist is assured as last season's winner, the Ada Vikings, were sidelined in sub-district 30 play last week.

Of the four teams entered in this week's Region Eight meet, for only one school will it be a new experience. Bemidji, Thief River Falls, and Fosston have participated in regional cage tournament play before, but for the Lake Bronson school it is a new experience. Lake Bronson won its first District 32 title on Ssaturday night. The appearance of the Fosston Greyhounds in the regional will be the first time since 1951 that Fosston has been in regional tournament competition.

Superintendent D. S. Eikenes of East Grand Forks is the tournament manager. Officials are A. V. (Woody) Johnson and Al Banks of Minneapolis. Admission prices will be $1.25 for adults and 50 cents for students for each evening's session.

The winner of the Region Eight tournament will gain a berth in the Minnesota state high school tournament that will be played in the Williams Arena on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis on March 21-23.

Adults Offered Lessons in Golf

Golf instruction for adults in the form of evening classes will begin Tuesday evening, March 19, at 7:30 p. m. in the old gymnasium at Lincoln high school. The course will offer 20 hours of instruction for a fee of $8 per person and all students are requested to bring their No. 5 iron to the first meeting. Advance registration must be made by calling MU 1-4588.

Region Tourney Tickets May Be Purcased Here

Tickets for the Region 8 basketball tournament will be available after Wednesday at the attendance office or principal's office in Lincoln high school, according to Ralph Skay, athletic director. Persons having tickets will be able to use a "pass gate" at the UND field house and avoid waiting in line to purchase tickets.

Ticket prices are $1.25 for adults and 50 cents for students, Skay said, and may be obtained from himself or Richard Edlund, senior high school principal. Thief River Falls Prowlers will meet Lake Bronson, District 32 champion, in the first game of the tourney at 7:30 p. m. Friday.

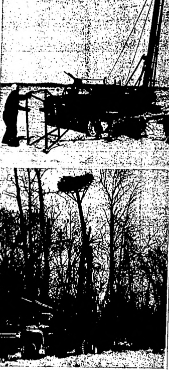
"50-50 loans" used by small business men are made possible through the cooperation of commercial banks and the Small Business Administration. Each pays 50 per cent of the loan.



FOR THE BIRDS is this project which took place Friday at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge northeast of Holt. Bird-lovers across the nation will be watching the results of the project. For several years a pair of American (bald) eagles has raised a family at Agassiz refuge. Each year the pair added to its nest. Last year catastrophe struck the bird world when the nest blew down in a wind storm. Determined to attract the birds to the spot again this year, refuge personnel went into the home financing business. They constructed a nesting site from surplus iron and woven netting and attached the framework to a pole. A crew from Red Lake Electric Cooperative at Red Lake Falls carried the pole and nest base to the former nesting site, dug a hole alongside the tree in which the old nest had been built, waited while the framework was filled with material from the old nest and then hoisted the pole into place. The empty framework and improvised nest are shown in the above Times photos. Such a project has never before been attempted in the nation. Now refuge personnel ad wildlife authorities across the nation are waiting expectantly—for the birds.

Another Scoring Mark

When the Prowlers defeated the East Grand Forks Green Wave, 65 to 44, in the finale of the District 31 basketball tournament at Grand Forks on Wednesday night, coach Jack Junker's squad also bettered the local high school's season scoring mark. The 1960-61 Prowlers, district and regional champions that season, racked up a total of 1353 points, but this season's club, on their 65-point on Wednesday, boosted the mark to 1401 points. And the Prowlers have at least two more games to play.

During that 1960-61 year, Ron Hanson, a six-foot eight-inch center, scored 500 points in leading the Prowlers to that 1353-point mark.

On Wednesday night, it was Bob Olson's field goal early in the third period that tied the record at 1353 points; and it was Jerry Erickson's field goal a moment later that broke the record.

When the Prowlers won that district finals game last week it gave Lincoln high school its twentieth district basketball title, and its fifteenth in District 31 competition.

First District Title in '16

In 1916, competing in District 16 play, the Prowlers won their first district title. And in thelate 1920's, the Prowlers, playing in District 32 tournament competition, added four district titles. Since 1931, the Prowlers have been playing in District 31, and last week's title was number fifteen in the 33 tournaments that have been played since that year.

On Friday night, with the tipoff slated for 7:30 p. m., the Prowlers will begin play in Region Eight competition. And their first-round opponents will be the Lake Bronson Braves from District 32. Lake Bronson, by a 47 to 31, defeated the Greenbush Tigers in the finals of District 32 play at Roseau on Saturday night.

Furuseth Lake Bronson Coach

Lake Bronson is coached by former Prowler Jerry Furuseth, and, according to my records, Friday's encounter between the Prowlers and Lake Bronson will be the first time that a former Prowler basketball player will direct a team in competition against his former school in regional or district basketball tournament play.

And Jerry has done a fine job with the Lake Bronson squad this season. The team was rated as a district favorite last season, but, after winning the sub-district title, they were upset by the Kennedy Rockets. This season the Lake Bronson team has moved through the schedule and district play undefeated. In mid-season the Braves lost their high-scoring center Frank Larson, and while his loss has been a handicap, the Lake Bronson squad has continued to play winning basketball. I'm sure that the Prowlers won't make the mistake of taking this Lake Bronson lightly.

Auggies in the NAIA

The Augsburg College Auggies, the champions of the MIAC basketball conference, and winners over St. Cloud State in a playdown game, will meet the West Virginia State college team in Kansas City on Tuesday evening in a NAIA first-round game.

The Auggies, with a season's record of 24 wins and 2 losses, are rated among the nation's "top ten" in small college ratings. And on this Auggie squad are former Prowlers Phil and Ron Hanson. Phil, a senior, is a starter and a regular, while Ron, a sophomore, is used often for defensive purposes. Ron, with his six-foot eight-inch height, give the Auggies added rebounding strength.

I had a note from Stan Cockrell, local Soo Line conductor who is headquartering out of St. Paul at present, and he states that he was at the Augsberg vs. St. Cloud State game which was played in the Hamline fieldhouse. He says, "Phil played a real good game, and Ron played better than half of the game and was real good on defense." Stan adds that Ron should be a starter at forward next steason. And, too, he reports that Connie Ekeren is one of the Augsburg college cheerleaders.

Added: Baseball Notes

Frank Brosseau, the famed Drayton high school and American Legion baseball star, who was subjected to intense recruiting pressure by college scouts, is attending the University of North Dakota. I know for a fact that Minnesota's Dick Siebert was interested in Brosseau. The Gopher coach had watched Frank during a workout at Grand Forks, and it is his opinion that the Drayton youth has a fine future in baseball. Siebert was particularly impressed by the manner in which Brosseau stroked the ball.

In attendance at the 40th annual New York baseball writers' dinner and show in the Imperial Ballroom of the Americana Hotel in New York last month was Bob Monroe. Bob, who is the son of the Fred Monroes, and who caught baseball for the local Thieves back in 1947 and 1948, is with the FBI in New York. During the years he has been in the East he has made many friends among the New York Yankees baseball team. And it was as the personal guest of Bill (Moose) Skowron that Bob attended the twenty-five-dollars-a-plate dinner. In fact, Skowron, for a couple of weeks prior to the banquet, was the house guest of the Bob Monroes.

Survey Cites Library as Cultural Center

Even in an age of television, a rural library can whet the literary appetite of local people — if they know about the library and have time to get there.

The stacks of books in a central library building or on a roving bookmobile help add to the number of informed people in a community, respondents said in a recent University of Minnesota survey.

A group of rural sociologists interviewed 1,000 users of the East Central Regional Library (ECRL) which was set up by Isanti, Mille Lacs and Pine counties in 1959. The system has a building at Cambridge and a bookmobile making about 40 regular stops weekly in other parts of the three-county area. In 1962, ECRL had about 24,000 volumes, besides magazines, pamphlets, pictures and filmstrips.

The study is reported by sociologist Marvin J. Taves in a bulletin titled "Public Knowledge and Attitudes Regarding a Rural Minnesota Library System," recently issued by the University's Agricultural Experiment Station.

The surveyors talked to registrants (persons who had taken out at least one book) and a sample of nonregistrants. They asked everybody questions about reading habits, what they get from the library, what they thought about it and so on.

People tend to do more non-newspaper reading in winter. About 57 per cent of all respondents reported spending 6 hours or more of daily reading at that time of year, compared to 43 per cent in summer and 47-49 per cent in other seasons.

About three persons in four did most non-newspaper reading during week nights but one person in four also did a major amount of reading either Saturday or Sunday.

Registered library users differed from nonregistrants in many ways. First, registrants tended to have more education, higher status occupations, live close to the library, and were more likely to be unmarried.

Second, among registrants, nonreaders made up no more than 4 per cent, while among nonregistrants, nonreaders ranged up to 12 per cent.

Similarly, persons who had registered at the library were heavier users of other forms of communications media. Among registrants, about 90 per cent had received some information from book sellers, stores, the ECRL library system, schools, churches, the cooperative extension service, book clubs or friends.

Among nonregistrants, only 31 per cent had recieved information from these sources.

Why do people go to the library? The most common response, given by 19 per cent, was "for recreation or to pass time." Next most common was "for specific information" (17 per cent). Other frequent responses were "for education and learning, professional, or self-improvement, to pick up new ideas and inspiration."

Rarely did people go to the library "just to browse."

What were the main areas of interest? Mentioned most frequently were (1) travel, biography and history, (2) fiction, and (3) religion. Registrants and non-residents were about equally interested in business, economics, and financial problems; science and technology; and religious novels. But in fiction, social problems and issues, and philosophy and psychology there was almost three times as great a proportion of registrants interested compared to nonregistrants.

Forty per cent of all respondents said without qualification that the library contributed importantly to the number of informed persons in the community. Another 20 per cent said they were somewhat better informed.

Winning Artists Named in Yule Seal '65 Design Contest

Frede Salmoesen, St. Paul Wins First Prize of $500 for Entry in State Event

Ten Minnesota artists have won cash awards for their entries in the state Tuberculosis and Health association's contest to design the 1965 Christmas Seal. Prize money was donated by Twin City area business firms.

Around 150 Minnesota artists from all parts of the state submitted designs. All entries, whether state winners or not, will be sent to the National Tuberculosis association, New York City, for national judging in October. The design selected at that time will be used to spearhead the 1965 Christmas Seal campaign, and the winning artist will receive an award of $1,000.

Top prize winner in the state contest is Frede Salomonsen, St. Paul, who will receive $500 for his entry. Second prize winner is George Karn, West St. Paul, who will be awarded $300.

Awards of $25 will go to the following eight artists: Thor Nielsen, St. Paul; Clayton Richards, St. Paul; Robert W. Winter, Minneapolis; Wayne Tollefson, Carlton, Minn.; Frank M. Antoncich, St. Paul; G. Reinhardt, Minneapolis; Bernard J. Flynn, Rt. 1, Excelsior; and Frank Madzey, Minneapolis.

Chairman of the contest was George Cobb, president of Brown & Bigelow, St. Paul. Judges were Mrs. Jo Lutz Rollins, University of Minnesota art department professor; C. W. Ernst, art director, special sales, Brown & Bigelow; and Frank Thornburg, divisional art supervisor, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co.

Three on Tunberg Motor Co. Staff Get Ford Awards

Three members of the sales staff of Tunberg Motor Company have been presented Ford Motor Company's 300-500 Club Award, Otto Lundstrom, Fargo Ford district sales manager, announced today. The men are Frank Blazek, Robert L. Anton, and Lawrence Lubitz.

Lundstrom said 300-500 Club membership awards are presented for excellent retail performance. The Ford 300-500 Club was founded in 1950 to recognize the performance of outstanding Ford salesmen throughout the country.

Lundstrom added that the average 300-500 Club member sold nearly $400,000 worth of automotive merchandise in qualifying for national honors.

White Bear Lake Man New Head of Federal Land Bank

Hans T. Hagen, White Bear Lake, has been elected president of the Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul to succeed M. D. Avery, who will retire March 31, according to an announcement received by Harold Sorensen, manager of the Federal Land Bank associaton of Warren. Mr. Hagen, who will head the $400 million Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul, has spent 25 years with the bank in various capacities. For the past several years he has served as assistant vice president.

The Federal Land Bank association of Warren serves Marshall, Kittson, Pennington, Roseau, and Red Lake counties. The association has 860 members with over 4½ million dollars in loans outstanding.

Whooping Cough Common in State

Whooping cough is causing serious problems in many areas of Minnesota this winter and health authorities warn that the disease must be treated seriously if tragic results are to be avoided. Whooping cough is a contagious disease spread by discharges from the nose and throat of sick victims, when they cough. The disease may be fatal in as high as 30 per cent of babies less than six months old, and in older children it may cause prolonged illness and hospitalization.

Whooping cough occurs in greater numbers every few years, and Minnesota is now in the peak period. From 23 cases reported in 1961, the number jumped to 164 in 1962, and already in 1963 the number of new cases so far reported is ten times that of a year ago.

Whooping cough can be prevented by proper vaccination. This is carried out by the physician during the first few months of a baby's life and is very valuable. Parents should check with their doctor to be sure their children are protected. Whooping cough vaccination is frequently combined with immunization against diphteria and tetanus, two other serious diseases.

When a child does come down with whooping cough, good medical care is essential. State health department regulations require that persons having whooping cough shall be confined to their home premises for a period of at least three weeks after onset of first symptoms, since the infection can be spread to others during this time.

State Wildlife Week Has Pesticide Theme

The dangers of chemical poisons to wildlife and man are to be spotlighted during Minnesota Wildlife Week, March 17-23.

Here, according to State Wildlife Week Chairman Roger E. Preuss, of Minneapolis, are a few examples of how chemicals applied to control undesirable insects, rodents, weeds and other pests have taken a toll of innocent and beneficial fish and wildlife — and why conservationists including members of the Minnesota Conservation Federation, are pleading for a more knowledgeable and intelligent use of agricultural poisons.

Pesticide applications may "get to" fish and wildlife populations in various ways according to Preuss, Minnesota wildlife artist. Animals may be killed by direct contact with the chemical soon after its application. They may be forced to leave the area or starve because their food was destroyed by the poison.

The concentration of specific poison in many species of animals may cause genetic disturbances or death. The National Wildlife Federation cites cases of reproductive failure among birds which have been blamed on their exposure to insecticides.

There are often alternatives to the spraying of chemicals which do not pose a threat to beneficial forms of life such as biological controls and the maintenance of soil fertility for agricultural pests, the use of screening and sanitary practices around the home, and the elimination of breeding places, the fluctuation of water levels and the introduction of certain fish to control mosquitoes, Preuss said.

Editorials . . .

"Except a living man there is nothing more wonderful than a book — a message to us from the dead — from human souls we never saw, who lived, perhaps thousands of miles away. And yet these, in those little sheets of paper, speak to us, arouse us, terrify us, teach us, comfort us, open their hearts to us as brothers."

—Charles Kingsley

Excellent Idea

Sir Winston Churchill, generally recognized as the world's greatest living Englishman, may soon be an honorary citizen of our country. Bills have been introduced in both houses of Congress and, in the House, the judiciary committee has already approved a bill to make "Winnie" an American citizen. President Kennedy approves the idea and the measure is expected to have unanimous support in both houses.

Churchill's mother, Jennie Jerome, was born in New York and on many occasions he has boasted of his American background. He has referred to himself as "an Anglo-American alliance." He is already an honorary citizen in three states and several cities.

He merits the recognition along with our highest regard.

Time to Change

Adopting the metric system of measurements would create an area of confusion for a period of time but the sooner we make the change the sooner will we start enjoying the advantages of the more simple decimal system. There now are advocates of a proposal to use the inch as a base and adapting a decimal system to that base. A very reasonable argument against such a change is that we still would not have a system with international recognition.

A NANA report out of Detroit reminds us that the metric system is now recognized thruout most of the civilized world, and the emerging nations are adopting it as their national standard. The report states metric supporters fear our system may become an obstacle to trade with nations that think in terms of the mter, the gram and the cubic centimeter.

Bills have been introduced in the present Congress to bring about a gradual change to the metric system and its eventual adoption as the official system. This system is already well established here in certain fields and most of the objections to change would vanish gradually. We would find that the advantages would far outweigh the disadvantages.

Automation and Jobs

Automation no doubt is responsible for some of the nation's increasing unemployment, and for the fellow who is out of work, whatever was responsible for him losing his job is an evil thing. That is understandable.

Two labor unions discussed this problem recently, pointing up different results. At their convention in Cincinnati the United Mine Workers focused attention on the large number of miners who had lost their jobs during a period of mechanization and automation in the industry. Following World War I the mines employed 880,000 miners. Today there are only 221,000.

In an hour-long television program, produced and paid for by the Amalgamated Lithographers of America, members of the union testified to the beneficient effects of "the industry's technological advances," changes that the union favored and helped to bring about. Costs declined as each unit of output could be produced with less human labor, but the demand for the industry's products has increased so much that there has been work enough for everyone—with much higher wages.

It is significant that in both cases the unions went along with the program of mechanization and automation. John Lewis of the Mine Workers did not object to more efficient operations so long as the workers shared in the benefits.

There was this notable difference however. As the mining operations became more efficient, the benefits of that increased efficiency was limited pretty much to the mine owners and the workers — the public did not share in the benefits of increased efficiency. Coal became more costly and a large segment of the market shifted to other fuels.

The history of the printing industry is quite different. One typesetting machine did the work of at least five hand compositors, and the outlook for hand compositors was not good. But the typesetting machine lowered very substantially the cost of printing in all forms, and people could afford to buy a much larger quantity of printed material including books, magazines and newspapers. The industry prospered and provided employment for a steadily increasing number of workers at higher pay levels, and, most important of all, the public benefited.

The public benefited, not because the industry was more public spirited or altruistic than other industries, but rather because the industry, within itself, is highly competitive. Printing processes are in a state of constant change. New machines and new techniques increase the efficiency of organizations large enough to keep up with what is new — and add to the difficulties of those that are not able to.

But the public interest is the important thing and is not stressed enough in the settlement of of labor disputes. To some extent, no doubt, our increasing unemployment can be attributed to automation. But to whatever extent it is due to automation, in the background probably will be the fact that the benefits of automation were not passed along to the public in the form of lower prices.

Will Speak English

Kenya, a British colony in East Africa, is well on the way to independence, and preliminary action is being taken by the legislative council, now composed of a majority of Africans, to establish machinery of self-government. One decision that is especially interesting is the adoption of English as the official language of the nation and it will be the language of instruction in the schools.

Some of the rabid nationalists favored Swahili, a language spoken by a large number of the natives in that part of Africa. This attempt failed because of the large number of dialects that are not generally understood. Commenting on this development the Winnipeg Tribune observes:

> "Kenya will thus enter into nationhood with one unnecessary divisive factor removed. There are many others but at least in the disputation that is likely to ensue over these other problems the disputants will be able to understand what everybody is talking about.
> "Whether this will be sufficient to avoid bloodshed is something else again. But at least as the laws are all in English it will be easier to administer justice and build some order out of a society that for many years must totter on the edge of chaos, a condition which only the greatest goodwill will resolve."

After fifteen years of independence, India still retains English as the common language of law, business, politics, science and higher learning. Enlishg undoubtedly comes closest to being the number one language in the world today.

Gloomy Prospect

J. Peter Grace, chairman of a special Commerce Department committee created to study the government's assistance program for Latin America, has concluded that in its present form the Alliance for Progress "cannot succeed and we are in great danger of suffering a major defeat to our strategic interests in this hemisphere."

Most of the criticism is based on the manner in which the aid is to be made available, that is, mainly on a government to government basis, on which point the Wall Street Journal makes the following observation:

> "What is wrong with aid of that kind has been abundantly demonstrated in more places than Latin America. As Mr. Grace puts it, handouts to Latin governments may shore up inefficient government activities or be put to other uses "now trending alarmingly in certain countries towards the support and encouragement of Marxist aims."
> "For just one specific instance, we have been supporting a Brazilian government hell-bent on inflation and expropriation in the midst of vast human misery; few would be much surprised if the country ends up Communist.
> "In addition, government-to-government aid by its nature holds back private economic development, which is the only realistic hope of higher living standards within a framewrok of political freedom. If U.S. aid were pointed in that direction, a lot less than $1 billion a year could show significant improvement."

Cuban Refugees

We do not know how many Cuban refugees our government is now providing for but the number seems to be increasing steadily. They now are being moved out of Florida and distributed thruout the country in an effort to secure employment for those capable of performing useful services.

We are not sufficiently informed as to the facts to express opinions but we have wondered at times just why we should assume the responsibility for this particular group of foreigners. And our actions, and possible motives, seem to be a little disturbing to our neighbors. The Winnipeg Tribune expresses a concern that probably is becoming quite general. It states:

> "It would be most unfortunate if the Cuban refugee community, now numbered in the hundreds of thousands, acquired the ability through emotional political inflammation to dictate U.S. policy with respect to Cuba. One of the facets of U.S. conduct of foreign policy which makes its allies nervous is the east with which minority groups can decisively influence that policy.
> "The fact that the United States by virtue of its power, now affects, if it does not control, the whole western alliance should act as a check on this constitutional American weakness. The West is certainly going to need coolheadedness and rational action above all else in the coming months."

Investing in Natural Resources

Yesterday I received a note from Commissioner of Administration, William Stevenson, saying that the bonds for the building bill passed early in this session had been sold at an interest rate of less than 2¾ per cent. This is a very low rate.

I am recommending a ten year $55 million natural resource investment program to develop our outdoor recreational assets. This would require sale of $10.8 million in bonds for this biennium. It will buy land for the Minnesota Hardwoods forest, for more state parks, it will add to wetlands and wild life habitat, it will accelerate reforestation, it will provide more camp sites and water access, it will extend soil conservation programs, it will speed up topographic mapping, geological surveys and water research. It will do a comprehensive balanced job and bring untold benefit to all our people.

Everyone who studies "New Dimensions for Minnesota" is thrilled by it — but some object to borrowing money and paying interest. They say, we save when we pay as we go.

This is true in many cases but not when you are buying land, water frontage and other properties that are rising in value. Minnesota land values have been rising at 4 per cent a year. If we can borrow money at 2¾ per cent and buy the land now it is obvious we save.

Furthermore we gain time to develop the parks and recreational resources instead of postponing what has already been too long delayed. Finally — what is available today may not be available tomorrow.

Please urge your legislator friend to support the natural resource bond issue. If you would like to receive a folder on "New Dimensions for Minnesota", let me know and I'll send one.

The Real Taconite Victory

Of course I am deeply gratified to see the taconite amendment taking hold in a big way and the mining industry announcing new plant construction that assures a bright new day for northeastern Minnesota. It has been an uphill battle all the way. Two years have been lost unnecessarily but progress seems now to be assured.

The most significant comment at the big hearing that Representative Roy Dunn held for those favoring the amendment came from a union official.

He said, "this is the first legislative program the mining industry and the steelworkers' union have ever agreed upon."

This was my goal two years ago—to get people working together for the common goal of more jobs and payrolls for northeastern Minnesota. This was not easy with bitterness and suspicion a generation old—but it has been erased to a considerable degree. There is now a general understanding that our ore monopoly is gone. We must make it better for taconite plants to be built in Minnesota than anywhere else. This we are now doing.

It is a victory to gain acceptance for the taconite amendment, but the real victory is in the changing attitudes of our people. Any time we set aside our differences and cooperate in the area of our mutual interests to promote a great purpose, we will grow and prosper. This is now beginning for northeastern Minnesota.

IT WAS MOST CERTAINLY INTERESTING to watch the presentation of "The Wizard of Oz" operetta at Lincoln high school this weekend. The work directed toward the production by faculty members and students involved can most certainly be appreciated. It was the type of work that restores a person's faith in the younger generation.

Of particular interest, aside from the efforts of the main characters, was the attention paid to detail in even the minor roles and group scenes. All costumes were tailored for the event, scenery was changed to create different moods and make the most effective use of lighting and each person took his or her part in sincere fashion.

Considerable credit must be given to many of the students who were never seen on stage — those who did the art work, painting, scenery arrangement, sewing on costumes, make-up, lighting, sound effects and special effects. To Bryant Ulseth, faculty assistants and all students involved — most sincere congratulations on a job well done and thanks for a very pleasant evening of entertainment.

Well, another vote on a school bond issue has come and gone. About the only real difference this time is that it was approved and the sour grapes hang in heaviest clusters on the other side of the vine. This can be expected and is understood.

When 3,202 voters — about three-fourths of those eligible to vote in the district — turn out to cast their ballots in such an election, it can not be argued that feeling didn't run high. And whenever there is such rivalry in competition and disagreement in the course to be taken, it is to be expected that someone's feelings will be somewhat crushed.

As Americans believing in the democratic principle of majority rule, however, we should now swallow our collective pride — bitter as it may be — and give the school board and the proposal a chance to work. My personal prediction is that bids for construction will be at least 10 per cent under the architect's estimate.

Many people will, of course, argue the merits of placing the district in debt by the amount of the bond issue. Many of these arguments are legitimate. But it could well be that passage of this issue and the resulting construction could be an important link in a chain of events which will pull this community into a brighter future.

DON'T MISS THE PARTY. Ron Kvikstad, in his "Orange Peels" column in the Lincoln (high school) Log, has the following invitation: 'Because Monday comes on Friday instead of Tuesday, you are invited to a Christmas party on the afternoon of Easter morning, October 29. Orphans bring their parents. The dinner will consist of castor oil appetizers; 50 cents a pound; watermelon pie, 5 cents a glass; and spaghetti, 10 cents a yard. The boat leaves the airport at 13 p. m. P. S. If you miss the boat, swim out to the train as we don't want an intermission while waiting."

"Tell me," inquired the literary authority of the sweet young thing at a cocktail party, "do you like Kipling?" "Wonderful," she exclaimed, "but I've only kipled a couple times in my whole life."

Then the story is told of the husband who said his wife looked like the closest thing to Elizabeth Taylor — Richard Burton.

The following poem by Joseph O. Pearson was published in the Rotarian magazine:

DELAYED ENDING

Some speakers stick to serious themes,
Others like humor, so it seems.
But that one is the biggest flop
Who knows not when it's time to stop.

GALLERY atmosphere is present at the Thomas Waale home southeast of Thief River Falls as the artist framed a number of his paintings and has them on display. He is shown here with some of his works. At left is an altar painting he made 32 years ago and which was hung in a church at Gatzke. Waale paints from pictures he has taken or sketches made of interesting scenes. A professional photographer for 24 years, he has turned to oil painting for what he hopes will be a means of livelihood. Photographic chemicals have created an aggravated asthmatic condition which has forced him to leave the photo business.

A Brush with Photography

Camera to Canvas Is Thomas Waale Story

by Marvin Lundin
City Editor

As a quiet man with an eye for color and a deft touch with a brush, Thomas Waale of rural Thief River Falls is in the process of changing professions. Forced to retire by an allergy to photographic chemicals, aggravated by 24 years as a professional photographer, he is now turning to another means of using pictures to support his family.

Having an avid interest in oil painting and good artistic ability, Waale hopes to interest area people in a new field — custom painting of pictures. Using photographs or sketches he has made himself, he produces colorful oil paintings which he believes can fill a local market. He invites interested persons to his home southeast of Thief River Falls on highway 59 to view some of his work.

A native of the Kratka area where he attended the Kratka school, Tom attended the Northwest School of Agriculture at Crookston. In 1920 he began to study at the Minneapolis School of Art —a situation which lasted three months. He then turned to other pursuits, but returned to the school in 1932 for another three months of instruction.

Both drawing and painting were studied at the Minneapolis school and Waale also took private lessons from Arne Berger, a portrait painter, and August Klagstad, who gained fame for his altar paintings.

Makes Altar Paintings

Altar painting appealed to Waale and he has made paintings for Mavie German Lutheran church, Strathcona Lutheran, Sabol Lutheran, Roseau Swedish Lutheran, two churches near River Valley, Salem church near Oklee, and churches at Gatzke, Detroit Lakes, Strandquist and others. The largest project was for the Roseau church — a 9x12 canvas depicting Christ walking on the sea.

In 1936 Tom was married to Anna Wedul of this city, and for 24 years they operated a photo studio in Thief River Falls. In 1960, because of Tom's asthma condition, they sold the building to Dr. Milton Starekow and it now houses the Falls-Starekow Clinic. In the summer of 1960 the Waale's began building their new home southeast of Thief River Falls.

Apparently a man of many talents, Waale supervised the carpentry work and built the house with the aid of several relatives. Portions of the house; such as door and window casings and a flight of stairs, are made from native ash lumber cut at the Waale farm in Kratka and finished in the Waale shop.

During past summers Tom has operated his crawler tractor and bulldozer in doing ditching work for the Soil Conservation Service. He plans to sell the tractor this spring and devote more time to his art.

Recently he has occupied himself with touching up some of his former paintings and arranging them in frames. He estimates that he has done somewhere between 75 and 100 paintings during his lifetime of varied experiences.

An Idea to Sell

"I know that it's almost impossible to sell a painting, such as a landscape, for the sake of the original painting itself. Copies of landscapes can be purchased at very low prices at nearly any store selling pictures. I hope to be able to do work for persons who would like to have an oil painting of a scene that is of particular significance to them."

Custom painting has a unique commercial value. The owner of such work is guaranteed of having an "exclusive" work of art for his or her home. "If someone has a scene they would like painted, I can photograph it for them," Waale said. "In fact, I would prefer this, since the proper angle means so much in a good photograph or a good painting."

Mr. and Mrs. Waale have three children. Marilyn is married to Rev. Arlen Hermodson and is living at Baldwin, Wis. Ruby is teaching in the Fergus Falls school system and Trudy is a senior at Lincoln high school.

Waale's ambition may create a unique individual — a photographer with a brush rather than a camera.

State Budget Has Doubled in 8 Years

Taxpayers Association Reports Sharp Increase

Minnesota's state budget for the coming biennium is double that of eight years ago, according to a report issued today by the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

Appropriations made by the 1955 legislature covering the "four major money bills" totaled $325.5 million, while the budget proposed by Governor Andersen for the next biennium, now under consideration by the lawmakers, totals $653 million in the same categories, Harold T. Miller, research director of the taxpayers group, said.

The comparative budget figures are contained in a supplement to "Fiscal Facts for Minnesotans," the Association's biennial statistical compilation.

"The $429.3 million recommended in direct appropriations for educational activities for the two-year period beginning next July 1 would take nearly two-thirds of the total budget," Miller said. "The dollar figure is up 132 per cent over comparable appropriations made eight years ago.

"Recommended appropriations of $146.4 million for welfare and correctional services would require about 22 per cent of the budget; spending in this category would be increased nearly 60 per cent over authorizations eight years ago."

Miller noted that the $653 million involves only direct appropriations made each legislative session for the four major money bills — i. e., specific sums for a specific fiscal period. In addition, a fifth omnibus appropriation bill, covering three divisions of the highway department would add another $20.6 million.

"With the further addition of open and standing appropriations (which do not state definite amounts and remain in force until repealed), miscellaneous special revenues and dedicated receipts, plus federal funds — total state spending for the 1963-65 biennium will reach over $1.5 billion," Miller concluded.

VICTIM of a chain saw's relentless bite, a large willow tree crashes to earth in the above photo. Clearing of the Ditch 11 channel in Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge is part of the work being done with an appropriation of $37,000 made available under the Federal Accelerated Public Works program. About 15 area men have been hired to work on the program with as many as nine working on the ditch cleaning. Approximately seven miles of cleaning is being accomplished from Squaw Point west through the refuge to the Thief river. Clearing of the trees will greatly increase the volume of the ditch's water-carrying capacity.

Elevator Moving Will Cut Power Service Tuesday

Due to the moving of a grain elevator through the city, all electric power west of Main avenue and north of the Great Northern tracks will be cut off from 6:30 a. m. to 8 a. m. on Tuesday, March 19, according to Morris Owen superintendent of utilities.

In the event of inclement weather on that day, the work will be done on Wednesday, March 20, or Thursday, March 21, during the same hours. The elevator to be moved is that of the Farmers Co-op Grain & Seed association from its present site south of Lincoln high school to the north plant on Dewey av. N.

Elmer C. Johnson Construction company of Warren will handle the moving of the elevator with the largest portion of the moving being on Main avenue.

City Council Grants Health Ins. Subsidy

Votes $8 per Month To All Employees Taking Part in Group

Following considerable discussion Tuesday evening and preliminary review at previous sessions, Thief River Falls city council approved a health and welfare subsidy for city employees at an adjourned meeting in the council chambers. The city will contribute $8 per month per employee toward a hospitalization plan to be decided upon by employees as a group.

Since the health and welfare plan was designed to provide insurance coverage and not take the place of a pay increase, the $8 monthly grant will be made only to those employees who are members of the group hospitalization plan selected. Employees will pay the difference between the total premium and the $8 subsidy.

Bids were opened for remodeling of the municipal liquor store, including provision of a drive-in window at the rear of the building. Two bids were received with Ranum Construction company bidding $5,947 and Prichard Brothers Construction company bidding $5,979. Both firms are from Thief River Falls. Bids were tabled until the next meeting of the council.

Shell Oil company was awarded the contract to furnish gasoline for the municipal airport with a successful bid of 22.5 cents per gallon for 80-87 octane gas and 25 cents per gallon for 100-130 octane gas.

For School Construction

Board Calls for Bids On $1,495,000 Bonds

Following the advice of T. G. Evensen & Associates, bond consultants, the Thief River Falls board of education unanimously adopted a resolution at its regular meeting Monday evening to call for bids on $1,495,000 in general obligation bonds. Bids will be opened at 11 a. m. on April 17.

In a letter to the school board, the Evensen firm recommended selling of bonds as soon as possible to take advantage of what appears to be a favorable market at this time. Since the sale of such bonds was authorized in the recent special school district election, the board voted in favor of calling for bids as recommended.

Richard Hammel, architect on the school building project, was unable to attend the Monday meeting since his plane was grounded by bad weather in Minneapolis. He will meet with the board late this month or early in April to present official preliminary plans for new school construction. At that time the board will review the plans and make alterations they consider to be necessary.

Earlier sketches of the proposed junior high school contained an interior gymnasium surrounded by classrooms. To check the advisability of such construction, the board will visit a school having such facilities in St. Paul late this month. The architect will be instructed to meet with the board at the St. Paul school.

Meet With Union

Also meeting with the board on Monday was Roy Arneson, representing the local janitor and bus driver union. Rather than present a request for wage adjustments, Arneson discussed with the board the basis on which members would like to have wage increases justified. Mention was also made of the probation period for bus drivers following last fall's one-day strike.

Call for bids for two 48-passenger school buses was also authorized by the board with bids to be opened at the next regular meeting of the board on April 8. Bills for the month were approved with the exception of one by Lester Rodahl requesting payment for transporting a student down a long lane to meet the school bus. Having buses travel farm lanes or paying for others to provide this transportation is against school policy.

RAD Group To Study Plan for Economic Development

Community leaders for Pennington county will be given copies of the Overall Economic Development Plan (OEDP) at a meeting to be held Friday at 7:30 p. m. at the courthouse in Thief River Falls, according to Cy Carpenter, president of the county Rural Area Development group.

Review of the plan's four sections will take place and all attending will have an opportunity to study the plan and make proposals on county improvements in agricultural, industrial or social growth. Everyone who served on the long-range planning committees, RAD organization, extension committee and those other persons who are interested are all urged to attend Friday's meeting, Carpenter stated.

"Only through careful study of our resources can we develop sound plans and establish projects in the area," the chairman added. The OEDP was prepared by long-range planning committees in cooperation with the county extension office and was printed by the University of Minnesota.

Plan Is Divided

Four general areas involving county statistics are included in the development plan as follows:

Community Development — Labor force and volume of business in agriculture, construction, services, industry, mining, manufacturing, trade, communication and transportation, volume of business done by wholesalers and retailers in the county, employment and unemployment, number of people in various income groups, utilities and industrial potential;

Farm Business — Climate, soil and water, types and sizes of farms, volume of farm businesses, crop production, livestock industry figures and potential of agriculture in the area;

Family Living — Housing, number of county residents, ages, marital status, educational level, home facilities such as number of homes with plumbing, water supply, sewage disposal and heating units, churches serving the area and household equipment;

Youth — School enrollments, levels of education and youth activities.

Lakehead Pipeline Co. Plans Area Work in '63

Interprovincial Pipe Line Company is completing plans for the construction of 167 miles of 34-inch pipe line this summer, at a cost $20,438,000, it was announced today by R. E. Trammell, general manager of Interprovincial Pipe Line Company and Lakehead Pipe Line Company, Inc., after approval was received from governmental bodies.

Some 41 miles of the "big-inch" pipe will be laid in Manitoba while 126 miles will be constructed in Minnesota by Interprovincial's wholly owned subsidiary, Lakehead Pipe Line Company, Inc. The Canadian portion, involving four 10-mile sections will cost about $5,206,000 while the United States portion will cost about $15,232,000.

The first step of the 34-inch looping program was completed in 1962 when 38 miles in two sections were constructed in Minnesota.

The 34-inch diameter pipe is the largest pipe ever laid in four separate sections, each about 10 miles long, extending west from Souris, Glenboro, Maitou and Gretna, in Manitoba. Construction will begin in the early summer with completion expected sometime in the fall. Canadian contractors and suppliers will be used exclusively on this portion.

The construction of 126 miles in the United States will start in the early summer and will be divided into seven different loops. Some 39 miles of the Lakehead looping will be in 10-mile loops stretching west from Donaldson, Viking, Plummer and Clearbrook, Minnesota. Another 30 miles will be in the Cass Lake region of Minnesota; 28 miles will be near Floodwood, and 18 miles will extend west from Wrenshall. United States suppliers and contractors will be used on this portion.

In Canada the 34-inch loops will be laid parallel to existing 16 and 24-inch lines while in Minnesota, the new line will be laid parallel to existing 18 and 26-inch lines.

The choice of 34-inch pipe for the new looping program is the result of the company's thorough investigation of the growth in existing and potential markets. The line size selected provides the lowest unit cost of operation for the foreseeable future.

Open Bids Mar. 26 on Blacktop Job

Bids on five federal aid secondary road improvement projects estimated at $675,000 will be opened by county auditors in five counties during the week of March 25, the Minnesota Highway Department has announced. The counties affected are: Clearwater, Cottonwood, Marshall, Renville and Rice. The Marshall county projection CSAH 6 calls for grading, gravel base, road-mixed bituminous base and road-mixed bituminous surfacing on 8.6 miles between the Soo Line Railroad, 1½ miles east of Viking, and east to TH 32. Bids to be opened March 26 by County Auditor Charles Cheney in the court house in Warren.

Soo Seeks Permit to End Passenger Train Service to Portal, ND

The Soo Line today filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission an application to discontinue on April 15 a passenger service in which, on the average in 1962, the crew members on the trains involved outnumbered the revenue passengers.

The service if offered daily between the Twin Cities and Portal, North Dakota. The trains are No. 13, which is operated westward between St. Paul and Portal; and No. 14, its eastbound counterpart. Between the Twin Cities and Glenwood, Minnesota, Trains 13 and 14 are combined with Trains 9 and 10, which would continue in service.

Annual out-of-pocket losses of $294,000 in 1961 and $255,000 through November 30, 1962, were sustained by the Soo in the operation of Trains 13 and 14, the application shows. In 1962, Train 13 averaged 6.25 passengers per train-mile, and Train 14 averaged 6.27 passengers per train-mile. Each train required a crew of seven men per train-mile.

"The Soo Line needs the money which it loses annually on these trains for maintenance of its track, equipment, and acquisition of new equipment," the application points out.

"The annual out-of-pocket loss incurred in the operation of said trains, unless eliminated forthwith, will impair the ability of the Soo Line to render adequate and suitable service to the area it ser-

Jeanne Dryden Is AFS Finalist

Jeanne Dryden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Dryden and a junior student at Lincoln high school, has been selected as a semi-finalist in the Students Abroad program of the American Field Service.

Notification of the selection was received Monday by Mrs. J. W. Ewing, coordinator of the Americans Abroad program of the local AFS committee. Selection as a semi-finalist will mean that Miss Dryden will spend the summer in a foreign country if placement in a private home can be arranged by the American Field Service.

Selection as a semi-finalist does not guarantee placement, Mrs. Ewing said, and no indication as to the country involved has been received. The program is the same as that under which several local students have participated in past years.

Vows Spoken By Marcia Vigen, Russell Johnson

Grace Lutheran Church of Grygla was the scene of the double-ring wedding ceremony which united Marcia Rae Vigen and Russell Keith Johnson in marriage on March 2. Rev. Julian Erickson officiated at the service.

The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Vigen of Grygla. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Johnson of Goodridge.

Altar decoration was a basket of cut flowers. Patricia Vigen and Peggy Hoack, sister and cousin of the bride, respectively, were candlelighters. At the organ was Mrs. Walter Jelle, and the soloist was Barbara Magnuson, who sang, "O Perfect Love," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride's attire was a floor-length gown of taffeta, styled with a high neckline and long sleeves. The draped skirt flowed into a long train of lace and taffeta, enhanced with taffeta bows. The bride's jewels were a necklace of pearls, a gift of the groom. Her bouquet was an orchid centered among feathered carnations and streamers.

Miss Roberta Sundberg was maid of honor, with Lola Johnson, the groom's cousin, as bridesmaid, and Susan Vigen, the bride's sister, as her junior attendant. The attendants wore identical dresses of pale blue embroidered cotton, with shoes to match. Their pearls were gifts of the bride, and their bouquets were of yellow roses and white carnations.

Walter Johnson, the groom's brother, served as his best man, while Larry Vigen, brother of the bride, was groomsman, and David Grovum, the bride's cousin, was junior attendant. The men were outfitted in dark suits with black bow ties, and wore white carnation boutonnieres. Ushering duties were carried out by Robert Vigen and LeRoy Johnson, brothers of the bride and groom, respectively.

The costume chosen by the bride's mother was a three-piece suit of blue, with black accessories, and that of the groom's mother was a two-piece coffee-brown dress with black accessories. Both wore corsages of yellow roses and white feathered carnations.

A reception followed the ceremony, and was held in the church parlors, with members of the the Faith Circle serving. Mrs. Gunder Grovum and Mrs. Francis Hoack, aunts of the couple, respectively, poured, and Mrs. Obert Grovum, the bride's aunt, and Mrs. Selmer Holen, sister of the groom, cut the cake, which was baked by Mrs. Will Wayne. Out of town guests attending were from Minneapolis, Thief River Falls, Goodridge, and Gatzke.

For her travel costume, the bride wore a blue knit sheath with black accessories, and her corsage was the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is in the employ of American Hardware Mutual Ins. Company, Minneapolis, and her husband is employed by Blacktop Service Company in Hopkins, where they are making their home at 16601 Excelsior Boulevard.

THE MAGIC EFFECT OF COLORS

Black makes you look slender, Red grabs the eye

Ages ago women learned that color is a weapon, an expressor of personality, an attention grabber, a cover of defects, a stimulant.

A researcher painted four rooms, one solid red, one yellow, one blue and the other green, furniture of the same colors was put in each room. Subjects were put in each room to measure their reactions. In the red room, pulse rates jumped and little work was accomplished. The blue room was found to have a soothing effect; the yellow room gave the subjects headaches and the green room produced no measurable reaction.

Many modern girls have mastered enough knowledge of color power to convert an average appearance into a ravishing beauty.

BLACK — As a color, only neurotics like it. But as part of an ensemble it is invaluable. It makes adjacent colors more vibrant and beautiful; makes the complexion look richer and the figure more slender.

PASTELS — Have a subtle influence and are often most effective because they are less obvious. A dusty pink or powder blue expresses delicacy and refinement. Pink is warm glowing and mildly stimulating. Powder blue is cool looking but not cold.

BLUE AND GREY — Cool neutral colors associated with "truth" and "reliability" in many minds.

RED — A highly stimulating color invaluable for accents. It is the modern girl's prime weapon. Use it to catch and direct the eye and makes you look lively, full of pep.

YELLOW — Use it intelligently. It is the biggest attention getter of all.

LIGHT SHADES — Give an impression of greater bulk. Something for the thin or short person.

TWO TONE GARMENTS — Make a person look shorter as do horizontal stripes. If you look overly tall, wear contrasting jacket and skirt or jacket and slacks. If you are short and heavy set, avoid them, for they emphasize stockiness.

The above holds true for men also. If you have a big nose, a red necktie will attract attention away from it.

Dr. Geo. Martin To Address TOPS Dieters Next Monday

The newly-organized TOPS Dieteer Club will meet Monday evening, March 18, at 8 p. m. in the Woman's club rooms in the city auditorium. A program of interest has been planned, and will feature Dr. George Martin as guest speaker. Another coming event will be the crowning of a Queen, on March 25, she being the member who has lost the most weight since the club was activated here.

TOPS' initials and purpose are self-explanatory — Take off pounds sensibly. TOPS Club, Inc. is a national organization, which was founded in Milwaukee, Wis. some years ago, and uses group therapy and stimulation to fulfill its goal. Each member attends regular weekly meetings, is weighed in, and then is encouraged by fellow members (whether or not she has lost any weight).

TOPS club recommends that its members see their doctor before joining, and get the physician's advice and diet for reducing. Then the club emphasizes low calorie diets, gives talks on low calorie menus, shares low calorie recipes, distributes booklets on health, and puts on other educational meetings.

Once a woman reaches the weight which her doctor recommends, she becomes a member of KOPS (Keep Off Pounds Sensibly).

Since the local club organized about a month ago, the dieters have among their members 30 highly enthusiastic women of all age groups. To date, the collective weight loss has been 180½ pounds. Officers of the club are Mrs. Eula Kvikstad, group leader, Ann Tonder, treasurer; Verna Noper, asst. group leader; Jeanne Nelson, publicity; Mildred Walker, secretary; Dorothy Buck, photographer; and Alfreda Anderson, exercise program director; Bernice Christianson, weight reecorder.

The TOPS Dieteers invite anyone with a weight problem and an earnest desire to do something about it, to join the club. Meetings are held each Monday evening in the Womens' club rooms in the city auditorium.

Rotarians Hear Talk on Brazil by AFS Student

Sonia Wildt Reveals Facts Regarding Her Country Monday Noon

Members of the Thief River Falls Rotary club were given information on Brazil by Miss Sonia Wildt, American Field Service exchange student from that country, at the regular meeting held Monday noon at the Elks club rooms. Miss Wildt is attending Lincoln high school this year.

Brazil is a nation larger than the United States in area, Miss Wildt said, and has a population of about 17 million people — approximately half the population of South America. Climate ranges from tropical to temperate with the latter having four distinct seasons.

Much of Brazil's pride lies in Brazilia, the capital city built in 1,000 days with workers working for 24 hours a day without stopping. Miss Wildt said. The city is considered the greatest architectural masterpiece in the world.

Government in the country is democratic with laws for all states being the same under federal district control, she added. The nation has a number of industries, agricultural production including livestock and fruit, and a number of valuable minerals and precious stones.

Unless a person desires to go to a private school, education is furnished by the government through college, Miss Wildt said. Students in what is comparable to our high schools take 12 subjects a year, including foreign languages, psychology and philosophy.

Following her stay in Thief River Falls, Miss Wildt will leave here in June and spend a month with other AFS students, finally meeting in Washington, D. C., for her trip home. Her plans are not definite, she told the group, but she will likely enter law practice with her father or seek foreign service work in the embassy.

Plant Vegetable Varieties That Freeze Well

If you're looking ahead to all the vegetables and fruits you can freeze from your own garden, remember that careful selection of the varieties you plant will pay off in better quality.

Tests in the University of Minnesota food processing laboratory show that some varieties freeze much better than others.

A newly revised University of Minnesota Agricultural Extension Service publication, "1963 Vegetable Varieties," Extension Folder 154, lists vegetables that are recommended for Minnesota and stars the varieties suitable for freezing. Get a copy from the county extension office before you buy your vegetable seeds for spring planting.

Among the varieties of vegetables tested in the University's Food processing laboratory and found suitable for freezing are these:

Asparagus - Washington, F1 Hybrid; green beans - Tendergreen, Topcrop and Tendercrop; Yellow bush beans - Cherokee, Pencil Rod Black Wax and Kinghorn Wax; broccoli - Green Mountain and Waltham 29; Brussels sprouts - Catskill and Jade Cross; sweet corn - Sugar and Gold and Golden Bantam types; muskmelon - Iroquois;

Also peas - Little Marvel, Laxtons Progress and Dark Seeded Perfection; rhubarb - Valentine, MacDonald Crimson and Chipman's Canada Red; spinach - America, Bloomsdale Long Standing and New Zealand; summer squash - Black Zucchini and Early Prolific Straight neck; winter squash - Buttercup, Hybrid R and Butternut. All of these varieties will do well in Minnesota gardens.

Among varieties of small fruits that freeze well and are adapted to Minnesota are the Rich Red, Trumpeter and Sparkle strawberry; the Latham raspberry; the Northstar and Meteor pie cherry.

Other fruit varieties recommended for freezing are listed in Extension Folder 156, "Freezing Fruit and Vegetables," also available from the county extension office.

Soo Line Would Halt Passenger Service to Portal

ves, including North Dakota and Minnesota, which must be provided by the Soo Line for the economic strength and growth of this territory. The losses incurred on said trains have been and continue to be a burden on the financial strength and vigor of the company and have and continue to decrease the ability of the company to upgrade its plant and equipment."

The application explains that mail, express, milk and cream carried by Trains 13 and 14 can be handled efficiently by other means of transportation. Less-than-carload freight service and parcel post service are available. The "Metro" system of mail distribution is fully developed in the territory served by the trains. Many points have two star route deliveries in each direction daily, and all points have at least one.

Expenditures made by the federal and state governments for highways and airports, coupled with a substantial increase in private automobile ownership, have made the services offered by the Soo's trains comparatively inconvenient, cumbersome and obsolete, the application points out.

School Board To Call for Bids On Bond Sale

Following discussion of requests from local cosmetologists, the board agreed to raise prices of permanents at the vocational school cosmetology course to $5.50 and $6.50.

Accept Resignations

Resignations were accepted from Dale Knewtson, Mrs. Patricia Knewtson, Mrs. Jean Tureson and Miss Gayle Altstatt. Due to an increase in farmers enrolled in the farm management program of the vocational school, the board also authorized an additional $400 for clerk hire on record analysis. About 85 farmers are now enrolled in the management program. Nearly all of the expense for record analysis is recovered directly from participating farmers.

To assist the Falls Squares in a bid for the state square dancing convention in 1965, the board voted in favor of making school facilities available for the event on a rental basis. The convention, if obtained for this city, could attract approximately 1,500 people to the community for the dance and workshop sessions.

He used the stomach of a cow to show how chemicals can reduce bloat, where to make emergency puncture in the event of bloat and effects of hardware in the cow's digestive system.

Also speaking briefly at the meeting were Marian Augustine, Land O'Lakes director from District 17, and John Lager, Land O'Lakes fieldman. Approximately 110 persons attended the annual meeting.

In observance of Merle Rafteseth's 33rd birthday anniversary, the birthday song was sung by members attending. Lunch was served by the American Lutheran Church Women and cigars and candy bars were distributed by the Union State Bank of Thief River Falls.

Company Has Contracted for 120,000 Acres This Year to Supply 3 Plants

American Crystal Sugar Co. will make sugar beet payments as of March 20 of .8979 cents per ton to Red River Valley beet growers. Total amount of the payments is $1,030,000, it was announced Monday by J. C. Tanner, district manager.

This brings the total payments for the 1962 crop to approximately $11.5 million, he said.

Tanner said the company has contracted some 120,000 acres for the 1963 crop, to be processed by the Moorhead, Crookston and East Grand Forks plants.

He explained, "That is all we can handle until 1965, when we expect to contract beets for the new plant at Drayton." Construction of the new plant in Drayton is expected to begin in mid-May.

Tanner said 100 per cent of the Valley acreage this year will be planted with mono germ beet seed, which enables the grower to better space his planting and improves the working conditions for migrant workers.

He explained that the company expects the average worker will be able to handle 25 acres of beets, compared with 22 last year and 11 acres 10 years ago.

Panel's Decision in Recount Trial Due in Few Days

Rolvaag Has 78-vote Lead with Only about 120 Votes Left to Be Disposed of Presentation of evidence in Minnesota's gubernatorial recount trial is expected to be completed today, attorneys for Republican Gov. Elmer L. Andersen and former DFL Lt. Gov. Karl Rolvaag said Wednesday.

The three-judge recount panel then will rule on about 120 ballots—evenly divided between the two candidates—which the DFL and GOP claim should either be included or rejected from the vote counts.

However, attorneys said they do not expect the panel's ruling declaring the winner of last November's election until early next week.

Regardless of how the panel rules on the 120 ballots, Rolvaag will maintain a lead over Andersen. The DFL candidate currently has a 78-vote lead and the most Andersen could gain is 60 votes.

'63 Beaver and Otter Trapping Season Set

The 1963 beaver and otter trapping regulations were announced today by the Minnesota conservation department's game and fish division.

This year the state has been divided into two closed zones and one open trapping zone. Trapping will be closed in a large area of central Minnesota and along the Lake Superior north shore trout streams where the beaver population is down. The closed area amounts to about one-fourth of the total area of the state.

Beaver may be taken in the remaining open area from 6:00 a. m. March 23 to 6:00 p. m., May 5, 1963. Otter may be taken from 6:00 a. m., April 13 to 6:00 p. m., April 27, 1963.

Otter may be taken only in the open beaver trapping zone north of State Highway 87 and U. S. Highway 10 and north of the Chisago county line. Otter trapping is closed in the southern part of the state.

No beaver or otter may be taken in the closed area.

In general, the largest closed area includes all of the counties of Aitkin, Kanabec, Mille Lacs, Sherburne, Wright and McLeod; most of Itasca, Cass and Crow Wing counties; and parts of St. Louis, Morrison, Isanti, Anoka and Chisago counties. The closed north shore stream area lies in Cook and Lake counties.

Certain designated canoe routes in Lake and St. Louis counties will be closed to trapping. Beavers help maintain water levels on canoe routes and also hold great interest to the large number of canoeists and other visitors who use the Superior canoe country.

All state parks are closed to trapping. All statutory game refuges in the open zone are opened to beaver trapping except for the refuges in Pine county which are closed. On wildlife management areas beaver may only be taken by securing a permit from the game refuge manager or area game manager.

No more than ten beaver or more than three otter may be taken by any one licensed trapper during the seasons prescribed. All beaver and otter pelts must be submitted to a game warden or other authorized agent of the game and fish director for inspection and for the purpose of affixing a seal to the pelts. This must be done not later than five days after the close of the season in the zone where the animal was trapped.

Persons planning on trapping beaver or otter should obtain a detailed copy of the regulations from the county auditor when they purchase their license, the announcement said.

Jimmy Anderson Rink Wins Lincoln School Bonspiel

Whips Alan Homme Rink for Right to Enter State High School Tournament

The finals of the local high school's bonspiel, to determine the school's entry in the state high school curling tournament to be held at the St. Paul Curling club on March 22 and 23, was curled at the Fair Ground arena on Monday night. And the Jimmy Anderson rink, by an 8 to 3, defeated the Alan Homme foursome to win the school title.

The 13-team tournament began play on Saturday morning in a double-knockout playdown, and the Anderson rink moved through the field to post an undefeated record. The Homme rink, after losing a semi-finals match to the Anderson, came back to edge out the Peter Furuseth rink to gain the finals berth against the Anderson rink.

In the finals, the Anderson rink, with Jim Anderson at skip, Donovan Erlandson at third, Paul Peterson at second, and Elroy Froiland at lead, gained a 4 to 0 advantage after three ends of play, picking up a single on the first, a pair on the second, and a single on the third. And in the fourth end, Anderson had four and possibly five stones as counters when Alan Homme of the Homme rink threw his last rock. The Homme skip drew to the four-foot to pick up a score and erase the Anderson shot rocks.

The Andersons, though, continued to apply the pressure, and when they added a single in the fifth, and a pair in the sixth, it was apparent that they had moved beyond reach of the ever-trying Homme rink.

The line score:

Jim Anderson	121	012	01	—8
Alan Homme	000	100	20	—3

Region 8 Basketball Tourney Opens Friday

The Region Eight high school basketball tournament will begin play on Friday night on the UND fieldhouse court in Grand Forks. First-round pairings will have Thief River Falls of District 31 playing Lake Bronson of District 32 playing Lake Bronson of District 32 at 7:30 p. m.; and at 9:00 p. m., the Bemidji Lumberjacks of District 29 will play the Fosston Greyhounds of District 30.

Of the four schools participating only Bemidji, on numerous occasions, and Thief River Falls, with five championships, have won the Region Eight cage title. The last appearance in regional play of the Fosston Greyhounds was in 1953, when the Hounds dropped a 60 to 47 game to Bemidji in the finals. The Lake Bronson Braves will be making their first appearance in regional tournament play.

The regional championship finals will be played on Saturday night, with the tip-off scheduled for 9:00 p.m. The championship game will be preceded by a preliminary game between the losers of Friday night's opening round games.

Must Be the Favorites

Coach Bun Fortier's Bemidji Lumberjacks, who were surprised by the Ada Vikings in last season's Region Eight finals, losing by a 52 to 51 score, will be the favorites in this season's tournament. The Jacks have an impressive 18 wins and two losses mark. One of these losses was to International Falls in an early-season record, and the other was to Bloomington, perhaps the state's top-ranked team, several weeks ago.

Reports indicate that coach Fortier, who is a stickler for detail, isn't completely satisfied with the play of his club. He has done some shifting of personnel, and the latest maneuver is to move big and burly Bill Rabe and his 240 pounds out on the side of the lane, and giving the "hole" assignment to six-foot five-inch Jerry Suman. Suman is more agile and mobile than Rabe, and it will be easier for him to move into a position to take a feeder pass from the guards.

The Lumberjacks have been doing some experimenting at the forwards, too, with John Warford replacing John Dow at this spot. Aggressive Dennis Aguiar is solid at one guard post, but Dick Fortier, Roger Johnson, Marv Hanson, and Bob Saeger have been given a shot at the other guard position. Fortier and Johnson give the Jacks some scoring punch at the guard, and that has been a "soft" spot in the Bemidji offense.

Fosston Won't Be Easy

And Bemidji, who entered last season's tournament a bit overconfident (they had beaten the Ada Vikings quite handily in a game played at Bemidji a couple of weeks before the tournament) will be a "hungry" team this week. But they can't take their first-round opponents, the Fosston Greyhounds, lightly. Coach Stan Otness Fosston club, with high-socring Mark Carlin directing the play and doing the bulk of the scoring, could provide some anxious moments for the Jacks.

The Prowlers, although losing a pair of games to the Jacks this season, are in a fine position, if they win their first-round game against Lake Bronson, to give the Bemidji club a hectic battle in the finals.

Lake Bronson Undefeated

Coach Jerry Furuseth's Lake Bronson Braves will be the lone undefeated team in the regional, but they will enter the tourney as an unknown quantity against top-flight opposition. If chunky Wally Sele and center Al Anderberg are "on", and they turned in a remarkable game against a well-rated Greenbush team on Saturday night in the District 32 finals. Sele, hitting on eleven of seventeen field goal tries, was the factor that carried the Braves to their decisive win.

It will undoubtedly be an interesting tournament, and the winner in the championship finals on Saturday night should prove to be an able representative in next week's state tournament.

On a Golf Tour

Rollin (Ron) Solheim, a junior at Moorhead State college, left with the college golf team, of which he is a member, on Tuesday on a nine-day trip into Kansas, Arkansas, Missouri, and Oklahoma. The Dragons will play a number of matches with college squads in these states, and will return to Moorhead on March 22.

Of Hockey Interest

An item in the Winnipeg Tribune, and carrying a Fort Frances dateline, states that "Fort Frances hockey fans can look forward to seeing good teams here for many years yet. It appeared Sunday when a northwestern Ontario minor hockey meet ended in a clean sweep of all three championships by locals lineups."

It will be of interest to note if any of these youngsters will enroll at International Falls to "further" their education.

Keith Christensen, an all-state tournament selection in last year's Minnesota tournament, and Mike O'Leary, a fast-skating wing on last year's Falls' state champions, are playing junior hockey with the Fort Frances Royals. Christensen, although ineligible for high school play, is attending International Falls high school, and this past season the nimble center-ice player assisted the Broncos' coach Larry Ross.

Jon Larson Rink Wins Curling League Title

The men's city curling league playdowns, a double-knockout affair and which has been in progress for the past couple of weeks, was concluded at the Fair Grounds arena on Tuesday night. And the Jon Larson rink, in a match that was curled on ice sheet number two and which was called at the end of nine ends of play, won the city league championship by scoring a 11 to 4 win over the Wally Tunberg rink.

The Larson rink, with Jon Larson at skip, Shorty Perkins at third, Mark Larson at second, and Donovan Erlandson at lead, turned in a fine exhibition of curling as they defeated the veteran Tunberg rink. The Tunbergs had Wally Tunberg at lead, Curtis Swanson at second, Len Furuseth at third, and Cliff Jorde at skip.

The finals match was "broken open" in the fifth end when, with five Larson stones in the rings and with Jorde's stone as second shot rock, skip Jon Larson, having last rock, chipped out the Jorde stone to count a big five. The Larsons added a pair on the sixth end to take a commanding 10 to 3 lead.

The line score:

Jon Larson .... 210 052 001—11
Wally Tunberg .... 001 200 110—4

Statistics Given on Season Record for Trapshooters

Secy. Erling Torgerson Reveals Sandy Wilson Is High Man with 24.1 Average

Trapshooting statistics released by Erling Torgerson, secretary of the Thief River Trap Shoot league, reveal that Sandy Wilson of the Bjorkman's Toggery team won the season's individual high average honors. Sandy posted a fine 24.1 average, gaining a one-bird margin over last season's "high gun", Si Schantzen, who scored a 23.1. Si won the high average last season with a 23.1 average.

Over the past four years Sandy has shown remarkable consistency. In 1959 he posted a 22.5 average, in 1960 he had a 23.3 mark, and in 1961 he scored a 22.1 average. Schantzen, too, has been a consistent marksmen in league competition, having a 22.0 average in 1959, a 22.4 average in 1960, and a 23.1 average last season.

The trapshooters posting averages of 20 or better, in addition to Sandy Wilson and Si Schantzen, were the following: Jim Buening, 23.0; Stan Wilson, 22.9; Bob Mattson, 22.3; Steve Skadsen, 22.2; Tony Dorn, 21.7; Walt Fischer, 21.5; Pat Fischer, 21.4; Clarence Mattson, 21.4; Al Tonder, 21.2; Don Olson, 21.0; Wayne Schantzen, 21.0; Roy Peterson, 20.7; Erling Torgerson, 20.4; Dr. Jim Disse, 20.2; Merv Skadsen, 20.1; and Jim Rude, 20.1.

The most improved shooter proved to be Francis (Frenchy) Cloutier. In 1961, Frenchy had a 9.7 average, while this past season he scored a 15.1 average. Other shooters who boosted their averages considerably were Bob Starekow, who raised his average from 14.2 in 1961 to 19.0 in 1962; and Marv Lundin, who had a 14.9 in 1961, and an 18.3 last season.

Explains Charitable Gifts on Tax Returns

(This is the eleventh in a series of articles on income taxes made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar Association, Public Relations Committee).

You may deduct contributions made by you in cash or other property to organizations operated for religious, charitable, literary, educational or scientific purposes. This is another of the itemized personal deductions available to you. However, you cannot deduct contributions which you make no matter how charitable your intentions, to needy relatives or to other individuals, social clubs, labor unions, or other such organizations.

On your federal return, contributions to political organizations or to candidates for political office are nondeductible, while on your Minnesota return, you may deduct such donations up to $100.

You need not make a donation of cash in order to obtain a charitable contribution deduction. In fact, you can often afford to make a larger contribution to charity because the law permits you to deduct the fair value of the property you donate to charity, whether or not this amount exceeds the price you paid for the property, with no requirement that you report the increase in value as income to yourself.

For example, if you have a share of stock which cost you $50 and is presently worth $100, you can give the share to a charitable organization and take a $100 deduction. If you sold the stock and gave the cash as a charitable donation, it would be necessary for you to pay an income tax on the $50 profit. By giving the stock to charity you get a $100 deduction and pay no tax.

You are also entitled to deduct as a charitable contribution the fair value of new or used clothing, toys, and other articles which you give to charity and also expenses which you incur for travel and transportation in serving a charitable organization. You cannot, however, deduct as a charitable contribution the value of your time which is donated.

On your Federal return, your charitable deduction is limited to 20 per cent of adjusted gross income. However, where one-third of the total charitable deduction is for donations to churches, educational organizations and hospitals, you are entitled to deduct a maximum of 30 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

On your Minnesota return, the deduction is limited to 20 per cent of your taxable net income before the credit for contributions.

Interest expense is deductible in full from your tax return. This expense is often a substantial part of your monthly mortageg payments on your home.

If you are buying a car or other property or appliances on time, a portion of your time purchase price and monthly payment will normally be interest expense. If the amount of interest expense is not clear or where the time carrying charge includes other charges such as for insurance on your life, you may estimate the interest charge by determining your average monthly balance during the year and multiplying this amount by 6 per cent if this amount does not exceed the total carrying charge for the year. It is, of course, preferable to obtain the actual amount of interest which you pay because most running accounts or time charges are based upon substantially higher interest rates than 6 per cent.

Discuss Deductions for Medical Expenses

(This is the twelfth in a series of articles on income taxes made available as a public service by the Minnesota State Bar Association, Public Relations Committee.)

Medical and dental expenses are deductible as itemized personal deductions on both your federal and Minnesota returns in the year you pay your medical or dental bill.

Generally, you may deduct such expenses as fees of doctors, dentists, and nurses, hospital expenses, eye glasses, false teeth, hearing aids, medicines and drugs, and premiums paid on hospital and medical insurance.

Both federal and Minnesota law allow deductions for medical expenses only to the extent that your medical expenses exceed the amount you receive for an injury or sickness from health, accident or medical insurance.

On the Minnesota return, there is no limit on the amount that you may deduct for medical expenses. The deduction for medical expenses on your Federal return, however, is allowable only to the extent that such expenses (exclusive of amounts paid for medicine and drugs) exceed 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income. If either you or your spouse is 65 or over, you may claim your medical expenses for both of you without reduction by 3 per cent of adjusted gross income.

Moreover, amounts spent by you for medical expenses of your, or your wife's dependent parent will not be subject to the 3 per cent limitation if such parent is 65 or over. In computing the medical expense deduction on your Federal return, the amounts paid for medicines and drugs are deductible as medical expenses only to the extent that they exceed 1 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

The deduction for medical expenses on your Federal return cannot exceed $5,000 for each exemption you claim, or a maximum deduction of $10,000 if single and $20,000 if married and filing a joint return or head of household. Where either you or your wife is 65 and unable to work due to physical or mental impairment of indefinite duration, the maximum deduction for your Federal return is increased to $20,000 if one of you is 65 and disabled, and $40,000 if you are both 65 and disabled.

Farm Groups Told to Agree on Plan

Man From Agriculture Dept. Speaks in St. Paul

America's agricultural interests must work harder to reach agreements among themselves or they will "continue to flounder," according to Byron G. Allen, Assistant Secretary of U. S. Agriculture.

The former Minnesota agriculture commissioner served this warning to dairymen assembled in St. Paul for the 30th annual convention of the Minnesota Dairy Products Association Thursday.

Allen said hearings on new farm proposals, including dairy legislation, will begin March 18 in Washington in the U. S. Senate agriculture committee. He said Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman is scheduled to be heard first.

"The door is open for free and open exchange of ideas and for contrast or even a clash of opinion," Allen said. "People don't have to hate each other to have a difference of opinion."

But before going to Washington, Allen said farmers and farm organizations from different sections of the country and the various commodity groups should seek agreements among themselves.

"No other section of the American economy goes into the legislative halls with such 'fragmentized' points of view," Allen said. "How can we expect a crystallization of policy when farm groups are unwilling to sit down and try to arrive at agreement?"

Allen said he couldn't predict what shape new farm legislation will take, but advised that a voluntary program to "adjust production" is needed.

Daytona is no "private" test arranged by a manufacturer to favor his car's strong points. It is open competition—anyone can enter—and the one thing that is proved by its searing 500 miles is just exactly how well a car hangs together. At Daytona, Florida, on February 24, five brand-new 1963½ Fords showed the world what durability means by sweeping the first five places. And that has never been equaled in Daytona history!

The box score at the left tells the true story...car endurance that takes brutal punishment and comes back for more.

No proving ground can equal this kind of torture. Daytona was a challenge we welcomed, a chance to prove in open competition the essential durability that makes possible the silence, the solid road-grip, the ease of control, the balanced braking . . . and all the other things that go into Ford's concept of total performance.

These were the same '63½ Super Torque Fords that made styling history at their preview at Monaco, and which were recently announced at your Ford Dealer's. They're yours now; get behind the wheel and find out for yourself what total performance means!

Moderates Will Prevail

President Kennedy's budget called for the spending of $98.8 billion in the year beginning next July 1. That is nearly $12 billion more than the government expects to receive in revenues. Since submitting this program the President has proposed a series of new recommendations on health, education and youth welfare, estimated to cost an additional $16.1 billion.

The President is following the advice of those who maintain that what the country needs is more and larger deficits. This is a definite departure from the New Frontier program advocated by Mr. Kennedy when he was candidate Kennedy. He tells us now that huge deficits are essential to economic recovery. Obviously he is bewildered.

It appears that Congress is not going along with the idea that we can spend ourselves rich. The ultra-liberals in the Senate have displayed little strength in the votes on test issues up to now. A speed-up in activities is now expected and most observers predict that the moderates will prevail—we hope.

Good or Bad?

Is the split between the Chinese Communists and the Russian Communists good or bad? On the surface it would appear that the enemy divided would be less dangerous than the enemy united, but the Christian Science Monitor suggests that this is not necessarily true.

Russian Communists now talk of world conquest by peaceful means. Chinese Communists favor conquest by force. This, according to the Monitor, gives the underdeveloped nations of the world a choice that may not be in the best interests of the free world. The Monitor warns:

> "The West has rejoiced at the split in the Communist world while it has been developing. But this ought to be, in the Gilbert and Sullivan phrase, modified rapture. The assorted rebels of the world have two kinds of communism, each backed by a powerful government, to follow or collaborate or flirt or trade with. The one, based on Moscow, can direct communism and popular fronts and the blandishments of coexistance among the advanced countries where violence has little or no support. The other, based on Peking, can foment trouble in the less stable underdeveloped world. Emerging countries at various points in the political spectrum can straddle or select or alternate.
> "The West has a divided opponent but like Janus he has two heads. It is better not to be smug about the new situation."

It probably is well to keep in mind that world domination is the objective of both of the great Communist powers, but it is encouraging to know that there have been significant changes in Russia since the death of Stalin. The police state has ended and the people do have greater liberty. The trend in Russia in recent years has been to the right, and that trend justifies some hope.

Off To The Moon Tra La

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and James E. Webb, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, have signed a peace treaty that creates a joint six-man board to coordinate the nation's space program. The defense budget for next year makes $55 billion available for national defense, more than we spent when we were at war. It provides about $1.5 billion for military development in space.

NASA's allowance for next year is $5.7 billion, most of which, according to Marquis Childs, writing from Washington, will be spent for getting ready to send a manned expedition to the moon, costing not less than $20 billion. This decision was made in the White House, Childs reports, and was resolved "only after a long and often exasperating and painful debate."

The question was whether it would not be better to use a substantial part of this sum to cure some of the ills of mankind here on earth. Was it imperative that the United States win the race to the moon, no matter what the cost? Then, according to Childs:

> "The President decided, contrary to the conclusion of the Eisenhower administration, that this was vital to the nation's power and prestige. A case could be made that the billions for the moon race would be better spent on education, health, improved living conditions. There were those who argued that while the exploration of space might greatly increase our scientific knowledge, it would provide little direct benefit to mankind.
> "All this was weighed in the White House debate, with the President saying that theoretically it might be true that the money spent in other ways could contribute far more to the sum total of human happiness. But the hard political fact was that no consensus could be had in Congress for spending for those other purposes. And out of the moon flight would almost certainly come direct benefits on a presently unimaginable scale.
> "It is a sad commentary that this debate went on with almost no public participation or understanding. One reason was the magnitude of the subject; on a scale so far beyond ordinary human concerns. This same magnitude and complexity apply to the debate over peaceful versus military uses of space."

And so, it seems, we will shoot the works to be first on the moon. Recent checks have discouraged the idea of sending expeditions to Venus and Mars, but in a few years, if we really get our deficit spending program under way on a big scale we may be rich enough to make the effort.

Losing Our Shirts

W. E. Barnes of the Sleepy Eye Herald-Dispatch, thinks we have the right to lose our shirts, and he opposes a proposed government-sponsored program of insurance for the individual against failure. Say Editor Barnes:

> "The greatest threat to our economic system, and to the democracy of which it is a part, is the well-meaning effort to insure everyone against failure.
> "In other words it is the attempt to subsidize inefficiency.
> "One of the freedoms inherent in a democracy is the freedom to fail as well as to succeed. Ability, conditions and timing have a great influence but whether we succeed or fail depends, largely, on the effort we put forth.
> "One of our greatest economic assets," says economist George Kline Smith, "is the right to invest private capital in the hope of making a profit, but at the risk of losing our shirt."
> "Insurance for the individual against failure—present aim of government planners—is the surest method for stifling incentive, the most direct road to failure for everyone."

One way to develop a race of weakings would be to relieve people of responsibility for their own survival. We develop mainly by doing.

Our minds and our bodies require exercise to function properly. Protect a youngster from all harm and he will never learn how to protect himself. One of the most effective stimulants to extra effort is fear of the consequences of failure.

As our government relieves us of responsibility as individuals, it hastens our decline and fall as a nation.

California Schools

Last November's election in California was watched with interest nationally mainly to see what would happen to Nixon. The election is still being widely discussed, not because of Nixon, however, but rather because of the man who was elected head of the state's school system. He has been making headlines quite regularly since then.

Dr. Max Rafferty campaigned on a strange platform, including the theory that children should go to school to learn something besides "life adjustment." He was opposed by the state governor, the trade unions, other self-styled forward-lookers and, of course, all the "educationists." But Rafferty, with no organized backing, won by 250,000 votes. He attributed his victory to a distressed parents' protest against the "progressive" and permissive education California has been inflicting on its hapless young.

Which brought forth the following interesting remarks by the Canadian Financial Post, published far east in Toronto:

> "Under this system, of which California has been the leading U. S. exponent, teachers stress technique, not subject matter. Pupils learn to express themselves and become big wheels, but not necessarily anything more difficult. And they move up from grade to grade automatically; flunking the lazy is out because it would make them unhappy.
> "Rafferty describes the typical product of this kind of education as "the triumphant slob, more dangerous—than a walking case of typhoid". He published a book about California schools called "Suffer, Little Children". No punch-puller is Dr. Rafferty.
> "Canada, also infected by the new pedagogy, should be interested in people who believe school should be a place for informing, stretching and disciplining the mind."

Those unused portions of the small bars of hotel-room soap are now being shipped to areas of the world where soap has been a luxury. The practice was started when a few Milwaukee hotels and motels decided to experiment with the idea. It helps to point up the fact that what we waste would provide a relatively high standard of living for millions of needy people thruout the world.

Legis Lative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

The Motor Vehicles committee has been kept busy since the start of the legislative session with some very important bills referred to our group after they were first introduced in the House.

The measures range from installation of seat belts in new cars after next January 1, to raising the age for a driver's license to 16 years of age. As you know, actions by our committee effect a large number of people and interest is very high in what we do. I would like to review briefly some of the bills we have considered.

SEAT BELTS

At the beginning of the session we had before us a considerable number of bills dealing with seat belts. The committee was unable to agree on any one so a subcommittee was appointed to study all of them. Their recommendation was adopted and was sent to the floor of the House as a committee bill. A committee bill has no particular author but rather is sponsored by the entire committee. This measure was eventually passed. It requires installation of anchorage units for seat belts in new cars sold in Minnesota after Jan. 1, 1964. Within 30 days after registration of the vehicle with the state, seat belts would have to be installed in the front seat.

IMPLIED CONSENT

The implied consent law was given a thorough going over and several changes were made. At times the legislative processes seem to work at cross purposes. One day, in attempting to resolve the issues placed before us, we were considering a bill making it easier to revoke a driver's license and the next day we were reviewing a bill making it easier to get a driver's license back after revocation. The implied consent law sets up the procedure for giving someone tagged for drunk driving, a blood, breath, saliva or urine test to determine whether he actually was under the influence of liquor.

RAISING DRIVER'S AGE TO 16 YEARS

Several bills to increase the age at which a boy or girl may secure a driver's license were considered. There appeared to be a lot of pressure and organized support to increase the age to 16, and some would go even higher. School organizations, driver training instructors and P. T. A. organizations are strongly in favor of the 16 year age requirement. I am very concerned, however, with the effect this would have on farm families. A bill passed by the House last Friday raised the driving license age from 15 to 16, but it would authorize special work permits for 15 year old farm youths.

RE-EXAMINATION

The state highway department has a bill drafted requiring everyone to take a vision test and any other examination the department may stipulate, upon renewal of a driver's license. No one should complain about a vision check, but I see no reason why a person with a good driving record should have to sit down and write an examination in order to renew his or her license.

AGE FOR CAR OWNERSHIP

The committee is studying a bill which would restrict car sales to young people. It would require that a youth be 18 years old before he can purchase an automobile, or before a vehicle can be sold to him. A 17-year-old who has either graduated from high school or completed a driver training course, would be permitted to own a car. Also excluded from the measure were married and employed young people who qualify for a driver's license and have parental consent for ownership.

This is just a sample of the bills we have reported out or still have under advisement. In addition we have acted on many bills to revise or clarify the statutes.

I welcome suggestions or comments by anyone on any of this legislation or on other bills before the legislature.

Cites 'Point' System on Drivers Licenses

The word "violations" is now the key word in the driver evaluation program of the driver license section of the Minnesota highway department, the department states. In emphasizing violations instead of points the department believes a better understanding by the motoring public can be attained as to why it is necessary to call drivers in for interview under the driver evaluation program.

Widespread misunderstanding of the point system is responsible for the clarification of its application.

The point system in Minnesota has existed since 1939 as an administrative tool in the work of the drivers license section, although it was not publicized until 1955. The point system quickly notifies the section through its bookkeeping when an individual's file needs review to determine if some type of departmental action is indicated.

Although there is no necessity for legislative authorization for a point system, it was devised as an administrative aid to be used in the application of mandatory and discretionary statues which outline the measures the commission of highways shall take in dealing with drivers who habitually violate the law or are convicted of serious violations.

The department has found that the public got to thinking in terms of points instead of violations. A driver's license is never actually suspended or revoked because of points, but rather for violations. The primary object of the point system always has remained constant: namely, to screen drivers for driver evaluation.

As originally conceived and publicized, the department feels, the point system did what it was intended to do; that is, it alerted the public to the fact that the department does keep driving records, as directed by law.

When a driver's file is turned over to the driver evaluation unit for action, the matter of points is not discussed with the offending driver but he is told he is being interviewed because of violations and practices which do not constitute safe driving.

De-emphasis of points and greater stress on violations in connection with driver license questions has been urged upon local authorities by officials of the Highway Department.

Big Storm Sewer Job Let by State for Minneapolis

A bid of $4,879,666 for the completion of the big Minneapolis storm sewer tunnel was the apparent successful proposal at the letting held March 8 at the Minnesota highway department's central offices in St. Paul, it was announced today. The bid was offered by Al Johnson Construction Co. and Lametti and Sons, Inc., a joint venture.

The work to be done is on the segments of the tunnel which will connect with the portion now under construction between East 27th street and East 39th street. The new work, which is to start March 18 and be completed by March 31, 1965, will be on segments of the tunnel from East 27th street to Clinton avenue, from this point to Willow street in the Loring Park area, and from the Clinton avenue junction to the Mississippi river under the Cedar avenue bridge.

Interstate Route Benefits Detailed

Travel Time Is Reduced Sharply on New System

Space flights to the moon and Venus may have oriented the public mind to shrinkage of space but a more down-to-earth space shrinkage is taking place right in Minnesota as construction of the various Interstate highway routes progress.

At an average speed of about 40 miles an hour on a conventional highway, the 153 miles from Minneapolis to Duluth now take about four hours for the trip. On the higher speed Interstate (IR35) averaging 60 miles an hour, the trip will be made in three hours or less.

The same ratio can be applied to a trip from the Twin Cities to Moorhead - Fargo, a distance of 233 miles. On the existing trunk highways at 40 miles an hour the trip takes about seven houhs, but on the Interstate (IR94) it will take only about four.

Interstate highways are built to accommodate traffic volumes expected in 1975 and beyond. The multi-lane, non-stop, high-speed features permit a faster, smoother and safer flow of traffic. Controlled access and absence of stop signs eliminate many of the time-losing factors involved in older type highways with crossings of various kinds, narrow bridges and sharp curves.

Traffic which is destined to points outside the Twin Cities and not intending to stop in the Twin Cities, will be able to bypass without travelling on the slower conventional city streets in order to pass through.

Or ever Thou hadst formed
The earth and the world,
Even from everlasting to everlasting,
Thou art God!
(Psalm 90:2)

Is it odd to find these twenty-four words here in your newspaper? But here they are . . . centuries old, out of the enthralled mind of a man who looked at a mountain, at the rugged earth and the vast sky above, at time, at eternity.

Do his words belong among the headlines and datelines, the terse reports of earth-shaking events? Should they compete for our attention with all the goods and services we'd like to buy?

Well this man made a remarkable discovery: he did not simply arrive at the fact of Divine creation. Nor did he merely proclaim the existence and endless reign of God. He spoke to God! He knew Him!

Have our headlines yet reported a greater discovery?

Civil Defense in Action

County Survival Plan Books Are Distributed

Distribution of printed "Survival Plan" booklets were made to division chiefs at a meeting of the Pennington County and Thief River Falls Civil Defense organization Thursday evening in the county courthouse in this city. Kendall Gustafson, county director, presided at the session.

Jon Metusalem, who recently attended a course for shelter managers in St. Paul, reported on the training given at that session. He distributed samples of survival rations which will be stocked in public shelters. Emphasizing that a maximum of 30 per cent of the nation's population would be killed in nuclear attack, he noted the reasons for providing protection for the remaining population.

Plans are being made to find people who could serve as managers for each of the public shelters in Thief River Falls. These people will be trained in shelter management with the hope being to have three men per shelter receive training.

Emphasis was also placed on having as many people as possible take the Civil Defense survival courses which are being offered under the direction of Ellsworth Jorgenson, deputy director of the county organization.

Ten missions of the Civil Defense organization are outlined in the plan and include the following:

1. Provide for the health, safety and welfare of the permanent and temporary residents of the county;
2. Activate the county air warning alerting system upon receipt of an air warning from a state warning point or through established Civil Defense channels;
3. Effect complete command of all county Civil Defense forces following the declaration of a Civil Defense emergency;
4. Control movement and actions

County Gets $937 More in FAS Fund

Makes Total of $37,467 Federal Aid Allotment

Pennington County today was notified that it is being allotted $937 additional in federal aid secondary funds for fiscal year 1964. This brings the county's total allotment for 1964 to $37,467. The previous allotments were made in October, 1962, and in February, 1963.

Marshall county receives $2,201 additional; Red Lake, $745; Roseau, $1,652; and Polk, $2,992.

The announcement by James C. Marshall, Minnesota highway commissioner, explains that the final basis of proportion of distribution of federal aid secondary funds for 1964 was established in agreement with the Association of Minnesota counties providing 66-and two-thirds per cent of the FAS construction funds to the counties and 33-and one-third per cent to the state.

The total amount allotted to the counties for 1964 is $4,968,357. In the agreement with the county association that the 1965 allotments be shared on the same two-thirds-one-third basis, the highway department estimated that approximately $5,100,000 will be allotted to the counties for 1965, an increase of about $150,000.

Teachers Vote To Retain '63 Wages

Teachers Review Local Comparison To Other Schools

Contained in the following story is a comparison of teacher salaries in other Minnesota school districts—a compilation made by the salary negotiations.

According to figures recently released by the Research Division of the Minnesota Education association current faculty salaires of the Thief River Falls school district compare unfavorabley with those of 22 other Minnesota school systems with similar enrollments of between 2,001 to 3,000 pupils. With 2,890 pupils reported in the local system, the Thief River Falls public schools ranks near the top in this enrollment category.

A comparison of basic schedules revealed that the beginning base salary of $4,500 for a beginning teacher, with four years of college training, in the Thief River schools was $129 less than the median of the beginning salaries of the 23 schools. After maximum experience, the Thief River Falls base for four-year training is $6,800, while the median for all 23 is $7,250 or $450 above the local base schedule.

The local minimum for beginners with five-year training is $4,800 or $314 below the $5,104 median of the group. The $7,100 local maximum in this category is $581 below the $7,681 median for the entire group. The local salaries thus compared unfavorably at the maximum experience levels.

Numerically, 15 schools have a higher beginning base salary than the local schools and four lower. At the maximum for four-year training only one school has a lower base than Thief River Falls. At the five-year-training beginning

Schedule Adopted by School Board In Action Today

Final agreement between the Thief River Falls board of education and the local school faculty was reached at a special meeting of the board this morning at the school. Officially adopted was a salary schedule for the 1963-64 school term which is basically the same as for the current school year.

In what is believed to be locally unprecedented action, the Thief River Falls Education association met prior to the board meeting and voted unanimously to remain on the same schedule, with the minor modifications in some cases. It is estimated that the equalization of increments adjustments would have a total increased cost to the district of $3,000 to $4,000 for next year.

Presenting the views of the education association to the school board this morning, Joe Forberg, chairman of the salary committee, stated that the teachers wished to show good faith in cooperating with the board. The board had proposed a schedule last week which called for increases originally requested by the teachers. This morning's action took place in reconsideration of the motion to approve the former schedule.

Signing up for '63 Feed Grain Plan Near End

Culkins Reminds County Farmers of Benefits of Plan

Patrick W. Culkins, manager of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office, announced today that the final date for signing up in the 1963 wheat stabilization and feed grain programs is Friday, March 22. He said that in his opinion no extension would be granted beyond this date.

He stated further that Payment Rate notices mailed to producers on January 21, 1963, perhaps do not give a true payment rate for the 20 per cent reduction, and suggested that each producer could get the complete picture by having his own farm figures computed at the county office.

Culkins pointed out that producers who participated in these same programs in 1962 were paid approximately $400,000 which was more than the total value of all crops produced in the county in 1962; and he stressed the fact that no producer so far has been able to control the weather, but that he can assure himself some guaranteed income by cooperating in the programs.

Volunteers Asked in Cancer Crusade

Allen Torkelson, Head of Campaign, Seeks Workers

Allen Torkelson, chairman for the American Cancer Crusade to be conducted in April, announced today that plans for the countywide solicitation are nearly ready. The overall plan will be to divide the county into three major divisions. Part one will deal with the residential areas of Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, and Goodridge. Part two will be the solicitation of the rural areas, and part three will solicit the business, professional and service organizations of the county.

Torkelson said that many of the volunteer workers for these areas have already been contacted but more are needed. He stated that each area will be broken down into districts and routes so that no one worker will have an area that is too large to work.

In conducting the crusade, the American Cancer Society emphasized these slogans: "To cure more, give more" and "Fight Cancer with a Checkup and a Check".

Torkelson calls upon citizens of this community to join in this annual crusade, and he asks that they volunteer their services as workers. The Cancer Crusade will be conducted during the third and fourth weeks of April, 1963.
